Dear Ms. Nettie
Sponsored by GCNET Internet Services

Dear Ms. Nettie,

In my spare time I enjoy reading articles and books online. The problem is, I spend hours and hours online and end up missing important telephone calls. Is there a way to enjoy my reading without tying up my phone line?

Signed, Ruth the Reader

Dear Ruth,

There is no reason you should sacrifice your reading enjoyment to answer your phone. One benefit of the Internet that many people look past is Offline Browsing. With Offline Browsing you stay online just long enough to gather your reading material. Simply allow each page you want to read to load fully and it will cache (create a temp file) for reading later. Then you can run back through your session, after hanging up, by choosing "Go Offline" or "Work Offline" under the file menu. Once you're in this mode, you can call up sites by typing in the addresses as if you were online.

Keep in mind that this is only beneficial for reading articles, books, and items you do not need "real time" for. For example, you can let the morning paper from yesterday load and read it later offline, but this morning's paper will not upload without being online.

Ms. Nettie is a paid advertisement by GCNET.net. Please send your questions to ms.nettie@gcnetmail.net. (Questions may be edited to preserve anonymity.)

"The Board of County Commissioners and the Sanitary Commission feel that the transition of operational authority to county government will provide a greater efficiency in the working of the Sanitary District," said board chairman Ernie Gregg.

All Sanitary District personnel will become employees within the classified service of Garrett County, with all terms and conditions of their employment consistent with county policy, said Pagenhardt.

River Otters Caught On Film As Part of FSU Research Efforts

Combining elements of Candid Camera and Wild Kingdom, researchers at Frostburg State University have developed a new sort of show, starring river otters.

As part his work with the Pennsylvania Otter Recovery Project, Dr. Tom Serfass, an associate professor of biology at FSU, came up with the idea of setting up video cameras and still cameras, triggered by infrared heat and motion sensors, to capture images of these elusive aquatic creatures. His intent was to obtain a more accurate census count. By filming the otters, researchers hope to determine whether the animals captured on film are actually contributing to scat droppings found at a given site. DNA is extracted from the scat to identify individual otters for the census.

Sadie Stevens, one of Serfass's graduate students, oversees the camera project, which now includes two "otter cams" in Pennsylvania's Ohiopyle State Park and one at Allegheny National Forest's Tionesta Creek. Weather permitting, Serfass and his graduate student research team hope to have set up a total of eight video cameras and 12 still cameras throughout Pennsylvania for a year of filming.

As a bonus, the film footage affords a glimpse of otters' antics that can be used for behavioral studies and offers proof that these playful members of the weasel family like to have a good time by sliding on their bellies, chasing each other, tussling, doing flips, and frolicking.

"It's been really exciting," Stevens says. "We don't have much data on this sort of thing. It's a real incentive to us." She plans to pursue doctoral study and a career in conservation, with a focus on carnivores.

Stevens's work is part of a large-scale monitoring project at sites where river otters have been reintroduced throughout Pennsylvania. From this project, Serfass hopes to develop a model to monitor the status and distribution of otter populations throughout North America.

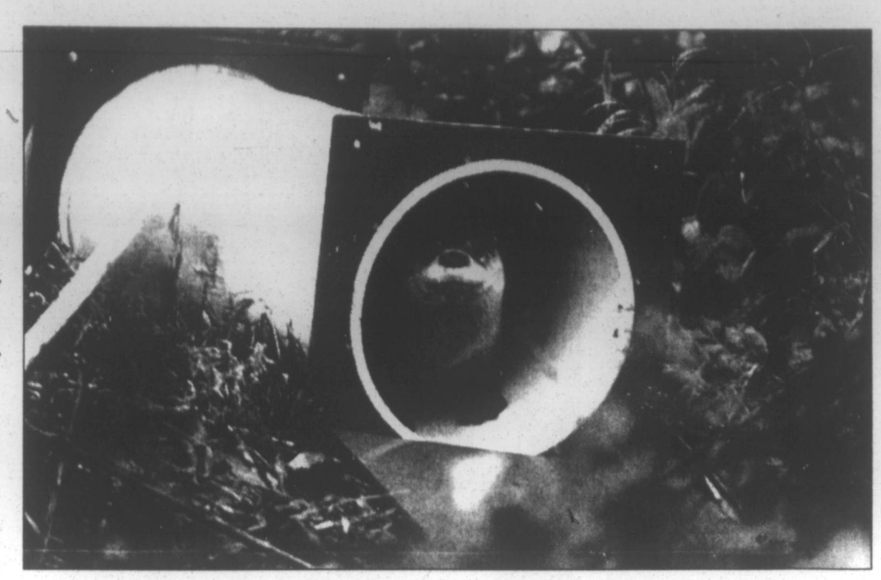
"Reintroducing otters to these ecosystems is an important part in helping to restore that system's ecological diversity," Serfass said in an interview with the Associated Press.

Because of their sensitivity to pollutants, the otters act as watershed "barometers." The fact that these animals are thriving in the reintroduction sites indicates that cleanup efforts have been successful.

The Somerset County component was made possible by a 1999 legal judgment that resulted in the largest civil penalty ever levied by the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection against a mining company in the history of Pennsylvania's mining program. Funds from the fine paid for a passive mine drainage treatment system, the stocking of fish, and the release of otters into the Youghiogheny River.

Now beginning its third decade, the otter recovery project receives some funding from the sale of license plates featuring the river otter. This initiative was developed by one of the project's major supporters, the Wild Resource Conservation Fund, which worked in partnership with the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation. Funding also comes from the Pennsylvania Game Commission, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the U.S. Forest Service.

With cleaner waterways, legal protection from trapping and increased public appreciation, these intriguing creatures now have a chance to thrive as they once did in pre-colonial days.



WHO COULD RESIST THAT FACE? The playful otter is the subject of a study at Frostburg State University, in which the antics of the comical animal are being caught on film. Dr. Tom Serfass, an associate professor of biology at FSU, came up with the idea of setting up video cameras and still cameras, triggered by infrared heat and motion sensors, to capture images of these elusive aquatic creatures. His intent was to obtain a more accurate census count. See story.

Hosted by the Garrett County EMS Committee, the Maryland EMS-C Program, Garrett College, and MIEMSS, this workshop will be taught by instructors from LaPlata. Participants will learn how to create mock injuries that look realistic, from gunshot wounds and burns to broken bones.

"The art of moulage has become very important in planning and conducting mass casualty exercises," a spokesperson said.

After completing this workshop, individuals will be able to assist local fire/EMS companies with drills or be part of a regional team to prepare realistic "victims" for countywide disaster exercises.

A $10 registration fee will be charged to cover all supplies and refreshments for those attending. The registration deadline is March 17, and the class size will be limited to the first 15 applicants.

To register or for more information, persons may contact the MIEMSS Region I Office at 301-895-5934 or 301-746-8636.

What's Happening Our Town Theatre

By Melodee Hill

This is the first segment of a series of three articles exploring the evolution of a play from playbook to fully realized production.

The large, wooden door swings shut with a resonant crack and the dried creaky boards complain as the stranger crosses the room. Expectant faces peer from the dimly lighted, haphazard circle of chairs. This is the last reader needed and no one will have to double up on parts, even though some women may have to read a man's part. Everyone who wants to read chooses a part, or one is suggested for him, and the group begins to read the play, which is Unchanging Love by Romulus Linney.

The place is Our Town Theatre and the event is one of the many informal play readings that the theatre has hosted over the past six years. This is one of the very first steps taken to produce a play at the theatre. Jane Avery, Our Town's artistic director, will usually select a play from her extensive storehouse of theater knowledge and experience. Or, someone will approach her with the suggestion of a play or a particular playwright to consider for production. If Jane thinks she might like to direct this particular play, she might suggest that the theatre host a play reading. After the reading a discussion about the possibilities of the play is held.

Some plays hold up well under the scrutiny and discussion of the group, while other plays are either set aside for the time being or rejected outright for various reasons. Some plays are too dull, too daring, or just too dated. Some plays are extremely good, but physically, financially, or logistically too difficult for a community theatre of modest means and limited space.

The play reading continues and the participants are well into the second act. The group is a little more subdued than they were at the beginning of the play. The play readings are open to the public, and most of the readers are unfamiliar with the play before the reading. As the reading progresses, the story unfolds, revealing crude language and reprehensible characters. The readers become uncomfortable, sensing the growing tension of the plot.

Jane has already decided that she would like to direct this play, or another of Linney's plays, at some point. However, questions remain. Is this particular play too crude, too violent? Is the Oakland audience ready? Is this community theatre ready? She is paying close attention to the reactions of the readers as the play progresses.

Finally, the play brings the readers to the violent climax amid nervous giggles, bad jokes, and stunned silences. A few more pages are read and the play is over and the discussion begins. Comments and reactions fly back and forth, with almost everyone expressing some sort of opinion. Intricacies of plot are discussed, as are staging difficulties and whether or not to restrict the audience to adults only.

It has taken, for one reason or another, four or five years to bring Unchanging Love to the stage. It was placed on the back(stage) burner for a while, quietly waiting its turn. Every now and then it would be "auditioned" again as it was last year as the star of a six-part directing class taught by Jane Avery. I was one of the students in this class, and it was my second introduction to Unchanging Love, as I was also one of the participants at the initial play reading.

During the class we analyzed the play practically line by line, delving deep into the characters' present and past and speculating about the reasons for their actions, reactions and inaction. In Jane's words, ". . . we peeled back the layers." These characters became people I knew well-some lovable, some despicable, but all indispensable to the well-woven story of the play.

I began to wonder about the evolution of a play from skillfully-crafted words on paper to flesh and blood, costumed and lighted, carefully chosen actors becoming these characters on a purposefully designed set for the entertainment and enlightenment of an audience.

Despite being on the board of directors of Our Town Theatre for several years, I was only vaguely aware of what actually happened to bring a production to the stage. My decision was to become involved with as much of the backstage process as I could and record my experiences for anyone inclined to be as interested or curious as I was. This is the beginning of that story, and also the end (of part one).

TEARS OF THE SUN

Rated R - Running Time: 1:58 - Released 3/7/03

Tears Of The Sun, written by Alex Lasker and Patrick Cirillo, directed by Antoine Fuqua (Bait, Training Day), and starring Bruce Willis, is an action movie with surprisingly little action in the first two-thirds followed by lots of violence in the final reel. With a dreadfully slow pace and a disproportionate amount of darkness, it seems like it's trying to have something to say, but I'll be darned if I can figure out the message. Is it that U.S. soldiers should just follow orders and leave warring nations to sort out their own problems? Is it that defying orders in the attempt to be more of a humanitarian is a noble, heroic thing even if 90% of the people you're helping get killed anyway? Is it that Muslims around the world are just plain evil? I think the only thing I learned is if I'm ever sent on a military mission in Africa, I should bring extra camo makeup, because boy, that stuff can really sweat off.

Willis plays Navy Lieutenant A.K. Waters, leader of a special-ops team sent into war-torn Nigeria soon after the country's democratically elected president was overthrown in a bloody coup by a military Muslim dictator who plans to seize control. The president and his entire family has been assassinated by rebel troops who are now roaming the countryside exterminating the loyal Catholic population. Waters's team is instructed by his superior, Captain Bill Rhodes (Tom Skerritt), to evacuate American Dr. Lena Hendricks (Monica Bellucci), a priest, and two nuns from a remote mission hospital before the rebels get there. However, when he and his team arrive (via a nighttime parachute drop, the filming of which apparently killed a stuntman), Dr. Hendricks refuses to leave the mission unless Waters and his team are willing to take everyone. What had been planned as a quick and simple airlift rescue becomes a supervised nature hike to the Cameroon border, through many miles of dense jungle under enemy control with several dozen men, women, and children, some of whom can't even walk very well.

But the trouble really starts when Waters and his men (Cole Hauser, Johnny Messner, Nick Chinlund, and several others) witness some rebels doing a little "ethnic cleansing" in a small village, and conscience gets in the way. Horrified by the violent manner in which the Muslim soldiers are behaving, they do the only humane thing and start shooting them—in direct contradiction to Rhodes's orders of defensive engagement only. This attracts the attention of a massive rebel force with its own supply of cleanser bottles, while simultaneously forcing Capt. Rhodes (who always seems to think that the best place on an aircraft carrier to make a phone call is the flight deck with jets launching every 2.3 seconds) to utter that greatest of Navy mottoes, "You're on your own."

Apparently Willis wanted to make this film "to show his support for President Bush's interventionist strategy in Iraq." Let's see: this movie is about a hasty and ill-advised American military attack against a foreign army perpetrated by one man who has been told not to do it by most everyone he knows, but because he is on his own in a position of power, he does it anyway, drawing many innocent civilians and American solders into the slaughter and ultimately to their deaths. Hm. It does sound familiar.

Okay, I promised myself I wouldn't get started. Regardless of the intentions behind this film or whatever its message is supposed to be, it is certainly well-acted by Willis and Bellucci—who manage a subtle mutual respect without going overboard into trite romantic territory—and by their supporting cast, with some beautiful Hawaiian scenery (most of the shooting occurred on Oahu) thanks to cinematographers Mauro Fiore and Keith Solomon. But director Fuqua's pacing is a serious stumbling block to the film's success as an action thriller. I realize that "hurry up and wait" is a familiar exercise in military activity, but it doesn't need to be depicted with such painstaking authenticity in the movies. The tension doesn't really get going until over an hour into the film, and so much of it takes place at night or in the dark, sometimes you can't even tell what's going on.

Moreover, as has been a problem in his past movies, Fuqua fails to get us to really like any of the characters. The brutality perpetrated by the villains is matched so well by the protagonists, and even the relationships between the good guys are so strained, we have trouble getting behind anyone. I suppose the ending is supposed to seem victorious, with the grateful natives (those who have not been killed) hugging and waving and singing to the departing soldiers (those who have not been killed), but I just couldn't feel the thrill of victory after watching all the carnage. Shucks—I guess I'm just un-American. ★★★

CELEBRATING A LEGEND – In recognition of Dr. Seuss's 99th birthday, the Children's Hour at the Ruth Enlow Library, Oakland, was recently dedicated to the master of children's literature, and even included actual green eggs and ham, prepared by Dorene Rogers, librarian. Garrett County commissioner David Beard, pictured above, stopped by to read One Fish, Two Fish, Red Fish, Blue Fish to the audience of about two dozen pre-schoolers. Rogers also read several Seuss books before dishing out the green eggs and ham. A Dr. Seuss Cat in the Hat craft was also created by the youngsters, and a tribute to another childhood favorite, Mr. Fred Rogers, was also celebrated during the hour. Sami Swift and her mom Carm are seen sampling the tasty green snack. The Cat in the Hat catapulted Seuss from pioneer in children's literature to definitive children's book author-illustrator, a position he has held unofficially for many decades since, according to a web site dedicated to Dr. Seuss. At the time of his death on Sept. 24, 1001, some 200 million copies of his books, translated into 15 different languages, have found their way into the home and hearts of people all around the world. Children's Hour is held every Wednesday from 10:30 until 11:30 a.m. at the Oakland library. Upcoming events include the "Love You Forever" evening on April 7 from 7 until 7:45 p.m., sponsored by Families First; and the July Summer Reading Club. Baltimore author Twig C. Rams' Region Run Gets By Alco; Halted By Leopards

It was a tough ending to a superb Southern High School girls' varsity basketball campaign Saturday when the Rams were bounced from the West Region 1A title game by Smithsburg for the second year in a row, 52-35. SHS had advanced to Saturday's region championship by downing Allegany 47-38 in a semifinal battle Thursday at Fort Hill.

Southern's 17-point loss to the Leopards in the finals cost the Rams a chance to advance to the Maryland State Tournament, which will be played this weekend in College Park. The Rams' loss of playmaking guard Robbin Gregg to a knee injury in the Alco game, and the subsequent benching of standout forward Becca Flanagan with five fouls early in the fourth quarter of the Smithsburg battle all but sealed Southern's fate. Despite a strong line-up of remaining starters, and a deep and talented bench to draw from, Southern head coach Don Stemple knew his options were severely limited by the loss of two of his stalwarts in the thick of battle.

"It was one more thing to overcome," Stemple said of Flanagan's fifth foul during Saturday's championship game. "The mountain just got a little steeper. We just couldn't find any offense, and I give Smithsburg credit for that.

"There's a lot of heart in our kids. We've gotten a lot of mileage out of what we have. The only thing is, you play with your heart and guts and hope your talent gets you over the edge. Today, I don't think our talent came to the top like we needed it. The heart and guts are always there with these kids."

Thursday's 11-point downing of Allegany was a team effort, as the Rams stepped up their play in order to fend off a rally by the pesky Campers.

SHS did everything it wanted to in the first quarter, and after eight minutes of play held a substantial 13-4 lead. Alco came back in the second half to cut the gap to just a lone bucket at the intermission, 25-23. The game's complexion got even muddier late in the third quarter when Gregg hit the floor hard, aggravating a nagging knee injury, and was forced to leave the game for good. The Campers continued nipping away at the Southern lead, and were down by just one point at the third quarter's end, 34-33.

It was a whole new ballgame after Allegany connected on a field goal that tied the game at 35-all before the first minute of the final quarter had ticked off the clock. With the pressure on, Southern's Sabrina Scheffel took the bull by the horns and sank a huge three-pointer to break the stalemate, giving the Rams the lead for good at the 6:18 mark.

"Sabrina has that kind of range," Stemple remarked of the gritty junior, who scored 10 of her team-high 12 points in the second half. "She's just very selective about her shots, and lets it come to her. That shot was there for her, and it was a very, very big one for us. We were just scratching and clawing for all the points we could get in the fourth quarter."

Scheffel's trey sparked a 12-3 Southern spurt that slammed the door shut on the Campers. She had six of the points, including a short shot on Pagenhardt's assist with one second left on the shot clock that pushed the spread to 45-38 with 50 seconds to go.

The "scratching and clawing" Stemple referred to was made necessary by a tenacious Allegany defense, which limited Gregg, Flanagan, and Pagenhardt to 25 points, 21 points below their combined averages for the season. Gregg left the game with 10 points, Pagenhardt was held to nine points, and Flanagan was limited to six. The other two starters, Scheffel and Taylor, stepped up to help fill the gap by recording 12 and 8 points, respectively, while Scheffel pulled down a team-high nine rebounds and Taylor grabbed five rebounds. Flanagan snagged eight rebounds and four steals, and Pagenhardt dished out four assists.

"When teams try stopping the first three, Sabrina and Casey and others are capable of stepping in and having these kinds of nights," said Stemple. "Sabrina had career highs of points and rebounds, and Casey put in an excellent offensive performance together with her usual great defense, which was the real ticket for us in the fourth quarter.

"The bottom line is, you've got to believe in your defense. In quarters one, two and three maybe it's not great, but eventually it will wear you down. I think ours did that tonight," the SHS coaching guru said.

Southern's defense played hard against Smithsburg in Saturday's championship contest, but it wasn't quite up to the task that an uncharacteristically poor-shooting SHS offense left it burdened with. The Rams connected on just 28 percent of their field goal attempts and sank just 38 percent of their field goals, both far below the averages they had carried into the contest. The Leopards capitalized on the cold SHS hands by hitting 48 percent of their field goal attempts and bagging 74 percent from the foul line.

The Rams were down just by one point, 12-11, after one quarter. A nine-point run by the Leopards over the first three minutes of the second stanza left Southern on the short end of a 21-11 deficit, but SHS pulled together in a big way to go on a 12-0 run and take a 23-21 lead as the second quarter ground to a close. Smithsburg star Katy Powell hit a shot in the closing seconds to knot the score at 23-all going into the intermission.

The Leopards mounted a 12-6 run over the third quarter, which closed with SHS down by a 35-29 margin. Things began falling apart in a big way in the final stanza for Southern as Flanagan was lost with five fouls with 6:10 remaining and Smithsburg up by just five, 37-32. The Leopards outscored the Rams 15-3 the rest of the way en route to their 17-point triumph.

"We knew from our scouting that we had to stop one good player — Katy Powell — but we just weren't able to shut her down," Stemple observed of the senior Smithsburg star, who finished with 30 points, nine rebounds, six assists, and four steals. "Casey Taylor had her hands full with Powell, and played her real well. From watching the film we saw that on three or four occasions Casey got a hand in and picked the ball off Powell's dribble, but the ball either bounced off Casey's hand or Powell's knee and right back to Powell. I felt really bad for Casey, because she played so tough."

Powell scored 19 points in the second half, including 15 of her team's 17 in the fourth quarter. "She's a heck of a player, and gamer," stated Stemple. "There's no question about that. We tried to jam up their offensive pattern, and did a good job defending the other four Leopards on the floor, but Powell was just too tough."

"This was Katy's best game, by far," said her father, Smithsburg coach Jimmy Powell. "We tried to run her off screens early on, but Southern did a great job of getting out. They play good defense, and they know our offense well, too. We went to a low 1-4 and let her go 1-on-1, try to get a high screen for her, roll, or get her to the corner or the post, and she basically took the game over midway through the second quarter. But Southern's a great team. They came back on us, and if Robbin Gregg had been in the game, it would have been different. I really feel bad for her."

Flanagan had 10 points, 10 steals and six rebounds before fouling out in the fourth quarter, leaving the Rams without her and Gregg, who missed the entire contest with her knee injury. Pagenhardt recorded 10 points as well, and Scheffel contributed seven. Jasmine Scheffel matched Flanagan's team-high rebound tally of six.

Despite the finality of the post-season loss, the Rams can still hold their heads high knowing they put together one of the best team efforts the red-and-white have seen over the course of a season. The underclassmen-laden squad, which boasted just one senior, Melissa Flanagan, fought its way to an excellent 18-5 record and a third consecutive WMIL crown. Southern will carry a 33-game league winning streak into next season, with its entire starting line-up intact and some superb junior varsity players joining the varsity ranks.

"We accomplished a lot of things we wanted to this year," Stemple remarked. "We lost only four games to teams that we felt were outright better than us, but the one loss to a team that really wasn't better than us happened to be the big one — the Smithsburg playoff.

"Knowing we were that close to getting into the state tournament sort of fuels the fire for next year. We'll miss Melissa Flanagan in a lot of ways, but with what we have coming back and coming up, I'm very excited for our prospects. We're contemplating putting together a 15-player roster, giving us a luxury we've never had before. That way we'd be able to have some super-competitive practices, and use a platoon system during games that will give everyone playing time and keep everybody fresh — and hungry."

Rams' Race For States Tripped Up By Rebels

The road to a first state championship in boys' basketball came to an end once again for Southern High School, as the Rams, top-seeded in the West Region, were handed a 56-49 defeat by second-seeded South Hagerstown in the regional championship game, played at Fort Hill on Friday.

It was "déjà vu all over again" for the Rams, Coach Tom Bosley, and Southern's fans, as last season's team was halted at the same point by the same team, 63-62, in the West Region title game.

The Rams fell behind in the first minutes of the game and played catch-up the rest of the way, although they did have a brief three-point lead halfway through the final quarter. But a pair of three-pointers by South's Ben Mertz in the waning minutes pushed the Rams down for good. Mertz scored 10 of his game-total of 12 points in the final quarter.

The Rebels seized the early momentum and went on an 8-0 run after the tip-off, but the Rams finally settled down and cut the lead to 14-9 by the end of the first quarter behind an opening bucket by senior Matt Stephens and a five-point surge by Dennis Tressler.

The second stanza was dead even, as the Rebels scored the first four points of the period, but the Rams battled back to keep the lead at just four points, 25-21, at halftime.

A pair of free throws by Tressler to open the second half cut South's lead to two points, but the Rebels went back on top by as many as eight before the Rams cut the lead to three, 41-38, by the end of the period.

Ram fans erupted midway through the fourth when a pair of foul shots by Stephens and one of two by Corey Tressler knotted the score at 41-41 with 6:09 to play.

A put-back by Dennis Tressler after a Rebel turnover gave the Rams their first lead of the day, 43-41, before a bucket by David Miner knotted it again at 43-43.

Southern then took its biggest lead of the game when Nathan Fitzwater hit a free throw and Dennis Tressler followed with a short jumper to make it 46-43.

Then came Mertz's crucial, back-to-back three-point buckets to spark a 13-3 final run by the Rebels.

Dennis Tressler led the Rams in scoring with 17, while his brother Corey, starting for an injured Cory Bosley, finished with 14. Stephens and A.J. Bender each contributed eight points and four assists, and Bender also pulled down five rebounds.

The Tresslers each grabbed eight rebounds, and nine of Corey Tressler's points were scored from three-point range.

Miner led the Rebels with 17 points, Mertz finished with 12, and 6-7 Jesse Gutekunst reached double figures with 10.

Miner also had nine rebounds, eight steals, and four assists.

"We turned the ball over a little too much, and that was partly because of the absence of Cory Bosley, which knocked us out of our normal rotation," Coach Bosley said.

Bosley sustained a cracked kneecap in an earlier playoff contest and was lost for the remainder of the season.

"With Cory out we just didn't get the ball into the post as well, and that's our real strength on offense," Bosley said.

"Also, Mertz was able to beat us in transition (defense to offense) down the stretch, which set up his two big three-pointers," he said.

"But I'm very proud of our guys. They played as hard as they could play from beginning to end of the final game, and really, over the entire season. They are just a great bunch of kids."

Bob Starker, coach of the Rebels, noted his respect for Bosley and the Rams. "They worried me the entire game," he said. "When you play a team as disciplined and controlled as they are, you can never feel comfortable, no matter how big your lead might be. They just kept coming back, but fortunately for us, we got hot right near the end and were able to hold them off."

Bosley also noted his appreciation to all who supported the program this season.

"Once again we had great crowd support," he said, "and had one of the largest followings we ever had at the final game. Our crowds and the whole community — from the student body through to all the businesses that support us with their donations to our program and by purchasing advertising to support our radio broadcasts — all play a part in our success."

The Rams concluded the 2002-03 season with an overall record of 17-5 and another Western Maryland Interscholastic League championship.

Kamps, Brenneman Lead Huskies To Eighth Place In State Tourney

Led by brothers Darric and Casey Kamp, along with teammate Jordan Brenneman, the Northern High School wrestling team finished a respectable eighth place in the Maryland State 1A/2A Wrestling Championships, held Saturday at McDaniel College.

Darric Kamp, who was the state runner-up last year in the 145-pound class, finished as the runner-up this year in the 152-pound division, while brother Casey won third place in the 103-pound class. Brenneman also captured third place in the 160-pound class.

The Huskies finished with 55 points to place eighth among dozens of schools that were represented in the competition.

The Southern Rams placed 36th as a team, with 14 points. They were led by Geoff Tressler, who placed fifth in the 171-pound division.

Darric Kamp's only loss was to Dave Nakasone of Centennial High School in the title bout of his division. Kamp was topped by decision, 19-11. He earned a spot in the finals by pinning Tony Gibson in his first match, recording a 12-3 decision over Charles Orme in the quarterfinals, and pinning Dan Sexton in the semifinals.

Casey Kamp lost a quarterfinal match, but was then awarded a forfeit over Mike Montanez and topped Alex Weber, 4-1, in the consolation bracket. He then lost to Ethan Cohen of Hammond High School, 7-2, and settled for third place.

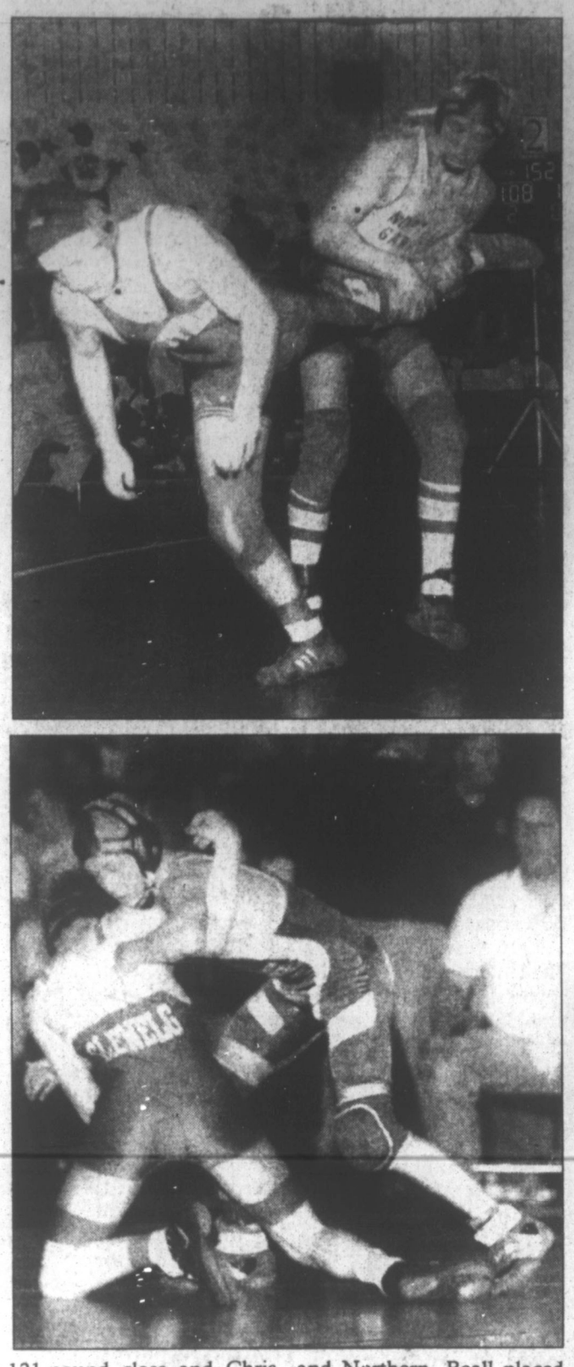
Brenneman decisioned Doug Flores, 8-1, in his first match, and then lost to eventual champion Trey Kohn of Kent in the quarterfinals, 3-0. He then recorded three straight wins to earn third place: a sudden death over Tom O'Brien, a pin of Lee Purnell, and a 2-1 decision over Brandon Morris.

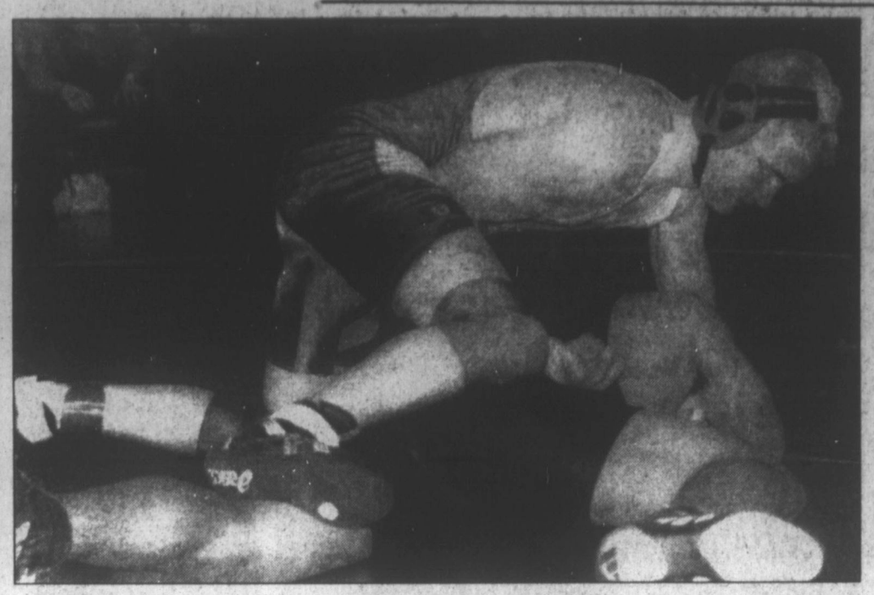
Southern's Tressler defeated Mike Rau in his first encounter of the 171-pound class, and topped Sean Kendig in the quarterfinals. He lost to eventual champion Shane Hines, but then defeated Kevin O'Conner to take fifth place.

Winning their first matches for Southern and finishing among the top eight were Matt Ford in the 121-pound class and Chris Hayhurst in the 145-pound division.

Qualifying for the state tourney, but losing their first rounds were Mitchell Guard (130), Dan Ganoe (135), and Michael Wolf (145) of Northern, and Scott Wildesen (140), Jason Weeks (152), and Chris Bennett (189) of Southern.

Owings Mills won the team championship with 103 points, followed by Harford Tech, Walkersville, Bethesda-Chevy Chase, Kent, Centennial, Mardela, and Northern. Beall placed 19th and Fort Hill finished 44th.





HUSKIES EIGHTH AT STATE MEET – The Northern High School wrestling team finished a respectable eighth place as a team at the 1A/2A Maryland State Wrestling Championships on Saturday at McDaniel College in Westminster. The Huskies were led by Darric and Casey Kamp, and Jordan Brenneman, as Darric earned his second state runner-up trophy in a row, and Casey and Jordan each captured third places in their respective weight divisions. The Southern Rams were also represented in the state tourney, with Geoff Tressler earning a fifth place. Above left, Darric Kamp sends Charles Orme of Southern Anne Arundel to the floor in a 152-pound division clash, which Kamp won by decision, 8-1. Below left, Darric's brother Casey is shown minutes prior to pinning Robbie Black from Glenelg in a 103-pound contest. Above, Northern's Brenneman is seen in control of Doug Flores of Oakland Mills in a 160-pound bout, which Brenneman won by an 8-1 decision. Below, Tressler of Southern works his way to a 15-10 victory over a Stephen Decator grappler in a 171-pound division preliminary. See story for details. Photos by Craig Speicher.

Tar Heels Take Northern Youth Hoops Crown

The Western Garrett Tar Heels avenged their only loss of the season as they edged the Eastern Garrett Blue Devils, 26-22, to win the Northern Youth Basketball League championship this past week. Both teams came into the title game with identical 12-1 records, with their only losses coming at each others' hands.

Hannah Sines saved her best game of the season for the biggest by repeatedly getting behind the Blue Devil defense to lead the Tar Heels with 14 points, 10 of which came in the second half.

The Blue Devils streaked to a 12-8 halftime lead as Thomas Holtschneider scored 10 of his game-high 15 points during the first half. In the third quarter, the Tar Heels had narrowed the gap to one when the Steven Holtschneider hit a driving lay-up for the Blue Devils, drawing a foul. His successful conversion at the free-throw line capped a three-point play that gave his squad a 19-14 lead with three minutes remaining in the stanza.

From that point on, the Tar Heels' defense clamped down and the squad rallied over the remainder of the contest with a 12-3 run that clinched the victory.

Key to the Heels' comeback was a 12-foot jumper by Emily Manges, who followed the bucket by feeding a fastbreak pass to Hannah Sines for a lay-up at the end of the third period to cut the Blue Devil lead to 19-18.

The fourth quarter opened much as the previous one ended, with a fastbreak pass from Ed Herpel hitting Sines for another layup. The bucket gave the Tar Heels the lead for good, and Manges widened the gap when she hit another 12-foot jumper. A pair of scores off offensive rebounds were netted by the Tar Heels' Wil Herpel and Sines, respectively, as the unit finished off its run to its second NYBL crown in three years.

"I'm really proud of how these kids didn't panic when they fell behind," Tar Heel coach Jerry Herpel commented. "We stuck to our game plan offensively, and our defensive intensity down the stretch was smothering.

"Hannah Sines has been an unsung hero all year, and for her to step up in this game and finish the plays that came her way all through the game was fantastic. This was a true team effort as it had to be," Herpel concluded.

TAR HEELS ARE NORTHERN YOUTH HOOPS CHAMPS – The Western Garrett Tar Heels claimed their second Northern Youth Basketball League title in the past three years this past week with a 26-22 win over the Eastern Garrett Blue Devils. The Western Garrett squad finished the year with a circuit topping 13-1 mark, taking two of three head-to-head meetings with the Blue Devils. The Tar Heels, from the left in the first row, are Ed Herpel, Ethan Smith, James Kelley, and Austin Smith. In the second row are Hannah Sines, Emily Manges, Wil Herpel, Brad Sisler, and Bryan Johnson. In the third row are assistant coach Phil Smith and head coach Jerry Herpel.

Bowl For Kids' Sake Bowlers Given Challenge

Challenges abound this year as Bowl for Kids' Sake approaches – for schools, 4-H clubs and Scout troops.

This year's fund-raiser will be held on Saturday, March 29, at Par-Matt Lanes in Oakland. Bonnie Swyter, board president of Garrett County Big Brothers Big Sisters, has issued a challenge to all Garrett County schools. A trophy is at stake, plus the honor of being the school that can raise the most funds for BBBS per capita.

Last year, Broad Ford Elementary School had 44 bowlers, who raised more than $3,380. Teams are already being formed at Broad Ford, Dennett Road, Crellin, Accident, Yough Glades, and Southern and Northern middle schools. All other county schools are invited to sign up their teams by calling Big Brothers Big Sisters at 301-334-3591 or 1-800-400-0735.

Service learning hours are available for high school bowlers and possibly to middle school students, as well. Volunteers are needed in recruiting teams, raising pledge money, bowling, and helping with the activities of the Bowl for Kids' Sake Day.

4-H groups are also being challenged in Garrett County. Last year, eight bowlers representing Red House 4-H raised $274, four bowlers from Shepherds 4-H raised $135, and 12 bowlers from North Star 4-H raised $693. Ann Sherrard, Cooperative Extension agent, has team forms and pledge sheets for 4-H bowlers, and can be reached at 301-334-6960.

For many years, Boy Scouts have been regular supporters and major pledge-raisers. Last year nine Scouts raised $566. Scout troops throughout the county are challenged to meet or surpass that record. Girl Scout, Boy Scout, Brownie, and Cub Scout troops who were not contacted are still invited to take the challenge by calling the BBBS office.

The commitment and spirit of the volunteers who give so generously of their time collecting pledges and bowling helps fund the majority of the operating budget for Big Brothers Big Sisters for the year, said Joan Johnson, county coordinator. Without the volunteers, the work of Big Brother Big Sisters in Garrett County could not continue – matching children considered at-risk, in need of a special friend and extra attention, with adult mentors in both the community and school programs.

For more information about the non-profit organization or about Bowl for Kids' Sake, persons may call Johnson at 301-334-3591 or 1-800-400-0735.

Team sheets and pledge sheets can be obtained at Par-Matt Lanes, where the event will be held starting at noon on March 29. The noon to 1 p.m. hour is nearly full, but there is still plenty of room for bowlers between 1 and 4 p.m. Corporate sponsors bowl at 4:30, 5, and 5:30 p.m., with a few exceptions. Door prizes will be given away throughout the day.

READY TO BOWL – Elaine Paugh and Melissa Albert, Lunch Buddies at Broad Ford Elementary School, prepare for the Big Brothers Big Sisters Bowl for Kids' Sake event slated for Saturday, March 29, at Par-Matt Lanes, Oakland. All proceeds benefit Garrett County Big Brothers Big Sisters community-based and school-based mentoring programs. For information, persons may call Joan Johnson, county coordinator, at 301-334-3591 or 1-800-400-0735. See story for more details.

GC Nipped By Louisburg In District Debut, 65-64

A crucial lapse in the fundamentals of basketball helped doom the Garrett College men in Friday's NJCAA District III Tournament opener, as Louisburg (N.C.) took a one-point lead in the closing seconds of a hard-fought battle to clinch a 65-64 win. Up by one with 35 seconds to go, Laker hopes soared as Louisburg missed a foul shot and Garrett had a shot at gaining possession of the ball and solid control of the game, but GC failed to box out for the rebound, letting Louisburg's Charleston Long grab the carom off the rim. A Garrett foul put Charleston back on the line immediately, and he sank both attempts to put Louisburg on top for the one-point margin of victory.

"It was a tough way to lose," Laker skipper Dennis Gibson commented afterward. "It shows how a little mistake can have a big impact. We played a good game, although we were a little flat emotionally, and basically controlled the tempo for the first 35 minutes. Our defense was great, but our rebounding was not consistent, and it broke down when we needed it most. I'm still real proud of our guys' performance; we've had a great run through the regular season and post season."

Garrett rolled up a 32-28 halftime lead, and was in the driver's seat for the first two-thirds of the second half. With the Lakers up by five with three minutes to play, the tide began to turn when Louisburg's game-high scorer Chad Kinch and GC's Kevin Essex launched a shooter's battle. Over the next 2½ minutes Kinch found his targets with three consecutive three-point salvos during a four-of-five run from the field, and Essex netted six straight points. The flurry ended with Garrett holding a one-point lead, 64-63, with Louisburg in possession of the ball.

A Laker foul sent Long to the charity stripe, where he missed the front end of a one-on-one; however, when a pair of GC rebounders missed their blocking assignments, Long grabbed the rebound and got off another field goal attempt. A second straight Garrett infraction gave Long a chance to redeem himself at the foul line, and he did just that in bagging both attempts to put Louisburg up by one.

Playing for the last shot, Garrett worked the clock down to eight seconds before calling a timeout to work an inbounds play designed to free up Essex for the potential game-winner. The referees took the ball out of Garrett's hands, however, when Essex was whistled for a charge while driving across the baseline. The thrills were not over, however, as a quickly implemented full-court Laker press led to a steal by GC's Rashaun Copeland. Gibson called another timeout and drew up another play, but the Lakers' final shot missed its mark as the buzzer sounded.

"We had plenty of opportunities all evening, but it seemed like we kept giving them away," observed Gibson. "Not to make excuses, but we'd go on a nice run and then make a mistake or give them a lucky break that would bring Louisburg back into the game. We may have had a bit of a let-down after the super emotionally charged wins over Hagerstown and Allegany in the region tourney. We just weren't as emotionally 'up' for this game as we should have been, and that kept us from going out there and making things go our way."

Essex and teammate Lee Parris shared top scoring honors for the Lakers with 16 points each, but both had a tough time concentrating at the foul line as they hit four of seven attempts and two of seven tries, respectively. Parris yanked down a team-high 11 rebounds, but as a unit Louisburg claimed the advantage on the boards, 42-38. GC held sway in the assists column, 15-12, as Essex dished out four scoring passes to lead the Lakers.

Louisburg was paced by 21 points from Kinch, who bagged a total of five three-pointers, and Long added 16 points.

Despite the heartbreaking loss, Gibson remained proud of his team's yearlong successes. "It's been a great run for us. The team showed a lot of heart all season, and we put ourselves in a situation where we could have easily been in the championship game," the coach stated.

"I'm real excited about the future. We're going to miss our departing sophomores, but the freshmen learned a lot and are already in the gym working to correct individual weaknesses. They know what they have to do for next season, and are hungry for another shot.

"It's been great to get all the support from all over the country that's been coming in over the past few days after our Region XX title win over Allegany. We're still getting phone calls, e-mails, and faxes from former players and coaches, and Garrett College alumni and other supporters. We really hit a nerve with our win, because we've always been the underdog in western Maryland. Now that we've shown what we can do, we can't wait for next year."

Catonsville Eliminates Lakers From Region XX Tournament

The Garrett College women's basketball team stumbled in its Region XX Tournament opener as the Lakers fell to the Catonsville Cougars 73-67 Friday evening in Frederick. The GC squad finishes the year with an overall 16-8 mark, and bragging rights to the Maryland JUCO crown after its stunning romp through the conference field two weeks ago on its McHenry floor.

Friday's contest pitted the Lakers with a unit they had split with in their first two outings, as Catonsville took the first meeting in overtime before Garrett roared back to bag the Cougars by 20 in JUCO play. During the first half of the regional opener, Catonsville got off to an early five-point lead and maintained that margin throughout much of the stanza. Garrett refused to throw in the towel, however, and instituted a full-court press with five minutes remaining in the half that pressured the Cougars into making repeated mistakes.

The half closed with the Lakers holding a substantial eight-point lead, 37-29.

Catonsville's chalk talk in the halftime locker room paid off in a strategy that broke the Garrett press early in the second stanza. The Cougars evened the score in short order, then the squads battled back-and-forth in an evenly played contest until the five-minute mark. At that point Catonsville exploded for a scoring run that put the Cougars up by 10, but the scrappy Laker women fought back to knot the score at 60-all with just under three minutes remaining.

The contest ground down to the wire in a see-saw battle, but when they fell behind the Lakers were forced to foul, and the ice-water veined Cougars stepped to the free-throw line time and time again to sink their charity attempts and, eventually, Garrett's hopes. GC ended up losing by six points to the much more powerful squad, which had been nationally ranked during the regular season.

LaSha Anderson paced the Lakers with 35 points, including four three-point buckets, while Angel Kendall netted 11 and Tiffany McFarland recorded nine. Catonsville's Melissa Workman led the balanced victors' offense with 21 points, while Stephanie Watts and Michelle Singletary hit for 14 apiece.

Garrett, which outrebounded the Cougars by a 46-41 margin, got nine pull-downs from McFarland and seven from Anderson. Kendall dished out four assists and snagged three steals.

"It was a tough bracket to open with a team like Catonsville, but we played well and could have won this one," GC head coach Steve Willison commented afterward. "We really wanted to win at least one Region XX game."

The Laker skipper's wish may be deferred, but not denied, until next season, when Garrett returns with a strong sophomore class and a bevy of top freshmen recruits. "We were in the thick of every game we lost this year except for two," said Willison. "Only a pair of our losses were by more than six points. We're still very happy with our first JUCO title, and have already set even loftier goals for next season."

school assessment, the committee felt it essential to schedule as many days as possible before the end of May."

The last day of school for students will be Monday, June 16, unless any additional days are missed, Teets added.

Fourteen days have been missed to date for the school year. The five days built into the calendar for weather, plus the three days added at the end in June, the three days granted from the state, the day made up on Jan. 31, and the two on Easter Monday and Memorial Day equal 14 days.

vious years, remain unknown. Several people were given lengthy prison terms after grossly unfair trials before special courts. Torture and ill-treatment of political prisoners and detainees were systematic." That assessment has been basically repeated by AI for decades—How much longer do the Iraqi people have to wait for something even resembling the freedoms we enjoy?

•Some would have us continue to "contain" Hussein and his weapons capability indefinitely, without resorting to war. The same strategy was tried with Hitler in the 1930s, and failed. Just carry today's containment argument backward to that time; if a 30-foot wall had been built around Germany that Hitler couldn't have 'broken out of,' would that have made it OK for him to brutalize his own people as long as he didn't pose a threat to any other country?

•France is trying to stop any change in the Iraq situation that results from military action; however, the French oil company Unacol is the heaviest investor in the current oil economy in Iraq, and French president Chirac has described himself as "a personal friend of Saddam Hussein." Could there be a conflict of interest here in wanting to see that the flow of oil to France remains as it is?

•When the news pictures are broadcast from this weekend's peace march in Washington, prominently displayed will be the slogan "War is Not the ANSWER," a play on the name of the international organization organizing and promoting this and other such marches around the world. ANSWER's own web page lists its small steering committee that sets its agenda, and one of those steering committee members is the "Korea Truth Commission." Although ANSWER does not explain what that group is, the KTC's own web page lists a mission statement that begins stating its desire to put American veterans and soldiers on trial for war crimes in Korea, past and present; it also lists the goal of eliminating the American presence from the Korean peninsula, so that the two Koreas can be reunited. Is it just me, or does this sound exactly like North Korean dictator Kim Jong Il talking?

•There's a lot of talk in some circles, including my own Catholic faith, about the "Just War" theory, which doesn't match up with apparent U.S. intentions at this point. What about a "Just Peace?" With all due respect to three figures that I count as my own personal heroes—Pope John Paul II, Nelson Mandela, and Jimmy Carter—I beg to differ with their stances. Could the good-willed desire for peace cloud the difference between good and evil?

•George Bush won our presidency with just under 50 percent of the popular vote, and the slightest of majorities in the Electoral College as mandated under our Constitution; by way of contrast, Saddam Hussein routinely wins elections with 99-100 percent of the Iraqi vote; yet Bush is being criticized around the world. Who has the more valid mandate to lead his country?

•Finally, and this is not italicized because I assert this is a fact, and not just my "angle"—No one, including George Bush, "WANTS" a war; but the burden is on Hussein to prevent one from happening. I did not vote for George Bush, and still disagree with most of his policies; however, I now support his stand on Iraq wholeheartedly, and admire him for standing up for what he believes is right. He's gambling his administration, his political party, his re-election, and his reputation on this one issue—face it, he has everything to lose—worst of all, many American and Iraqi lives—on this.

Bush couldn't possibly be doing this for any other reason than he believes he is right, and it's about time a president took a risk for what he believes is the right thing.

Funds Cut

with a "totally new formula."

It will be two or three months before Congress appropriates funds for the program, said House Appropriations Committee spokesman John Scofield.

Since 1990, more than 120 projects in western Maryland have been completed with ARC support, according to the state Department of Planning. The wide variety allows the programs to have a far-reaching effect.

"No one in western Maryland hasn't been touched by the ARC dollars," Mazer said. Each year, Maryland's three western counties develop a regional plan and submit a prioritized list of projects to the Tri-County Council, which combines the lists and works its way down until it runs out of money, she said.

Each project must support the regional plan. In the future, the region should focus on technology and communications, Mazer said. "If western Maryland is going to continue to advance, we still have a need for funding," she said.

One recent project, a technology business incubator on the campus of Garrett College, had its grand opening in June 2002. Since then around 10 companies have moved into office space at the Garrett Information Enterprise Center, employing nearly 30 employees.

Before the center opened, Jay Shoup ran his advertising, web and graphic design firm out of his bedroom. Moving into a real office building was a "drastic improvement," he said.

The center includes rooms for meetings and training, as well as access to all of the Garrett College facilities, such as video conferencing, the library and computer labs.

"Since it is an incubator program, it enabled me to keep my overhead low and create more jobs," he said. After the move, Shoup hired two full-time employees and is looking for two more, he said.

Shoup appreciates the ability to have high-speed Internet access instead of the dial-up access he had at home. "The best we ever got was 28.8," he said. "Now we're T1, and it thinks faster than we can."

With just weeks until planners must begin deciding which projects to pursue, they are anxious to see whether the proposed budget cuts will leave funds for other such projects.

"In today's fiscal climate you can't be confident of anything, but we're going to lobby very hard to reinstate the funding," Bartlett said.

I would like to thank all the voters of Oakland who took the time to show their support by electing me to another term on the Oakland Town Council.

that help Garrett County families and children.

More than 700 children are served in 20 LMB programs in the county, added Phyllis Trickett. All Garrett County citizens will be affected if the board is eliminated, she said.

"If there is a cut in programs," said Beverly Beard, who has 40 years of experience as a social worker in the county, "there will surely be an increase in alcoholism, divorce, spousal abuse, and drugs. Our children are our future. If we don't take care of them, we will be in trouble 20 years from now."

After-school program directors Linda Green and Venessa Stacy also asked that their programs not be completely eliminated. "I'm asking that you just consider some funding," said Green. "We can survive with some funds."

Stacy stressed the importance of the program in helping students make healthy choices, have a safe place to go to after school, and improve their socialization skills.

Hafer said he and Edwards understood their concerns and were proud of those in the county who care for and help children.

The possible cut to LMB is just one of several suggestions made by budget advisory committees this session in an effort to balance the budget and reduce the state deficit.

"It's not easy," said Edwards about deciding what programs to cut in order to balance the budget. "But we have a problem that has to be solved."

If programs are cut, however, he suggested that residents write to Governor Erhlich and request that funding for them be included in a supplemental budget.

"The budget appears far from being settled," noted Hafer. Edwards added that the budget must be approved by April 7, the day the General Assembly is scheduled to adjourn. If not, this year's session will have to be extended. He also noted that any bills not approved by April 7 would be stalled.

Bobby Andersen, Troy Ellington, Tom Sheehan, and Barbara Pritts also voiced their concerns about a bill that could increase the weight limit on certain county roads. They were afraid the weight increase would lead to increased truck traffic and accidents on Sand Flat Road.

Gary Sisler, Sisler Lumber Company, said the legislation would allow trucks to carry only 7,000 more pounds. The truck would still be the same size. He also pointed out that the bill would just enable the county commissioners to decide which of the 100 or so roads in the county would be allowed the increase.

"It's not a question of the size or weight of the trucks," said Bill Weissgerber, adding that the bill did give the Sand Flat safety issue a chance to be brought up. "Something needs to be done with the road."

Oakland businessman David Moe supports the bill. He said he understood the safety issues, but noted that heavy traffic also created safety problems in Oakland because heavier trucks cannot travel on county roads and must go through the town. He added that he saw an elderly women hit by a truck in front of his business at the corner of Third and Alder streets.

"I have no idea if the bill will pass or not," said Edwards. An amendment has been added to the bill which would require that a road be up to certain state and federal specifications before the weight increase could be allowed.

Commissioner Fred Holliday thanked the lawmakers for "bringing Annapolis a little closer" to people of Garrett County. He also thanked the residents for expressing their concerns, adding that the commissioners' office was always open to them.

Edwards and Hafer noted that their doors were also open and invited residents to call them in Annapolis with their concerns. The delegate's number is 800-492-7122, ext. 3435. Hafer may be reached at the same number at extension 3545.

Detailed information about proposed legislation may be found on the General Assembly's web site at mlis.state.md.us.

presence, the Colonial period, the National Road period, the age of the railroad, the early automobile period, and the post-World War II period.

Secondary themes are identified as transportation, man and nature, historic recreation, and cultural uniqueness.

"Under each secondary theme, the plan lists several 'stories' and sites that tell that story," said committee member Peggy Santamaria, Garrett County Chamber of Commerce. "For instance, part of the county's tale of historic recreation is the story of Mountain Lake Park, which can be experienced by visiting the town's historic district, the ticket booth, and the site of the former amphitheater."

"We have a very dedicated group of people serving on this committee," said Morgan. "It includes representatives of county offices and municipal governments as well as citizens from all areas of the county. All have worked toward creating this cohesive vision of our unique heritage."

No date has been set for this plan to be presented to the commissioners for consideration. The initial study was funded jointly be the Garrett County commissioners and the Appalachian Regional Commission.

Budget Crisis

erally represents the departments of Social Services, Juvenile Justice, and county Health Departments, plus public school systems.

"Abolishing the Maryland LMBs appears to be a poor fiscal decision as well as contrary to the purpose, mission, and spirit of the Act mandating their existence," Oxford remarked. "It would be a shame if LMBs' role as a neutral convener around children and family issues were lost.

"In Garrett County, for example, our LMB has undertaken a variety of successful initiatives and collaborations that have resulted in an on-line Family Services Directory, the Healthy Families after-school programs, and the Family Preservation program.

"In addition, some projects such as the 'welfare to work,' Individual Development Accounts, and the micro business programs have received or are receiving 'gap' money through our Partnership," Oxford continued. "Under the LMB model, these projects were farmed out to service providers in the county; however, they were a direct product of LMBs' endeavors."

The LMBs have created significant savings for local jurisdictions by decreasing the number of costly high-risk services to youth and reinvesting those dollars in early prevention services for children 0-5 years old—"the most critical years for preventing risk behaviors later in life, such as crime, teen pregnancy, and drug abuse," Oxford pointed out.

"Garrett County was the first county in the state to successfully bring home all of its children from out-of-state placement and has maintained this practice since 1996. In addition to creating county-based resources for these high-risk youth, this collaborative action has earned the county an estimated half-million dollars for reinvestment projects like the public school STAR program, Alternative Education and activity buses and Community Action's parent development programs.

"LMB-secured funds have also been used to promote safe and caring communities and self-sufficiency with support to the domestic violence shelter fund-raising campaign, Garrett Works AmeriCorps, and a range of activities of the Teen Pregnancy Prevention Coalition," stated Oxford.

For more information about Maryland's LMBs, persons may contact the Governor's Office for Children, Youth, and Families at 410-767-4160, or consult the agency's Web site at www.ocyf.state.md.us. Persons interested in making their views known to the state assembly may contact Del. George Edwards at 1-800-492-7122, ext. 3435, or Sen. John Hafer at the same toll-free number, ext. 3565.

Board Submits

trons, improving staff skills, and upgrading infrastructure, said Demaree.

"We're very optimistic about our future," the president added, especially with the new library branch that should be built by November in Grantsville.

Because of the new facility, however, the board anticipates it will need more funding this year to add four more employees to the Grantsville staff. The current staff's hours will also have to be increased in order to accommodate the increase in patronage at the new branch.

The board would also like to provide a 4 percent cost-of-living pay raise for its 26 employees, said Ashby. She noted that the raise would encourage them to keep up their skills and make their wages more competitive with others in their field.

Sandra Bellow said she and the other members of the Garrett County Democratic Central Committee support the library's request for funding. She asked the commissioners to grant the library's full request for the sake of the children in the county.

New books are usually the first items that suffer when budgets are cut, noted Marilyn Moors, president of the Friends of Ruth Enlow Library. She also asked for the full budget request so that the board could provide more new materials for residents.

Jack Caruthers stressed that the library was an important asset in helping residents acquire knowledge and skills, which resulted in better paying jobs. He noted that mystery writer Martha Grimes began her lucrative career with information that she obtained from the Ruth Enlow Library.

"She got her start right here at the Oakland library," he said.

Kitzmiller wood carver Jimmy Harvey has also begun a new career making violins. "He did so by going to the library and reading a book on violin making and looking at other books to see how instruments are made," said Kitzmiller business woman Kathy DeWitt, former Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library board member.

She said she also helped him get his Web site up and going. Harvey is now advertising his products on the Internet.

Commissioner David Beard noted that, though he is new to board of commissioners, he was not a stranger to the library. "Providing books to help people to get training to get jobs has been a lifetime goal of mine," said Beard, who is a former school teacher.

"We have been exceptionally friendly to the library over the years," said Commissioner Fred Holliday, noting that county funding had increased from $310,000 in 1999 to $590,000 last year. He added, however, that money was going to be "tight" this year because of the state's budget woes.

Just one example, the commissioner said, was a projected $1.75 million cut in highway user funds to Garrett County.

The library's FY 2004 capital budget is $88,700, which includes a new boiler for Oakland, air conditioning at Kitzmiller, news signage for stacks at Grantsville and Accident, and furniture and outside signage at Friendsville.

The board also anticipates that it will need $10,000 to demolish a house next to the Oakland library. The old house was donated to the library for its expansion.

According to someone who does restoration work, Ashby said, it would cost $200,000 to restore the house to residential standards for tenants.

"The library doesn't want to get into the landlord business," she said about the possibility of the house being turned into apartments to generate income for the library.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg said the commissioners would do their best to accommodate the board's budget request. He added that they may have to meet again to go over the request some more before actual final approval.

SHS Alum Earns Multiple Awards For Magazine

Part-time Garrett County resident and Southern High School graduate Wendy Grove Kedzierski has been awarded five editorial honors by the national association Parenting Publications of America (PPA) for her work as publisher and editor of Child Guide magazine, a regional parenting magazine based in Charles Town, W.Va. The PPA awards are given in recognition of editorial excellence and outstanding visual presentation in parenting publications.

Kedzierski's Child Guide, which won two bronze and three gold awards for editorial excellence, is a free publication that is distributed in six school districts and through stores, doctors' offices, hospitals, and businesses along the Interstate 81 corridor from Winchester, Va., through Hagerstown.

Kedzierski credited her contributing team of writers, photographer, salespeople, and business manager. "Child Guide has such a great group assembled," she said. "The people behind the publication — whether they're bylined or not — are a pretty powerful force. They're creative, enthusiastic, and always striving for journalistic excellence. And most importantly, they are passionate about good parenting."

WINS PUBLISHING AWARDS — Child Guide magazine publisher and editor Wendy Grove Kedzierski, right, is shown accepting the Parenting Publications of America (PPA) Gold Medal for Journalistic Excellence from organization president Donna Jefferson. The award was one of five honors that Child Guide earned at the recent PPA convention in Atlanta. A Southern High School graduate and part-time resident of Garrett County, Kedzierski told The Republican "I fee! very strongly about the high caliber of students that matriculate through the Garrett County school system, and the excellent quality education that students can achieve here." The honoree is the daughter of Virginia M. Grove of Mtn. Lake Park.

The PPA awards ceremony took place in Atlanta recently after a three-day conference, which included seminars by leading publishing experts including Diane DeBrovner, a senior editor of the nationally acclaimed Parents Magazine. Established in 1988, PPA is the only international trade association exclusively for regional parenting publications. It has over 120 members, including magazines such as Washington Parent, Baltimore's Child, and Chicago Parent.

Kedzierski, who graduated from Southern High in 1985, is the daughter of Virginia M. Grove of Mtn. Lake Park.

"With over 30,000 visitors a year, we want to be able to give visitors a reason to return. Therefore, a new look and new material are important, as we want people to come discover what there is at the center."

MOUNTAIN MADNESS WEEKEND THANK YOU

Dunk In A Blizzard?
Reggae In the Rain?
S'now Problem!

Despite the 54" of snow that fell on Garrett County one week earlier the rain that greeted the Mountain on the night of the Wisp Tubes of Fire Mountain Reggae Fest, and the 18" of ice that covered Deep Creek Lake for the MSP Deep Creek Dunk, the 2003 Special Olympics Maryland Mountain Madness Weekend was an incredible success, raising $60,000 for the athletes who train and compete in SOMD throughout the year.
None of these events would have been possible without the unwavering support from the community.
You came, you reggaed in the rain, and you Dunked "in the lake, on the lake", and for all that and more, Special Olympics Maryland thanks you!

TV PIPELINE

'Sue Thomas' star also deaf in real life

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Deanne Bray

Q: Is the star of the Pax series "Sue Thomas, F.B. Eye" deaf in real life? What can you tell us about her? –T. Dolan, Denver.

A: Actress Deanne Bray, 31, was born with a severe hearing loss that doctors surmise may have been related to German measles. She is deaf in her right ear, but uses a hearing aid in her left ear, where she has some residual hearing.

In addition to starring in her fact-based and well-received new Pax series, Bray teaches deaf and hard-of-hearing children. She is married to deaf actor Troy Kotsur.

Q: What was the show in which Jerry O'Connell played a superpowered boy some years ago? –A. Gerritsen, Calumet Park, Ill.

A: You're thinking of "My Secret Identity," a 1988-91 syndicated series that starred O'Connell as Andrew Clements, an average 14-year-old who received superpowers when he was accidentally exposed to experimental radiation.

Q: I understood that Disney had made a "Nancy Drew" TV movie with Maggie Lawson that was supposed to air last October, but it hasn't aired yet. What happened? –A.H., Flint, Mich.

A: In a case of routine rescheduling, ABC's updated "Nancy Drew," which saw the character entering college, finally aired on Dec. 15, where it tanked, coming in fourth in its time period.

Q: Is Henry Brandon, who played Chief Scar in John Wayne's "The Searchers," still alive? –H. McNamara, New Bern, N.C.

A: No, the Berlin-born actor, who earned his first screen credit under the name Harry Kleinbach in the 1934 Laurel and Hardy version of "Babes in Toyland," suffered a fatal heart attack in 1990 at age 77. Two years earlier, he had appeared in his last film, "Wizards of the Lost Kingdom II."

Q: Can you tell me why Lorraine Toussaint was killed off on "Crossing Jordan"? –S. Booth, West Palm Beach, Fla.

A: The NBC publicist for the show reports that this surprise plot twist was built into the role when Toussaint signed on last fall for the limited story arc. It was intended as a surprise to viewers, and it appears to have done the trick.

Q: Before she was cast as Lt. Loren Singer, didn't Nanci Chambers play another character in an earlier episode of "JAG"? –T.R.P., Baraboo, Wis.

A: Good catch! Before joining "JAG" as Lt. Singer in November 1999, Chambers appeared in a 1997 episode called "Washington Holiday."

IN A NUTSHELL

Did you know Maryland has a state fossil shell? In 1984 the shell of the Ecphora gardnerae Wilson, an extinct marine snail or gastropod, was so named. The Ecphora inhabited the Chesapeake Bay during the Miocene Era. Ecphora snails were predators. Their prey probably included other snails, bivalves (two-shelled mollusks) like clams and oysters, crustaceans, corals, and marine worms. An Ecphora shell found in St. Mary's County in 1685 was one of the first North American fossils illustrated in European scientific works.

HICKORY'S HEAVENS

News from the Planetarium

By James Hart, Teacher

Magnitude is a scale used by astronomers to measure the brightness of objects in space. The scale is based on the work of Hipparchus, an ancient astronomer in 125 B.C. First magnitude stars are the brightest stars, and the next brightest are the second magnitude. The faintest stars visible to the naked eye are the sixth magnitude stars. Since Hipparchus's time the scale has been extended to negative numbers. The sun's apparent magnitude is negative 27 and the moon is negative 13.

High in the south after sunset stands one of the most familiar constellations—Orion the Hunter. His shoulders are the bright stars Betelgeuse and Bellatrix, and his feet are Rigel and Saiph, also bright. These stars frame his three belt stars. Fifth graders learn to identify this constellation in the planetarium sky. In addition, Canis Major, Canis Minor, Taurus, Gemini, and Cancer are also observed with the aid of a star map.

The planetarium lesson gives the students an opportunity to perform like astronomers by devising their own magnitude classification systems. They can use numbers, letters, or symbols and compare their scales with the other students. After the exercise the class votes on the best classification system.

CRP TEST

Dear Savvy Senior:

Have you heard of a new study out that basically says cholesterol tests are not a good indicator of heart attack and stroke danger? I don't know where it came from, but I find this news very alarming. My father died of a heart attack at age 56 and my mother suffered from high blood pressure much of her life, so my clogged genetic history tells me to look out. If a cholesterol test isn't a good measuring stick for us hypertensive old folks, what is?

Thank you,
Serious as a Heart Attack

Dear Serious,

According to a new study, cholesterol tests aren't necessarily bad measuring sticks, they just don't tell you the whole story! New studies show that simmering, painless inflammation deep within the body is the single most powerful trigger of heart attacks, worse even than high cholesterol.

Savvy Study: Published in the New England Journal of Medicine, the study followed almost 28,000 women for eight years. Fully 77 percent of those who had heart attacks or strokes had cholesterol in the normal range and 45 percent were in the ideal range. Not good!

The study also included a separate blood test that measures something called C-reactive protein, or CRP, a measure of inflammation deep within the body. The study found that the CRP test actually did a better job of predicting heart disease risk than cholesterol. Those with high levels of inflammation are twice as likely as those with high cholesterol to die from heart attacks and strokes.

Savvy Note: The two tests together did the best job of all, said study author Dr. Paul Ridker of Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston. In other words, individuals who have both these abnormalities are at very high risk. Individuals without either of them have relatively low risk.

Savvy Hypothesis: With Dr. Ridker's latest study, many believe the evidence is overwhelming that inflammation is a central factor in cardiovascular disease. Doctors believe inflammation has many possible sources. Often, the fatty build-ups that line the blood vessels become inflamed as white blood cells invade in a misguided defense attempt. Fat cells are also known to turn out these inflammatory proteins. Other possible triggers include high blood pressure, smoking, and lingering low-level infections, such as chronic gum disease.

Inflammation is thought to weaken the fatty buildups, or plaques, making them more likely to burst. A piece of plaque can then lead to a clot that can choke off the blood flow and cause a heart attack.

Savvy CRP Test: Experts are still divided over which patients to test and how to treat them if their CRP readings are high. Talk to your doctor or pharmacist about the CRP blood test.

Savvy Note: The CRP test can be tricky; it can jump as much as 10-fold when a person is fighting a cold or flu, and it shouldn't be used in place of a cholesterol test.

Savvy Tips To Lower Inflammation Levels: •Eat sensibly and exercise. Inactivity and obesity increase inflammatory proteins that can trigger heart attacks. People can substantially lower their levels of these proteins simply by improving their living habits.

•Moderate consumption of alcohol and fish oil.

•Not smoking and keeping blood pressure under control.

A variety of drugs may also do the trick, though many think more research is needed before doctors should actually begin prescribing them to lower inflammation. Cholesterol-lowering drugs called statins can reduce the inflammation and so does a daily dose of aspirin. (Check with your doctor first).

Perhaps you are hiking in the woods. You come onto a mountain stream where cool, clear water bubbles over pebbles and stones. The water is flowing toward...well, just where is the destination? At the end of its journey, this playful little stream could have become a mighty river. "But to me it's just a little stream," you say.

A mighty river is created from many little streams. With each joining tributary, meandering streams become part of a more powerful force moving with purpose toward their goal. That river might power homes or carry goods to another destination.

Like the little stream, each of us is capable of becoming part of a more powerful influence for good, for God's House is made up of many souls joining to form a spiritual river which can flow through the community, the state, the nation, and ultimately, the world. We read in John 7:38 where our Lord declares... "He who believes in me, as the scripture has said, 'Out of his heart shall flow rivers of living water.'"

Won't you let God's House be your destination this Sabbath?

Herbals: Precautions Are Similar to Drugs

Taking herbal (plant-derived) medications may be different from taking traditional medicines. However, approach herbals the same way you would conventional drugs. Herbals can have side effects, interactions with other drugs or disease states, and dose limits just as over-the-counter or prescription medicines do. The US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) does not regulate herbals the same way that they regulate prescription medicines. Therefore, it is very important to buy herbals from reliable sources.

Anyone with an impaired kidney, liver, or immune system should exercise caution before taking herbals. Pregnant or breast-feeding mothers, young children, and seniors need to exercise caution, as well.

Just because they are "natural" does not mean they are also safe. If you think you are experiencing a side effect from an herbal product, tell a health professional.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

DO YOU NOT CARE?

March 16, 2003

Background Scripture:
Mark 4:35 through 5:20.
Devotional Reading:
John 5:2-17.

Jesus and his disciples were crossing from Capernaum to the eastern shore of the Sea of Galilee. On the way, a great wind storm arose and, finding Jesus asleep in the stern, his disciples waken him with these reproachful words: "Teacher, do you not care if we perish?" (4:38). Years later, when Mark was writing his gospel, one might expect him to tone down these words (as Matthew and Luke do).The words sound impertinent.

None of us are likely to have ever said anything like this to Jesus, but some of us have certainly thought along these lines when we have been confronted by something dangerous and frightening. In one way or another—perhaps by the bedside of a dying loved one, or at the office when we have been told we're being 'let go,' or when a natural disaster is staring us in the face—we have asked: "Lord, don't you care?" So, we should not be so surprised by this reproach from Jesus' disciples.

It is what Jesus said to the disciples after he stilled the storm that trouble us: "Why are you afraid? Have you no faith?" This 'faith' is trust in God and relying on his help. Didn't they realize that he would save them from the storm? The answer, I think, is both yes and no. They must have looked to him for rescue or they would not have reproached him. It indicates that they thought he could help them, but that he had not.

Fear vs Faith

Many of us are fearful about many things because we don't really trust in God to help us. Fear paralyzes us and is the antithesis of faith. If we trust God, we should fear nothing, trusting that the power and grace of God are more powerful than any danger or threat. Fear means that we believe in our obstacles more than we believe in God.

Civil War General John B. McClellan, was a popular commander of whom, from President Lincoln on down to the buck private, people expected great things. But he had a fatal flaw: he could not bring himself to employ his armies effectively because of his persistent irrational belief that the enemy he faced was many times stronger than his own forces, even when, in fact, they were often half his strength. Many of us fail to live up to our potential because we magnify our obstacles and minimize our resources.

Still, I must ask, what, then, was it that the disciples of Jesus should have known? Should they have known that God would not permit them to perish on the Sea of Galilee?

Should they have known that God would not permit any of them to end up on crosses? Even if Jesus was in the same boat in a terrible storm, and even if he was the Messiah and the Son of God, should they have believed that none of them would be swept overboard?

What Guarantee?

In The Pilgrim's Progress is this prayer which I often use in the evening: "Visit, O Lord, this dwelling, and drive from it all the snares of the enemy; let thy holy angels dwell in it to preserve us in peace, and may thy blessing be upon us evermore; through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen." I use it as a prayer for God's presence and protection during the night. But, when I pray it, do I have a guarantee that no burglar will break in, or that my house won't catch on fire? If I get on an airplane, train or ship and pray for a safe trip, am I guaranteed against all dangers? Well no, there's no guarantee. But does having faith mean that I should expect a 'guarantee'? No

Hummel Figurines

Q. I have more than a dozen Hummel figurines I would like to sell. How can I find a market for them? — Ernie, Crossville, Tenn.

A. Hummel figurines were the creation of Berta Hummel, a German artist. When she was 18, she enrolled in the Academy of Fine Arts in Munich. In 1934, she entered the Convent of Siessen, where as Sister Maria Innocentia she continued her art work. The following year, the W. Goebel Company of Rodental, Germany, manufactured figurines based on her sketches, and they were an immediate hit with collectors.

The Hummel Collector's Club is one of the better clearinghouses for Hummel figurines. Its address is 1261 University Drive, Yardley, PA 19067. The toll-free telephone number is 1-888-5-HUMMEL.

Peaceful Coexistence

Q. We're adopting a 3-month-old Springer spaniel soon and wonder how he will adapt to our fully grown cat — and vice versa. Is there a method to ease the cat's transition into a two-pet home? — Jacob S., Pittsburgh

A. You may discover a few bumps along the road to peaceful coexistence between your older cat and the new puppy, but with patience you can ride them out. The most important tool to ease the upcoming transition is consistent training — more so the puppy than the cat.

Your cat already sees the house as "his" home, and he will almost certainly take offense to the new family member. When you bring the puppy home, the cat will probably hiss, take swipes at puppy's delicate nose, and hide for up to several weeks. You won't be able to change this behavior, so you must control how your puppy interacts with the cat.

Crating is important with this sort of transition. Ensure that your puppy is in his crate at night and during short unsupervised periods (no more than two hours at first). Place him in the crate at the same time every day. Puppy will begin to build a structured life, and kitty will have a dog-free house to himself at predictable hours.

During first interactions between cat and dog, keep the puppy on a leash and make sure the cat has access to several hiding places. Give both animals treats when they see each other to reinforce the "cat/dog equals good" impression. Most of all, give the process time. If your cat doesn't calm down somewhat after three or four months, if he attacks the puppy regularly or if he shows other signs of stress, consult a veterinarian.

Nature Connection

By Liz McDowell and Ron Boyer

You're skiing along a ridge in Savage River State Forest following some old tracks that you set a few days earlier. The sky is blue and the landscape is white except for the deep green conifers that tower around you. As you kick-and-glide down the trail, you spy a color out of place in this winter view. Up ahead it looks as though a vandal has taken a wide brush and painted the ski track black. The solid swath is roughly 10 feet in length surrounded by a splattering of additional paint. And then it hits you—you've seen that speckled pattern before, resembling scattered grains from the careless handling of a pepper-shaker by a picnicker. Dropping low to the ground for a closer look you witness the "paint drops" and "pepper grains" come to life. This wasn't the work of a vandal. You were simply lucky enough to ski into an incredibly large population of snow fleas, Achorutes nivicolus.

The name "snow flea," though quite descriptive of when they can be found and how they move, is actually quite misleading. These primitive, wingless insects eat pollen, fungi, and decaying vegetation, as opposed to the blood of birds and mammals. They are minute, measuring no more than one-sixth of an inch in length, with fewer abdominal segments than most insects. These dark-gray to black insects move by means of a special appendage on their abdomen called a furcula. This two-prong structure is folded forward under the abdomen and held in place by what are best described as clasps. When these are released, the furcula springs backward propelling the snow flea into the air; hence the other common name for this insect —springtail. Interestingly enough, one expert reports that springtails are unable to control their flight path and frequently land back in the same place. Unluckily, this writer did not make similar observations. In fact, time and again just as my macro-lens was focused on an individual snow flea it would leap well out of the range of the camera's viewfinder.

Springtails are members of the insect order Collembola. Over 6,000 species have been described worldwide, with over 300 species in North America alone. Their habitats range from volcanoes to lakes to polar ice caps and everywhere in between. Their colors vary from white to black and include vivid yellows and purples. What they share in common is a ventral tube on their abdomen used for breathing, regulating their water content and adhering to surfaces. The "sticking" function of this tube was first identified by scientists and resulted in the order name Collembola, meaning "glue peg."

Snow fleas are an important part of the food web, compensating for their tiny size by their countless numbers. Most of the year, you'd never know they existed—but in Garrett County on warm winter days from January to March, you have the chance to take a peek at their world. So before the snows completely melt take a close look at that dirty snow. It may just be soot, but then again it may be a congregation of mating snow fleas.

Healthy Families Enters Fifth Year Of Service In GC

In its fifth year of serving families, Healthy Families Garrett County is a voluntary home visitation program offered by the Garrett County Health Department, at no cost to the family. It is a prevention program created to assure that Garrett County children are healthy and enter school ready to learn.

"We help prevent problems, rather than go back to correct them," said Earleen Beckman, director. "We know what we are doing works."

Parenting is a difficult job with a lot of stress, concerns, and questions, she said. It does not come with an owner's manual.

Parents are the strongest influence in their children's lives. Healthy Families answers questions about pregnancy and nutrition and provides information on other community resources.

The staff not only provide information about other agencies that can be of help, but also help with the paperwork and even with transportation if necessary. Programs include Better Life Skills, Healthy Start, Alcohol, Tobacco and Other Drugs, Lactation Consultant, Maryland Children's Health Program, and Enhanced Teen Services for teen parents and their partners and families.

"Parents as Teachers" is a family education program based on the belief that parents are the first and most influential teachers of their children and that children learn more and at a faster pace during the first few years of their life. Trained professionals provide information to the families for each stage of the child's early life. Books and other materials also are available.

With the help of Healthy Families, 5-year-old Kristen Elana Lang is ready to start kindergarten in the fall and 9-month-old Andrew Leo Lang Jr. is getting a better start in life.

"They have been very helpful with everything," said mother April Rodeheaver. "They helped me with all of my pregnancies."

Any pregnant woman or family with a child less than 3 months old is eligible. Services are offered until the child is 5 years old or moves into another early childhood program, such as Head Start.

Healthy Families was designed to fill gaps. There are no income guidelines. "We help the parent help the child get off to a good start," said Beckman. "Parents are part of what happens."

Some parents only want information that can help them do the best for their children. Home visiting support is determined by need and/or desire of the family.

Service is tailored to the family. Some need weekly visits, others only monthly or quarterly visits. Participants can discontinue service at any time.

According to a Healthy Families spokesperson, in 2002, 567 families received services. Healthy Families helped 111 children under 1 year old, 92 under 2, 70 under 3, 62 under 4 and 12 under 5. Healthy Families serves people throughout the county. Last year, 64.4 percent of families receiving weekly or bi-weekly visits had household income below $20,000.

The first half of 2003, 502 families received services. The program was certified in 2001, having met more than 140 standards. "We do satisfaction surveys," Beckman said. "People really like the service."

George Guthrie and his wife Martha agree. "We love it," he said. "The boys look forward to their coming."

Four-and-a-half-year-old Eric and 2-year-old Ryan look forward to the visits. Karen Keefer of the Health Department reads books to them, helps them with their motor skills, and with problem solving. She also provides nutrition information, gives the parents papers with activities to do with the boys and refers them to other agencies that can provide help.

"We are extremely fortunate to have this program," said Keefer. "We couldn't do this without funding by the Partnership for Children and Families."

"This is just one of the programs funded by the Local Management Board," said Susan Athey-Oxford, president of the Partnership for Children and Families. "We want to continue providing this service to the families of Garrett County, and unfortunately the Department of Legislative Services has recommended that these services be cut to balance the state's budget deficit."

For every dollar spent on Healthy Families, $3 is saved on later drug, crime and other deep-end, expensive services, according to Oxford.

For more information about the program, persons may call 301-334-7720 or 895-3111. For information about the Partnership for Children and Families Inc. and the programs it funds that have been targeted to be cut statewide, persons may call 301-334-1189.

New Housing Svcs. Director Joins GCCAC

Cynthia A. Sharon has been appointed to be the new housing services director for the Garrett County Community Action Committee, where she will direct and manage the agency's housing service programs for the county's low and moderate income families.

Prior to joining GCCAC, Sharon served as the executive director of Cumberland Neighborhood Housing Services.

"Having purchased my first home through an affordable housing lender twenty years ago, I am a strong proponent of promoting self-sufficiency through affordable housing programs," stated Sharon. "The proceeds from the sale of our first home provided the down payment to purchase our second home eight years ago. Garrett County's growth over the past decade, to include the increase in real estate sales, is indicative of the tremendous opportunities available for all persons to make on [one] of the best investments in their lives—their home," she said.

"Community Action is delighted to have Sharon as part of our team," commented Pam Nelson, GCCAC vice president for Community Services and Family Development. "She brings with her more than 12 years of experience in working extensively with community volunteers, and federal, state, and local representatives helping empower families to purchase and rehabilitate their homes, and become more self-sufficient."

Sharon is an instructor of homebuyer education certified by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, the state of Maryland, and the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation. She graduated from Frostburg State University with a business administration degree. She resides in Swanton with her husband Tom, and the couple have two children, Josh and Jessica.

Housing and other community service information may be obtained by calling Garrett County Community Action at 301-334-9431, or toll free at 1-888-877-8403.

STRAIGHT FROM THE BEAR'S MOUTH — When it comes to learning about forest fire prevention and forest protection, who better to deliver the message than Smokey Bear himself? The famed bruin made a surprise visit at last week's session of the Nature for Tots program at the Deep Creek Lake Discovery Center, where he assisted park naturalist Todd Metz in bringing home the point: "Only you can prevent forest fires." Pictured from the left, in the front row, are James Dornburg, Matthew Dornburg, Daniel Bittinger, Ava Mucha, Heather Fridley, Ryan Miller, Brooklynn Flannigan, Kyleondar Diven, and Grace Mucha. In the back row are Metz, Smokey Bear, and DNR ranger Brian Friend. The Nature for Tots program now in its third year is a six-session course offered for 3-4 years olds during the winter months. "Through a serious of themed topics, I can interpret to the children ways they can preserve and protect our state's treasured natural resources," explained Metz.

Ehrlich To Bush: Snow Is Gone, Bills Remain, Please Send Money

by Elizabeth A. Shack
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Gov. Robert Ehrlich has requested federal aid for the $55 million that state and county governments spent on the Presidents' Day weekend snowstorm, one of the worst storms in state history.

In a letter sent last week to President Bush and the Federal Emergency Management Agency, Ehrlich asked for assistance for Baltimore City and all but six Maryland counties. The letter requested reimbursement for snow removal and for measures taken to protect public safety, including hauling snow to other locations, clearing storm drains to prevent flooding, and overtime work by state police and other state agencies.

The state's congressional delegation also wrote to the president last week, urging "swift approval" of the aid request.

"We have heard from eight of the 10 members [in the delegation], and expect all to sign it," said Jesse Jacobs, spokesman for Sen. Paul A. Sarbanes, D-Md.

The Maryland Emergency Management Agency compiled the request, based on cost reports from jurisdictions around the state, and sent it to the governor early last week, said MEMA spokesman Quentin Banks.

"Ultimately the total the state of Maryland will get depends upon the claims filed by the local jurisdictions," Banks said.

FEMA will decide how much aid, if any, the state will get after reviewing the request.

Ehrlich's letter said previous snowstorms this winter had caused several jurisdictions to go over their snow budgets by the time of the Presidents' Day storm. It ultimately covered parts of western Maryland with more than four feet of snow and left more than two feet on the ground at Baltimore/Washington International Airport, closing it for days.

Ehrlich declared a state of emergency on Feb. 16 and left it in place for a week because of concerns about possible flooding from heavy rains.

Sen. Barbara A. Mikulski had sent letters to both the governor and the president on Feb. 19 requesting swift action on aid. But MEMA was not able to deliver its recommendation to Ehrlich until early last week, as it waited for local and state agencies to report.

Ehrlich's letter last Wednesday came two weeks after the end of the storm and 10 days after he had lifted the state of emergency.

"I'm assuming it went onto the fast track after the state of emergency was called off" on Feb. 23, said Ehrlich spokeswoman Shareese DeLeaver.

Workshop Set To Discuss Behavior, Learning In Kids

A free workshop titled "Better Behavior, Better Learning" has been slated for 6 to 8 p.m. on Wednesday, March 26, in the conference room of the Overlook Judy Center in Oakland. The center is located at 41 High View Drive.

The program will be presented by family therapist Jack W. Spencer, MS, who will focus on tips and strategies for teachers and parents to help children learn responsible behavior and make better choices. Spencer will provide participants with practical information that can help them implement strategies for dealing with behavior problems and create a positive learning environment.

Some of the specific children's behaviors to be discussed will include: complaining about playmates; poking and touching; and hitting and pushing.

In Loving Memory
Of JUNIOR E. BITTINGER
Mar. 13, 1935 - Aug. 9, 1997
There's a special place within my heart that's meant for you alone. A special place within my heart reserved for times we've known. There's a special place for dreams we've shared, a place for wishes, too. And the warmest wish within my heart is to someday be with you.
Your loving wife, Shirley!

GUARDIANS OF THE NIGHT

Trust in me my friend for I am your comrade.
I will protect you with my last breath.
When all others have left you
And the loneliness of the night closes in,
I will be at your side.
Together we will conquer all obstacles
And search out those who might wish harm to others.
All I ask of you is compassion,
The caring touch of your hands.
It is for you that I will selflessly give my life
And spend my nights unrested.
Although our days together
May be marked by the passing of the seasons.
Know that each day at your side is my reward.
My days are measured by
The coming and going of your footsteps.
I anticipate them at the opening of the door.
You are the voice of caring when I am ill.
The voice of authority over me when I've done wrong.
Do not chastise me unduly
For I am your right arm,
The sword at your side.
I attempt only to do what you bid of me.
I seek only to please you and remain in your favor.
Together you and I shall experience
A bond only others like you will understand.
When outsiders see us together
Their envy will be measured by their disdain.
I will quietly listen to you
And pass no judgement.
Nor will your spoken words be repeated.
I will remain ever silent,
Ever vigilant, ever loyal.
And when our time together is done
And you move on in the world,
Remember me with kind thoughts and tales.
For a time we were unbeatable,
Nothing passed among us undetected.
If we should ever meet again on another field
I will gladly take up your fight.
I am a Police Working Dog and together
We are GUARDIANS of the NIGHT.

Forever in our Hearts!
Jeff, Dana,
Dylan & Trevor

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

We are in the most ugly time of the year with the dirty snow, slush, and mud and the cusp between winter and spring. There is much more winter in February, but just a few days of above the freezing mark turned lots of places into solid ice as fast as the temperature dropped big time. Around the parking space for my car in front of my house were about six inches of really hard ice, smooth as glass. I made a bad mistake because Tuesday was a bit warmish and enough so that the roads were probably not icy, and I had to go somewhere. The road trip was fine, but when I tried to get in the house just one step on that glassy surface and my left foot slid and I went down hard. It was totally impossible to get up again, even to get back into the car. Luckily I had removed my cell phone from its car plug and had put it in my purse so I was able to call for help. The first couple numbers I tried, no one was at home. Luckily Joan Beitzel was manning the phone at Garrett Peat Products and she was able to find Jeff Opel and send him to rescue me just before (you know the slang expression), "just before I froze my ---." I was very cold and literally had frozen it after sitting on that block for close to a half hour. So now I know what that expression really means. I did not really hurt myself much – just my bottom was so cold and wet. I was so relieved to get inside and thaw out my rump.

Then the weather started to get a little warmer so the snow cover started to melt down big time. It is not the first time that the lower part of Rock Lodge Road beside the sheep pasture near Olive Bender's house had water across the road. The road crew was very busy pushing back the snow bank that was blocking drainage of the water and slush off the road. I was on the road to McHenry to pick up some groceries since I hear we are to get more snow. Yes, it is once again good and cold and the snowflakes were flying, but the real snow event for once this year was north of Pittsburgh. We are still on the roller coaster of winter, which is typical for this time of the year with a couple warm days and then another winter blast. Hopefully the weather won't ruin the Northern Husky Marching Band's pancake/buckwheat brunch, which is one of the last fund-raising efforts before the big spring trip.

I never saw the Glade more filled up with water. In fact, both sides of the little bridge on Mosser, just before Mosser hits Rock Lodge Road, look more like lakes than just marsh or wetland. Very little of the very tall marsh grass (described by Meshack Browning as "high as my horse's withers") is in sight.

Just after, the grass was buried in the snow with just a few tops peeking out, and you can see how it looked in early January in my small gem of a painting titled "The Glades In Deep Freeze," which is now hanging in the Gallery on Alder Street. Hopefully someone loved it as much as I did and snapped it up. I hope so. It is very hard to allow my favorite painting go to a new home, but how else can I afford more art supplies? I was in a serious crisis of being out of white paint. I wonder why? After three months of being surrounded by some lovely winter landscapes anywhere around, I received my order just in time, but will probably need green in various shades now.

It was certainly good to hear the Pittsburgh Pirates again. Maybe this year the Bucs will go all the way, all the way!

Cindy Stanton celebrated her daughter Lea's birthday in sunny California, where she is living, and spotted the first robin seen around Bittinger on a truly blustery late winter day, Sunday, March 9, in the field above Leora Yaste's house. I bet it wished it would have stayed a little longer in the south, arriving in a temperature in the low twenties and a wind of at least 20 mph, which meant it felt like zero. I don't have a wind speed instrument but just judged only on my long experience in the "Wind Capital of Maryland, Bittinger." Cindy said those three robins acted dazed and confused. I remember last year when my mother saw a robin about frozen on the road. She picked it up and warmed it up in the truck, and then it flew away.

All the members of Northern High Marching Band, plus a few of their younger siblings, were very busy on Sunday morning and afternoon, working hard to serve and clean up after the Pancake/Buckwheat Brunch. Carol Bass and Marci Glotfelty helped with the cooking. The only thing I was able to contribute was a very old iron skillet, which is essential to cook perfect buckwheat cakes.

This week's mid-week Lenten service will be held at Emmanuel Lutheran Church in Bittinger at 7 p.m. The following week the service will be held in Accident at St. Paul's on Main Street.

First Communion was celebrated at Emmanuel the first Sunday of March. Ashleigh Clapper, Ashley Eggleston, and Eric Maxim were the participants.

The first series of Bible study and prayers held its first meeting on Monday March 3, at Emmanuel. They will be held bi-weekly, with the next meetings on March 17, 31, and April 14. They focus on the Old Testament Book of Micah and the seeking for peace for the world. All are invited to attend.

It is not too late to send a birthday greeting card to Olis Brenneman at the Goodwill Mennonite Home in Grantsville. She celebrated her 75th birthday on March 3. Yes, that was almost two weeks ago, but what is two weeks late when you have already lived three-fourths of a century?

Last Sunday's altar flowers at Emmanuel were given to the glory of God in honor of the 65th wedding anniversary of Ralph and Ethel Buckel. They still seem like a couple of young kids in love. I am pretty sure that Ethel could still fit in her wedding dress. I wish I could say the same thing. Of course it was way too light when I wore it. Mine was a 1903 antique gown altered to fit that tiny actress, Geraldine Chaplin, for a PBS movie The House of Mirth. The company I worked for did the costumes for that movie, and they gave me the gown for my wedding.

Visitors of Ralph and Ethel Buckel during their anniversary week were their son and wife, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Buckel Jr. of Chestertown, Jean Cope of Cumberland, Pastor Pat Pittsnogle, Pete Buckel, Maxine and Bob Legeer, Beulah Moon, Sally Poholsky, and Ruth DiPaolo. Ralph and Sara were able to take their dad, Ralph Sr., for a short visit with his brother, Ken Buckel, and wife Harriett.

Jim Glotfelty was again treated in Morgantown last week for prostate cancer, which spread into his bones before being detected. Although no doctor should ever have to be reminded to order a simple PSA test on men 50 and older, Jim would like once again to urge all men to request that it be done, so that no one will have to face the consequences he is now facing.

Ida Reckner will be honored next Sunday with a family dinner at her home on Peat Bog Road, as we will be celebrating her 98th birthday on March 20. Everyone is hoping spring will come a few days early, and that the weather will cooperate and the celebration can proceed as planned.

Loraine (Butch) Bittinger had the misfortune of breaking his ankle in a fall at his farm last week. After undergoing surgery in Cumberland, he is now recuperating at his home on Shawnee Lane.

SCOUTS "GO ESKIMO" IN FIRST AID TRAINING – Boy Scouts with Troop 1 of Oakland participated in January's aptly named "Frozen Finger" first aid training and competition at New Germany State Park. Working under actual winter conditions, Scouts from across the region treated a variety of mock injuries, including broken bones, amputated fingers, and other emergency situations. Troop 1 placed second in the competition, and set up camp, cooked supper, and slept out the night through. Pictured above in the first row, from the left, are J. Michael Kozier, Bradley Cogley, and Travis Sanders. In the second row are Thomas Miller, Joe Cogley, and Mark Miller. Kozier is shown below with his tent, which doubled as an igloo the next morning when the Scouts woke up to a temperature of six below. Persons interested in Scouting may call Mark Miller at 301-334-3181.

Safe Sitter Classes Set At Hospital

Garrett County Memorial Hospital has scheduled three Safe Sitter classes that will be offered on three separate Saturdays in the spring. Participants can choose to attend a 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. session on either March 22, April 19, or May 17. Only six students can be enrolled in each class, and admission will be on a first-come, first-served basis. Participants must pre-register to attend.

Safe Sitter is a medically accurate program that teaches boys and girls ages 12 to 14 how to handle emergencies when caring for children. The class will also teach young adolescents safe and nurturing caregiver skills, and the rescue skills needed to respond appropriately to medical emergencies.

"In addition to safety and health training, Safe Sitter training includes lots of information on childcare basics, child development and managing behavior," stated GCMH Wellness coordinator Deana Clester. "Students learn how to take control of their charges in a positive way, what to expect based on the age of the child, and how to make the experience positive for both the children and themselves. They also learn tips for managing the business aspects of their babysitting job.

"While the short term goal is to prepare competent teenage babysitters, the long term goal is to prepare young people for their responsibility as parents."

The class fee is $15, and lunch will be provided. For more information, persons may contact Clester at 301-533-4295.

For additional information, persons may contact the Continuing Education and Training Division at 301-387-3069.

Continuing Ed. Classes Set In Grantsville Area

Garrett College has scheduled a variety of continuing education classes to be held in the Grantsville area. They include Microsoft Excel, Physical Education for Seniors, Computer Skills for Seniors Level II, Keyboarding I, Microsoft Word I, and Focus on Photography.

In Microsoft Excel, the student will learn to create, edit, save, and retrieve spreadsheets. Basic printing commands, graphs and charts will be introduced. The course begins on Monday evening, April 7, from 6:30 until 8:30 p.m., and continues for six sessions. A prerequisite of Introduction to Computers or a working knowledge of the computer is required.

Physical Education for Seniors is designed for senior adults who wish to improve physical well being through fun, easy, and beneficial exercises. Upon completion of the course, students will understand the connection between exercise and fitness, along with experiencing improved circulation, respiration, digestion, muscle tone and strength, heart and lung efficiency, flexibility, and range of motion.

The 12-hour course is described as providing benefits of greater mind-body awareness, ease of movement, enhanced immune function, and body balance. Loose clothing and an exercise mat are essential for participation. Sessions will be held April 1 through May 20 at the Grantsville Senior Center on Tuesdays from 9 a.m. until 10:30 a.m. The course is open to the public. It should be noted, however, that the tuition waiver for Maryland senior citizens applies only to those individuals who are 60 years of age and older.

The course is being instructed by Bittinger resident Cynthia Knight, who is certified in massage and hypnotherapy for wellness of body, mind, and spirit. Knight has given seminars on "Wellness," "Massage and the Elderly," and "Integrating Traditional and Complementary Aspects of Healthcare," along with being an instructor for the Garrett College Massage Therapy Program.

The Computer Skills for Seniors Level II course will be held on Tuesday mornings from 9 a.m. until 12:15 p.m. beginning on April 8. This four-session class is a continuation of Computer Skills for Seniors Level I. Topics include: basic Windows operations, files, folders, and diskettes, accessing the Internet, web pages, and e-mail.

Keyboarding I will be held on Tuesday evenings from 6:30 until 8:30 p.m. beginning on April 8 and will continue for a total of four sessions. The course will introduce the student to the use of the computer for the development of keyboarding skills by the touch method. Both the alphabetic and numeric keypads will be used. Basic introduction to word processing and practical application will also be explored. Previous computer experience is not required.

The Microsoft Word I course begins on Friday mornings from 9:30 until 11:30 a.m. beginning on April 25 and will continue for a total of six sessions. This hands-on course will introduce the student to processing various types of documents, and how to edit, assemble, format, sort, and save. The student will also learn how to create graphs and tables. A prerequisite of Introduction to Computers or a working knowledge of the computer is required.

The Focus on Photography course is limited to film cameras: 35mm Rangefinders, 35mm SLR and Point & Shoot. The course is being offered for four consecutive Monday evenings from 6:30 until 8:30 p.m. beginning on April 28. The first two sessions will concentrate on classroom instruction on the following topics: films and film speeds; lenses, types and uses; cameras, types and uses; understanding one's own camera and its special features; ways to improve pictures using the flash; using a tri-pod or uni-pod; why use these accessories; understanding how depth of field works; choice of photo content and creating good compositions; and avoiding parallax error in rangefinder and P & S cameras.

Students must bring a camera and manual to class. Students will need to provide their own film, preferably Kodak 400 Color 24 or 36 exposure. Sessions on May 12 and 19 will meet at center, review some techniques, and answer questions. The group will then proceed outside and take some pictures. Jeannine St. Marie McCutcheon, an accomplished photographer who has her own studio in Frostburg, is instructing the course.

For additional information about these classes, persons may contact Terry Beachy at 301-895-3368, or the Garrett College Continuing Education Division at 301-387-3069.

Rural Enterprises Conference Set By Local Coalition

ERIN PETERSEN

KIMBERLY SCOTT-CARL

A wide range of subjects will be presented during the 16 seminars scheduled for the Agricultural and Rural Enterprises Conference on Saturday, March 22, at Garrett College.

Coordinated by the Garrett-Preston Rural Development Coalition, the forum will explore equine marketing options, raising and marketing native plants, principles of home business operations, and landowner liability for recreational use. It is an information mix to appeal to all segments of the rural community, according to RDC chair Joyce Bishoff.

"We have developed an agenda for this conference that reaches to the farming community and beyond – to all our area residents," Bishoff said, noting that the mission of the RDC is to explore and define new opportunities for economic growth for Garrett and neighboring Preston County, W.Va.

Erin Petersen, University of Maryland Extension horse specialist, will present information on equine business management, which is the centerpiece of the curriculum she teaches at the University of Maryland. In her courses, Petersen instructs students in business and horse management skills, as well as horse-specific courses in nutrition, behavior, health, and more.

Born and reared in Colorado, Peters holds a B.A. degree in political science from the University of Colorado, and a B.S. degree in equine science and an M.S. degree in animal science from Colorado State University.

Kimberly Scott-Carl, proprietor and director of marketing for Genesis Publishing and Advertising, will lead a seminar on methods and tools of marketing, including brochure development.

Scott-Carl is the main point of contact for all her company's advertising and publishing clients, and she serves as the publisher for all projects. She has distinguished herself in research, market analysis, strategy development, identity development, creative conception, Internet architecture, media planning, distribution/circulation development, ad copywriting, print management, financial management, and budgeting.

She has prior publishing experience with Mid-Atlantic Custom Publishing, Mid-Atlantic Country/Maryland Magazine, Mid-Atlantic Country Magazine, and Baltimore Business Journal. She earned her bachelor's degree in economics at Penn State University.

For more information on the RDC conference, persons may visit the web site www.MoreFarmMoney.org or call 301-334-6960. The conference is co-sponsored by Garrett College, Maryland Cooperative Extension, the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, GCNet, and West Virginia University Extension Service.

A RETIREMENT ROSE FOR KOSCIELNIAK – Irmgard R. Koscielniak, left, received a rose from former co-worker Alice Hevner in honor of her recent retirement from the University of Maryland's Garrett County Extension Service. Koscielniak, the county's former Extension educator in Family Consumer Science, served the agriculture community for over 20 years. She is also past president of Alpha Alpha Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma (DKG) Society International. She received the gift during a recent DKG meeting from Hevner, the current chapter president, who also retired from the Garrett County Extension Service as an extension educator in 4-H and Youth Development after over 30 years of service to the county's young people and their families.

Vegetable Gardening Tips

It has been a long winter, but gardening time is just around the corner. It's a good time to check the germination rate of old, questionable seed. Place 20 seeds between moistened paper towels, roll up the towel and place it in a plastic bread bag. Put the bag on top of the refrigerator or other warm location and check after 5-7 days to see what percentage has germinated. Discard seed lots with less than 75% germination.

Consider purchasing some floating row cover material to protect crops against insects and promote early growth. This gauzy material is draped over the bed and secured to the ground. Leave enough slack so the plants can push up the fabric as they grow. Floating row covers are made from polyester material and permit air, water and light to penetrate. They can raise the temperature by 4-8 degrees F. depending on the type of fabric and maintain higher humidity levels. This will spur early spring growth. It will also help to exclude cucumber beetles, flea beetles, harlequin bugs, Mexican bean beetles, slugs, rabbits, deer, groundhogs and other pests. Give it a try, you won't be sorry.

About the first of April you can start sowing seeds of spinach, lettuce, kale, mustard, sorrel, corn salad and other greens indoors under fluorescent tubes. These plants will be ready to transplant outdoors in 3 weeks and should be protected by a cold frame or floating row cover. Or you could direct seed these crops once the snow melts and soil dries in loose, fertile garden soil cover with a cold frame or under a floating row cover.

Cabbage, broccoli, and cauliflower seeds should be started by April 7 in our area. Warm season crops like tomato, pepper, and eggplant should be started by April 14, and cucumbers, squash, and melons can be started the first week in May. You can start the pepper a week earlier since it takes them longer to germinate. Dust off those fluorescent bulbs and be sure that your growing containers, flats, and media are ready to go.

When growing flower or vegetable transplants follow a few simple guidelines: Use a soilless growing medium containing peat moss, perlite and vermiculite. Keep the medium moist, not soaking wet. Speed up germination by providing bottom heat and keeping temperature between 70-75 degrees F. Use cool white fluorescent tubes and run them 14-16 hours each day. Keep seedlings 1-2 inches from the lights. Pot plants up to larger pots so they don't become root-bound. Fertilize transplants that have to be grown for more than 6 weeks, with a weak soluble. Fertilize according to label directions.

SPECIAL NOTE: Anyone in the Accident area in need of corn silage, please contact Jim Simms at the Garrett County Extension Office at 301-334-6960.

Deadline Draws To An End For USDA Program

The March 15 deadline is drawing to a close for Maryland farmers who wish to enroll in the USDA-subsidized 2003 program. Last year, Maryland farmers invested a total of $3.1 million in crop insurance premiums.

Maryland farmers have received $21.6 million dollars in crop insurance payments for 2002, or nearly seven dollars in payments for every dollar paid in premiums. The payout for 2002 alone nearly matches the $22.6 million paid to farmers over the five years from 1997 through 2001, with more payments expected.

"This is an outstanding example of how valuable an investment in crop insurance is for our farmers," said Maryland agriculture secretary Lewis R. Riley. "It should provide a strong incentive for those who have not already done so to invest in the 2003 crop insurance program before the March 15 deadline."

To assist Maryland producers in reducing risk, the USDA Risk Management Agency (RMA) will provide additional financial assistance for all 2003 crop year buy-up level insurance policies for the portion of the premium that remains after other subsidies are applied. This additional federal subsidy will pay as much as 50 percent of the producer's usual expense for higher levels of coverage. Producers must contact their crop insurance agent to determine eligibility and apply for assistance before March 15, 2003.

"Any Maryland farmer who has not met with an insurance agent to review this incredible incentive program is missing a rare opportunity to protect their farm income from losses this year at minimal cost," said Riley. "Our message to them is act now because the consequences of inaction could be disastrous."

A Social Studies Fair was held last Thursday, March 6, at the Aurora School, with an evening open house for parents and visitors to see the exhibits.

Mrs. Louella Fike of Aurora received word of the death on March 6 of her son-in-law, James Carr. Mr. Carr was a resident of a Las Vegas nursing home where he had gone following the Dec. 7, 2000, death of his wife, Dorothy Ellen (Fike) Carr.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Fint of Old Fields were Saturday visitors with Mr. Fint's brother, Roy Fint, Aurora.

Brenda Hartsell of Eglon reportedly escaped injury on Friday evening as she returned from her work at the Terra Alta Stockyard, evidently fell asleep, and went up an embankment, causing her car to overturn onto the roadway. The accident happened at the top of the Parks Hill, Eglon.

Robert DeWitt of Kingwood, 65, died Monday, March 3, at Morgantown. His wife, Carolyn (Evans) DeWitt, survives at their Kingwood home. She is the daughter of the late Lawrence and Nellie Rembold Evans, who were residents of Horse Shoe Run. Two sons and their spouses also survive, Glen and Kristina DeWitt in Fredericksburg, Va., and David and Melissa DeWitt at Kingwood. His services were Friday, March 7, at the Kingwood Baptist Church, and the body was brought to Horse Shoe Run for interment in the Texas Cemetery.

TERRA ALTA

Library

The Terra Alta Public Library was recently chosen for a Social Studies Fair project by Alecia Hart, a seventh grader at Terra Alta/East Preston. Hart's interest in her hometown library led her to research its history and present her conclusions to the judges. Her board was decorated in the 30th anniversary theme, which the library celebrated in October. She covered the points of starting the library in 1972, its three moves as the library grew, its new location, and how important a public library is to everyone in the community. Alecia placed third in Division II, State and Local History, and her project is now on display at the library.

Donations of books and periodicals have been made recently by Marion Clutter, Rebecca Harriman, Albert Ossman, Brian Schoolcraft, and Sandy Lewis.

Support Group Slates Meeting

The Preston County Caregiver Support Group will meet at 7 p.m. Monday, March 17, at Heartland of Preston County, 300 Miller Road, Kingwood. The regular monthly support group meeting is slated for one hour, and will be facilitated by Dr. John Keefe, Melissa Groves, and Janie Lou White.

The discussion will address the stresses faced by a caregiver, including time management, sleep difficulties, dealing with impatience and/or irritability with a family member, and the feeling that no one can understand the experience of a caregiver.

Free supervision is available for loved ones during Preston County Caregiver Support Group meetings, which take place the third Monday of each month. For further information, persons may call 304-329-3195.

Garden Club Sets Presentation On European Gardens

The Cranberry Garden Club of Preston County will hold its next meeting on Thursday, March 20, at 1 p.m. The meeting will be held at the home of Susan Weisbrod, Terra Alta.

Katherine Smith, master gardener and landscape design consultant, will present the "Four Seasons of European Landscape."

This slide lecture will feature landscapes and gardens in 12 European countries. While her husband Manning worked at a university in Germany, Smith photographed numerous landscapes with a focus on principles and history.

The Cranberry Garden Club welcomes new male and female members and meets monthly on the third Thursday of the month in the Kingwood and Terra Alta area.

For more information or directions to Weisbrod's home, persons may call her at 304-789-3032 or Peggy Nagel at 304-789-5555.

GARRETT COUNTY

GA2002G013/1 - New Glen Properties, LLC, 1445 Stewartstown, Morgantown, WV 26505, has applied to appropriate an annual average of 12,700 gallons per day (gpd) of ground water and 21,300 gpd during the month of maximum use for the supply individual lots at the 59-lot Stillwater Subdivision. The water is to be taken from 59 wells in the Pocono Formation, located on the southeast side of MD Route 22 (Glendale Road), 0.6 mile east of the junction of MD Route 22 and Beckman Peninsula Road, 2.0 miles east of Thayerville, Garrett County, Maryland.

The production wells, installed in a water table fractured rock aquifer, will be about 150-250 feet deep. Impacts to the resource and nearby users were evaluated using data from geological reports and investigations available to the Water Management Administration and a nearby, aquifer pumping test. A groundwater model developed from the aquifer test data indicates that pumping during periods of maximum monthly use may lower the water table less than four feet at the nearest Stillwater Subdivision property line. In making the evaluation, the withdrawals were modeled at the maximum month pumping rate for 60 days with no recharge to the aquifer.

HEALTH NEWS

Heartburn Relief the Natural Way

WASHINGTON — Research indicates that a new type of chewable tablet containing an extract of deglychrizzed licorice (DGL) may actually strengthen the body's reaction to acid naturally. Medical experts say that GI problems are not the result of excess acid, but the body's inability to deal with it. This chewable tablet is available over the counter and is called Cidaban DGL™.

Cidaban DGL not only works on stomach acid immediately but also addresses the underlying causes of digestive problems. Studies appearing in a British medical journal have shown that DGL works effectively like Zantac®, Tagamet® and/or antacids without all the side effects.

The problem with antacids is that they actually disrupt or interfere with normal digestions. Cidaban DGL is a natural alternative to antacids or acid blockers and is available at pharmacies and nutrition stores without a prescription or call 1-800-729-8446.

"A BLAST THAT LASTS" was the theme of a fun family project at Crellin Elementary School that came to fruition Monday afternoon, as shown above. Students and their parents involved in Crellin's Parent Involvement Program met each Monday evening for the past five weeks for math tutoring sessions and hands-on activities that emphasized science and mathematical concepts. Included in the activities was the construction of rubber-band-fueled catapults and large rockets. The air ships, decorated in all varieties of design (including one in honor of the Columbia space shuttle), were shot far into the air Monday afternoon in a culminating event that involved nearly 60 participants. The project, funded through a grant provided by the Garrett County Board of Education, was facilitated by Crellin staff members Carrie Newcomb, Linda Stephens, Barbie Nelson, Susan Friend, and Dana McCauley. Pictured above left of center (leaning on post) is Deputy Robbie Zimmerman of the sheriff's office, who used a laser beam gun to measure the distance the rockets flew. County To Get Disaster Funds From FEMA

The head of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) announced last week that federal disaster funds have been made available for Maryland communities, inluding Garrett County, which were struck by record snowfall last month.

Garrett County Emergency Management director Brad Frantz stressed, however, that these funds were only for local entities, not for individual residents or businesses.

Michael D. Brown, FEMA director and under secretary designee for the Emergency Preparedness and Response Directorate, part of the Department of Homeland Security, said the assistance was authorized under an emergency declaration issued by President Bush after a review of the state's request for federal relief.

Following the declaration, Brown designated the city of Baltimore and 17 counties eligible for federal funding to pay part of the cost for emergency protective measures undertaken as a result of the snowstorm. This includes state and local government operations needed to protect public health and safety and to prevent damage to public or private property.

Under the emergency declaration, FEMA will provide reimbursement to

A MAJOR HONOR was bestowed in College Park on Saturday, as Southern High School boys' varsity basketball coach Tom Bosley was named the National Federation of High School Coaches Association's Mideast Sectional Boys' Basketball Coach of the Year. Bosley was selected for the award among nominees from the Mideast Section, which includes the states of Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia. He is now a finalist for the National Coach of the Year award, which will be announced by April 1. Bosley is pictured above right receiving his award from Ned Sparks, executive director of the Maryland Public Secondary Schools Athletic Association. County Road Weight Limit Bill Killed By Senate, House Panels

A General Assembly bill that would have allowed the Garrett County commissioners to increase the weight limit on certain county roads to 80,000 pounds has been vetoed.

"This is good news," said Bobby Andersen, who credits the hard work of those who campaigned with her against the legislation for its defeat.

The Senate Finance Committee last week and the House Environmental Committee yesterday both gave the legislation an "unfavorable report."

Sponsored by Senator John Hafer and Delegate George Edwards, the legislation was requested by the Garrett County commissioners for economic reasons. The officials had been approached by local logging, mining, and other industries to raise the limit.

During a meeting with the commissioners earlier this year, local logging com-

Officials Hear Annual EMS Council Report

Members of the Region I Emergency Medical Services Advisory Council presented their yearly report to the Garrett County commissioners this week.

The 27-member council is composed of individuals directly involved with emergency medical services. Serving Garrett and Allegany, the members are appointed by the commissioners of the two counties.

"The council receives information from and makes recommendations to several units, reports to the Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems (MIEMSS), and facilitates communication between the county and MIEMSS," said president Lee Ross, Ph.D.

"It also keeps the local fire departments and rescue squads abreast of changes in emergency care, helps them maintain their equipment, facilitates training, and assists them with funding.

To help the units improve service to their com-

Winchester Man Gets 10 Years For Possession/Intent

A Winchester, Va., man pleaded guilty last week in Garrett County Circuit Court to possession with intent to distribute cocaine. Judge Jim Sherbin then sentenced Rickey Lee Ahern, 43, to 10 years in the Division of Corrections and fined him $5,000. Other related charges against Ahern were dismissed upon his plea.

He was arrested and charged by Garrett County Narcotics Task Force officers last August after they searched his vehicle and found 19 packets of cocaine, totaling approximately two ounces, according to State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch.

The officers, who had received information from informants and concerned citizens about Ahern's activities in Garrett County, had obtained a search and seizure warrant for his vehicle.

Ahern was subsequently observed traveling into Garrett County from Grant County, W.Va., and the officers executed their search warrant.

Schools Cancel Student Trips In Face Of Heightened Alert, War Fears

by Meghan Mullan
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — South River High School senior Mark Cross will not play his baritone saxophone while marching on the cobblestone streets of Edinburgh, Scotland, this spring. Cross is one of thousands of Maryland students who saw school travel plans canceled in recent days by nervous school administrators faced with the possibility of war and a heightened terrorist threat.

Most school districts in the state had imposed some restrictions by Wednesday. Some canceled any trips outside their immediate area, others have banned international travel, and still others are studying the situation.

The Garrett County Board of Education decided to cancel all student trips east of Hagerstown and those to major metropolitan areas.

School officials said federal government warnings that Americans are soft targets when traveling abroad prompted their actions.

"Students go in groups and are very visible," said Patty Kaplan, a spokeswoman for Howard County schools, which canceled international trips. Kaplan said Howard officials realize that the ban may end up

Health Dept. Notes First Rabies Case

Garrett County's first confirmed rabies case of the year has been reported by Environmental Health Services of the Garrett County Health Department. The case involved a raccoon that attacked three dogs and their owner in the Harvey's Peninsula area on Wednesday, March 12.

The pets' owner told officials that he was walking his dogs along the road when a raccoon ran onto the road directly at them and attacked. Despite attempts to subdue the raccoon, it escaped and ran away. The owner of the dogs reported that the raccoon had attempted to bite through his gloves but was not successful. When the dogs were

County Issues Statement On Abrasives Policy

The Garrett County Roads Department has received a number of calls related to road abrasives that were applied during snow removal operations, which are now on private property.

The commissioners issued a statement this week concerning the removal of those abrasives.

"This past winter was a period of emergency conditions that required many hours of plowing and the application of abrasives to assure safe driving conditions," said county administrator Monty Pagenhardt.

"The county is aware that abrasives do in fact get either blown or plowed onto areas in close proximity to county roads," he said. "This is unavoidable."

County personnel will be working on the cleanup of this aftermath of snow removal on county right-of-ways during the next several months. The County Roads Department, however, is prohibited from performing any cleanup on private right-of-ways, said Pagenhardt.

Residents who have any questions on this or any other issue related to the roads department may call Fred Polce, general superintendent, at 301-334-3988 or any of the County Roads Department area garages.

IN A HORRIBLE DISGUISE, A BLESSING OF SORTS — A West Virginia truck driver survived this horrific crash early Friday morning at the base of Backbone Mountain near Bloomington when he lost control of his rig and struck the embankment. Gary G. Kidder, 51, Morgantown, remains hospitalized in critical condition in Baltimore this morning at the University of Maryland Shock Trauma Center. Kidder was hauling a full load of ammonium nitrate fertilizer pellets, which can be seen spilled from the mangled tanker below. One of the many "Backbone crosses" can be seen on the embankment above the hazardous material spill, silent testimony to the many truckers who have lost their lives on the steep descent—and Kidder's good fortune in surviving the crash. OTT TO PRESENT UNCHANGING LOVE – Reservations are now being accepted for Our Town Theatre's production of Unchanging Love, a play by Romulus Linney. The show will be performed March 26-29 at 8 p.m. and March 30 at 2 p.m. This is a very serious and powerful drama, according to Jane Avery, director, who said the show is "not for the faint of heart or for those seeking simple entertainment." Avery said that because the message of the show is an important one, she and the cast and crew hope to inspire thought and conversation through its production. However, because of violence, crude language, and harsh situations, she suggests that adults of 18 or older only should attend. Children under 18 must be accompanied by an adult. To make reservations, persons should call the theatre at 301-334-5640 and follow the directions on the answering machine. The cast of the show is pictured above. In the foreground is Katrina Iden. Seated from left are Erin White, Sue Lisantti, and Lynn Elmlinger. Standing in the same order are Derek Nutter, Mikey Virts, Dave Wheeler, Aaron White, Richard Hill, and Lane Duda.

Garrett College Sets All-Day "Write Away" Event For May

Garrett College will host its third annual "Write Away" writers' conference on Saturday, May 10. Sponsored by the Center for Lifelong Learning, this year's event will consist of four consecutive seminars, two in the morning and two in the afternoon, with a half-hour break for lunch. Each seminar will taught by a local writer with expertise in a particular field of the written word.

"The Write Away Conference is for anyone who enjoys writing, regardless of one's experience," said event organizer Joan Crawford.

The conference's first session, "Writing Publicity," led by Peggy Santamaria, is scheduled from 9 to 10:15 a.m. This seminar is for persons who write publicity for businesses, community organizations, churches and schools, and it will focus on the most effective ways to write news and feature stories.

Santamaria is public relations specialist of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce. A former staff writer for The Republican, she has written numerous news and feature articles, and has authored educational books.

The second seminar, "Writing Life Experiences," from 10:30 to 11:45 a.m., will be led by Mary McEwen, news and feature writer for The Republican. In this session participants will learn how to find subjects for writing among the people they know, the many roles they play, and the challenges they face, and how to capture these experiences for the reader.

McEwen has been writing for the Garrett County newspaper since 1994, and her work was recently included in September 11: Maryland Voices, a collection of articles by prominent Maryland writers. She frequently writes human interest articles about her family and her personal experiences.

Following the lunch break, Dr. Greg Jenkins will lead the third seminar, "Fiction Writing," from 12:30 to 1:45 p.m. Jenkins will critique fiction stories sent to him in advance and will show how a writer converts ideas into stories using description, narration and dialogue to bring characters to life. Persons who would like to have a short fiction story critiqued during this seminar should mail their manuscript at least one week before the conference to Dr. Greg Jenkins, Garrett College, 687 Mosser Road, McHenry, MD 21541.

Jenkins is associate professor of English at Garrett College, where he teaches writing, literature, and speech courses. He has also taught at Frostburg State University and Potomac State College. He is the author of two books—Stanley Kubrick and the Art of Adaptation, and Night Games, a collection of short fiction.

The conference will conclude with the fourth seminar, "Writing Poetry," presented from 2 to 3:15 p.m. by local poet Debra Wolf. Participants will learn how to capture a poetic moment and how to use elements of poetry to shape an image with words. Wolf has had poems published in national journals and has received several awards. She has taught poetry writing short courses at Frostburg State University and Garrett College, and has presented workshops in Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia.

Registration is required, at a fee of $5 fee for each seminar. All college and high school students will be admitted free. Those who plan to attend both morning and afternoon sessions should bring a brown bag lunch.

For further information or to request a registration form, persons may call Garrett College Continuing Education and Training Division program coordinator Carol Dearden at 301-387-3069. Registration forms will also be available at all branches of the Ruth Enlow Library in the near future.

LOCAL DEVELOPERS SUPPORT GCMH – Local developers Michael Goodfellow and Hugh Umbel of "Waterfront Greens" have pledged $50,000 to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation. The developers presented a check of $25,000 for one half of the pledge. W.Va. Motorists Jailed For Drugs After Traffic Stop

A pair of West Virginia residents were jailed on drug charges by Maryland State Police troopers Sunday after a traffic stop near Grantsville.

Shannon Wayne Smith, 31, Cross Lanes, was stopped on Interstate 68 near Bittinger Road for speeding shortly before 4 p.m. When the odor of suspected burnt marijuana was noted originating from the vehicle, troopers undertook a search of the 1999 Chevrolet Camaro and located suspected marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

Both Smith and his passenger, Rebecca Renee Conner, 24, Charleston, were arrested on charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, while Smith was also handed the traffic violation.

Following appearances before a District Court commissioner, Smith was released from the Garrett County Jail on a $1,000 bond and Conner was freed on a $500 bond.

DUI ARREST

State troopers filed a driving under the influence (DUI) charge early Sunday morning against Randy Allen Dolan, 30, Oakland. The McHenry area traffic stop was made at 1:07 a.m., and Dolan was released from police custody afterward without being taken to jail.

Swanton Man Handed Two Months In Jail

A Swanton man was handed a jail sentence in Garrett County District Court last week after he pleaded guilty to a charge stemming from a fracas at his home involving several family members.

Johnny Lee Corby, 20, was jailed by sheriff's deputies immediately following the December altercation, which police deemed resulted in large part from his intoxication at the time. Corby reportedly assaulted several adult male and female family members during the incident. Judge Ralph Burnett presided at the criminal hearing, and passed sentence after Corby pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct. An additional four counts of second degree assault were placed onto the stet docket.

In other District Court news, Gregory Allen Moats Sr., 32, Arthurdale, W.Va., pleaded guilty to committing perjury while under oath and was handed a 90-day sentence, one year of supervised probation, and 25 hours of community service. Moats committed the offense by entering false testimony during a December court hearing.

Jessica Ray Hines, 24, Frostburg, pleaded guilty to uttering a forged prescription and received a 30-day suspended sentence and 18 months of unsupervised probation. Her August arrest by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation came after she secured a quantity of OxyContin from the Friendsville Pharmacy by uttering a false prescription.

William Albert Dale, 30, Oakland, received a stet ruling on a destruction of property charge, along with an order to make a restitution payment to cover $572 in damage he inflicted on the car of his accuser. Sheriff's deputies arrested Dale in January after he reportedly jumped on the hood of the woman's car during a dispute, and allegedly damaged the vehicle's bumper by kicking it in.

Jason Ray Fike, 19, Friendsville, was handed a stet ruling on a second degree assault charge along with an order to complete 20 hours of community service and pay $337 restitution to the victim. Fike was jailed by state troopers in September after he allegedly assaulted a 17-year-old juvenile near Friendsville by throwing him to the ground, causing injuries that required medical treatment.

Gary Dale Hardesty Sr., 46, Oakland, was handed a stet ruling for disturbing the peace and failure to obey a lawful order. His December arrest by sheriff's deputies came after he caused a drunken disturbance at his home.

Paul David Howdyshell Jr., 53, Kitzmiller, was handed a "not guilty" verdict on a domestic related assault charge after the victim refused to testify against him. Howdyshell was jailed by sheriff's deputies in January after he reportedly beat his wife at their Shallmar residence.

GOBA/Main Street Meeting Covers Myriad Of Topics

Twelve people met in the Oakland Town Hall this week as the monthly Greater Oakland Business Association/Main Street meeting covered an array of topics ranging from postponing a major Civil War re-enactment to changing parking meter policies during inclement weather.

The decision to postpone the Civil War re-enactment originally planned for May of this year came about after it became obvious to the membership that time to properly plan the big event was rapidly running out. Peggy Jamison, co-chair of the organization, pointed out that much would be gained in the quality of the event by waiting until next year to hold it.

The subject of parking meter policy during inclement weather came up after business owner Judy Devlin complained that the town was over-vigorous in its enforcement following a recent, major snowstorm. Devlin pointed out that when the town's sidewalks were plowed the snow was mounted around the parking meters making them virtually unreachable for anyone trying to put coins in them. Despite this, the town was giving out tickets to any car parked in front of an emptied meter. Michael Mullan, this community's Tri-County Council representative, suggested that Oakland revisit its parking meter policies during snow emergencies. Jamison, who is also the president of Oakland's city council, agreed.

In other topics addressed in last night's session, representatives of the Main Street Design Committee summarized their recent efforts. These included: the design of seven historical markers to be presented to Mayor McCain; the development of guidelines for murals and signs; the reprocessing of the Arts and Entertainment bid; the rehabilitation of the town's Christmas decorations; and the possible development of a sign for store windows that says "ask me" for tourists wanting information about the community.

As part of the Economic Restructuring Committee's (ERC) report, the presence of some 200 visitors from Rural LISC was also discussed, and the merits of having stores open until 7 p.m. was also discussed. Most agreed that such an arrangement would benefit all concerned. The longer store hours would work hand in hand with a concert and BBQ also planned for the same evening. The Artisan Cooperative is expected to offer its work for sale in the train station.

Additional matters presented by the ERC included: the hiring of Terrill Ellis to assist with business retention and attraction; the writing of a Rural Business Enterprise Grant to the U.S. Department of Agriculture to explore best possible uses for the Pritts building; and the tearing down of the old Fireside Restaurant building along Second Street.

Topics presented by the Main Street Promotion Committee included the development of a newsletter and the promotion of a May 3 Flower Show to be presented by the Civic Club and the Lighthouse. The group is also developing a downtown walking tour brochure and is assisting Garrett County Memorial Hospital by placing signs around the county.

The meeting closed with Jamison announcing that the GOBA/Main Street organization required a new co-chair because Ken Perrin was unable to continue in the position. Perrin co-chaired the group with Jamison during the past year.

U-Turn For The Worse Injures Area Residents

Two local drivers were slightly injured last Thursday, March 13, when their vehicles collided on Garrett Highway at Sand Flat Road. Maryland State Police troopers investigating the mishap filed charges against one of them for making an illegal U-turn.

At approximately 1:33 p.m., Ila Harvey, 69, Deer Park, attempted to make a 180-degree turn from southbound Garrett Highway at Sand Flat Road in order to backtrack northward. In doing so, her sedan struck a 2000 Ford Escort that had been following her south, injuring its driver Tisha Shreve, 24, Oakland.

Both Harvey and Shreve were transported by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where each was treated and released. The Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company also responded to the crash site.

Harvey was charges with making an improper turn at an intersection.

Routine Traffic Stop Nabs Two Theft Suspects

A Friday afternoon traffic stop north of Oakland resulted in the arrest of two local residents on theft charges, according to Maryland State Police troopers stationed at the McHenry barrack.

At approximately 1:30 p.m., troopers stopped a vehicle on Garrett Highway at Sand Flat Road and conducted a Motor Vehicles Administration computer check which revealed that the driver, Elizabeth Leonard, 43, McHenry, was driving on a suspended license. During the course of a search, $205 in currency was discovered, leading to detailed questioning of Leonard and her passenger, George Shields Jr., 74, Accident. The investigation led to his arrest and a search of his person that uncovered $921 in currency and an ATM check card that had been reported as stolen.

Both Leonard and Shields were charged with carrying out a felony theft scheme and misdemeanor theft, while the woman also faces the additional traffic-related charge. Leonard was subsequently released from the Garrett County Jail after she posted a $500 bond set by a District Court commissioner, while Shields was released on his own recognizance.

Wet Roadway To Blame For Vehicle Accident

The driver of a 1996 Jeep Grand Cherokee is listed in stable condition at Garrett County Memorial Hospital after a single vehicle accident Wednesday night along Oakland Sang Run Road near Henry Clay Drive, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Helen Smith apparently lost control of her vehicle because of the wet road conditions, struck a tree, and overturned, police said.

Southern Rescue Squad transported Smith to GCMH, and the Oakland fire department also assisted at the scene.

Driver Arrested After 100 MPH Police Chase

A Swanton man was arrested after he led police on a 2.1 mile chase along Route 495 with speeds of more than 100 mph just after midnight on Sunday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

James Henry Schmidt, 22, was charged with driving while impaired, (DWI), driving under the influence (DUI), DUI per se, speeding, attempting to flee and elude police, spinning wheels, and failure to stop at a stop sign, police said.

According to police, a deputy observed Schmidt's truck run a stop sign at the intersection of Route 495 and North Glade Road, and as it turned onto Route 495, it was spinning its tires and swerved into the northbound lane.

After a 2.1 mile pursuit by police, the Schmidt vehicle pulled over. According to police, he appeared intoxicated and failed field sobriety tests.

Schmidt was released on his own recognizance.

Deputies arrested two other motorists with drunk driving charges this past weekend.

Edward Leslie McClurg, 29, Oakland, was arrested after deputies observed his 1999 Ford truck cross the center line several times along Garrett Highway near Weber Road while exceeding the posted speed limit, police said.

McClurg was arrested and charged with DUI, DWI, violation of a court ordered alcohol restriction, failure to drive right of center, and exceeding the maximum speed limit.

McClurg was released from the Garrett County Detention Center after posting $500 bond, according to a jail spokesperson.

On Saturday, Timmy Kemphfer, 27, Aurora, W.Va., was arrested and charged with DWI, DUI, and failure to drive right of center after his vehicle was stopped along Route 50 when deputies observed the vehicle crossing the center line several times, police said.

Kemphfer was released on his own recognizance.

Deputies Assist Each Other In Vehicle Pursuit

A Garrett County sheriff's deputy received assistance Saturday from other deputies in the area while in pursuit of a 1999 Ford truck along Gorman Road near Garrett Road. The deputies were able to box in the truck and force it to pull to the shoulder of the road just south of White Church Steyer Road, according to police.

The driver of the vehicle, Michael Todd Upole, 33, Oakland, failed field sobriety tests, and was charged with driving under the influence (DUI), driving while impaired (DWI), failure to drive right of center, consuming alcohol in the passenger compartment of the vehicle on the highway, and attempting to elude police in an official police vehicle by failing to stop.

Passengers Trinity Scott Gillespie, 26, Culpepper, Va., and John Charles Gillespie, 42, Oakland, were asked to exit the vehicle. A search revealed a Taurus PT 140 Millennium semi-automatic .40 caliber handgun with a loaded magazine, which belonged to Trinity Gillespie. He was charged with having a concealed deadly weapon.

John Gillespie failed to keep his hands on the front of one of the police cars while the others were placed in the rear of a police car and was arrested and charged with failure to obey a lawful order of a police officer.

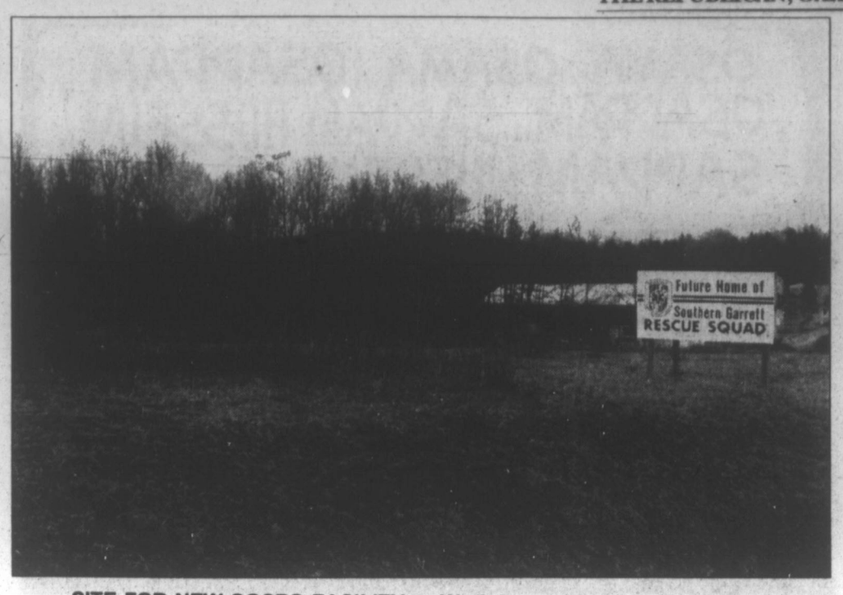
Upole was released from the Garrett County Detention Center on his own recognizance. Trinity Gillespie posted $500 bond, and John Gillespie posted $1,000 bond, according to a jail spokesperson.

Local Man Gets 60 Days In Jail For DUI Charge

A Swanton man entered an "Alford" plea of guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court last week to driving under the influence of alcohol. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Terry Jay Shope, 25, to 60 days in the Garrett County Jail and fined him $500. Related charges were dismissed upon his plea.

Shope was charged by Garrett County Sheriff's Office deputies, who investigated a single-vehicle accident along Rt. 560 in February 2001. After interviewing a passenger and witnesses to the accident, the officers determined that Shope was driving the vehicle that went off the roadway and overturned. Shope was located at a nearby residence, where he had fled. After he was treated and released from the hospital, the officers charged him.

An Alford plea is one in which a defendant does not admit he or she is guilty, but acknowledges that the state has evidence that could lead to his or her being found guilty, explained State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch.



SITE FOR NEW SGCRS FACILITY – Work is progressing on a long-awaited new facility for the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. The new building, which will provide ample room for equipment and training for squad members, is located along Maryland Highway across from B Street in Mtn. Lake Park. The squad is actively seeking volunteers to help in fund-raising activities for the building project. See story.

Work Progressing On New Facility For Southern Garrett Rescue Squad

Work is progressing on a new facility to house the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad, a volunteer organization that has served the county with emergency care for 30 years. The facility will be located along Maryland Highway across from B Street in Mtn. Lake Park.

The site was cleared in 2002 by Bill Gaither's tree trimming company as a donation to the squad. During the summer and fall months of that year, squad members, assisted by the Gortner Amish Youth Group, cut the logs into firewood and hauled it away. The youth and squad workers were provided with refreshments by the squad's auxiliary.

The new building is to be constructed this year, according to a spokesperson, who noted that the plans are currently on schedule.

"The squad members are looking forward to being in a new building where they can conduct a lot more training, hold classes, and have fund-raising events," the spokesperson said.

Presently the squad is assembling a fund-raising committee involving both members and citizens of the area who have expressed an interest in the building project. Any persons interested in serving on the committee are invited to contact Maggie Teter at 301-334-3449 or Rayma Weeks at 301-334-4414 (after 5 p.m.).

Persons who wish to donate to the fund may send contributions to Southern Garrett Co. Rescue Building Fund, Attn. Shirley Fitzwater, Trust Dept., First United Bank & Trust, P.O. Box 9, Oakland, MD 21550, or Southern Rescue Building Fund, P.O. Box 378, Oakland, MD 21550.

Since the squad's 1973 beginning, its facility has been located in two places. The first site for the squad was in the old Ralph Pritts garage along Liberty Street. Then in 1975, part of the Ray Teets garage along Oak Street was purchased, and the squad moved into that building, where it remained until size constraints and location problems arose. In 2000, Don Browning donated the 2.484 acres of land along Maryland Highway to the squad for its new facility.

The squad has operated with volunteers for its entire tenure. It is one of only two rescue organizations in western Maryland that does not charge patients for services. It operates with funding from donations and state-allotted money.

Many changes have occurred in the emergency medical services since the squad's beginning. At that time, volunteers were required to earn a total of 81 hours of training in order to be certified as an EMT-B (emergency medical technician, basic). Now that certification requires 131 hours of training. The former CRT program (cardiac rescue technician) is now a paramedic program (EMT-P), which requires more than 500 hours.

Local fire departments now have several EMT-trained volunteers as well as first responders. Because of this added help, the rescue workers are able to provide basic care to patients until the rescue squad reaches the scene.

Swanton Man Receives Three Years For DUI

A Swanton man was sentenced recently in Garrett County Circuit Court for a driving under the influence conviction. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Randy Robert Paugh, 38, to three years in the Division of Corrections.

Two years of that sentence were suspended. Paugh will serve the remaining one year in the Garrett County Jail, as well as an additional six-month sentence he received for driving with a revoked license. He will be on supervised probation upon his release. Fines were also imposed against him, which totaled $2,000.

Paugh was arrested and charged by Garrett County sheriff's deputies in January 2002. Officers had responded to Kitzmiller Road, near Vindex Road, for a reported motor vehicle accident and found a pickup truck off the roadway in the woods with no one with the vehicle.

According to State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch, a series of interviews led officers to a residence along Vindex Road, where Paugh was located and subsequently arrested for numerous traffic violations.

He was found guilty by a jury in January of this year for the DUI and driving revoked charges, as well as displaying expired plates, driving an unregistered vehicle, and leaving the scene of an accident.

Pa. Woman Hurt In Single-Vehicle Crash Monday

A Huntingdon County, Pa., woman was injured Monday morning after she lost control of her pickup truck on Interstate 68 near New Germany Road, according to the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police

Kathy Jo Dickinson, 27, was hospitalized for three days after the 11:45 a.m. accident. Police said she had apparently fallen asleep, allowing the vehicle to travel off the roadway and up a small embankment. The truck then rolled several times before it came to rest in the median. She was transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, which was assisted at the scene by personnel from the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department.

No charges were filed by the investigating state trooper.

A Value Assessment...

Last week's editorial mentioned a downside to the increased tax base in Garrett County, a result primarily of the apparent value of Deep Creek Lake properties, and another example of that downside was being discussed this morning in the Garrett County commissioners' meeting room.

Dr. Wendell Teets, county school superintendent, and other board personnel presented the board's FY 2004 budget proposal to the commissioners today, and are having to request a substantial increase in local funding to meet that budget. Yes, various costs to operate the board have increased, such as transportation (gasoline costs) and health insurance premiums, which jumped 18 percent. There was also a negotiated, across-the-board 4% salary increase included. (Even with the salary hike, Garrett County teachers are still among the lowest paid in the state.)

However, the pending, major funding gap in the board's budget is because of a dramatic decrease in the amount of funding that will be supplied by the state of Maryland. The wealthier the county, the less money allocated from the state coffers. A glaring inequity on a particular funding table was used by the board to demonstrate the problem to the commissioners.

The table ranks each of Maryland's counties and Baltimore City in two areas: per student wealth, using a somewhat complicated formula; and in the level of county funding being supplied to each board of education. For example, according to the formula, Worcester County is ranked #1 in the wealth column, and #2 in the level of funding from its county commissioners. For Frederick County, the respective rankings are #9 and #10; for Anne Arundel County, #5 and #7. However – and here is the glaring piece – Garrett County is now ranked #10 in per pupil wealth, and #19 in the level of county financial support. In no other county are the numbers more than two apart, except in Howard County where the respective numbers are #6 and #3. Simply put, our board of education cannot continue to function without major cuts unless the county commissioners commit to providing the funding that is no longer going to come from the state.

One might ask, how did the commissioners let such a huge discrepancy occur? In fairness to them, just five years ago Garrett County was ranked 18th in per student wealth, and 19th in county funding. Just two years ago, we were ranked 14th in per student wealth, and still 19th in county funding. Today, that gap is nine places, and probably still growing.

We realize that trying to create a county budget that suits everyone is an incredibly difficult, probably impossible, endeavor every year for the commissioners. We also know that state monies in general are being slashed because of the huge deficit being faced in Annapolis. This has also been a tough winter, and that costs for road repairs are going to skyrocket as well.

However, the value of the education of our young people cannot be overestimated, and our county is blessed – blessed – to have the caliber of education that we have, despite the fact that we must operate on such a tight budget.

Fortunately, the county has an $8 million surplus this year. Now it's up to the commissioners to show how much they value education, and surely, judging from their training/careers/backgrounds, they will prove that they value it just about above everything else.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

As has become a ritual in my family, we always come to Garrett County in early March. We love the serenity and begin getting our vacation home spruced up for summer visits.

When I stopped by the visitors center to see what was going on, I was given a copy of the new visitor guide, which I've been collecting for the past 10 years. I enjoy the beauty of the publication and always learn something new about this beautiful county. At least that was the past. The new guide, in my opinion, is poor, and I don't plan to save it. It makes the area seem just like every other busy commercial resort area, all abuzz with thrill seekers and noisy activities. What happened to all the interesting stories about the area?

My wife says this is a good thing. She says the area has been growing too quickly with tourism, and this ugly new guide will be a way to slow things down a bit. Maybe there is a point to be made here!

If the Chamber of Commerce hired a new publisher this year, they obviously don't understand what this area is all about. Fire them and bring back the people who did the old guides.

Duane Tomb

To the Editor:

A war is coming. A lot of people support it, and a number of them don't. I would like to state my opinion.

I've had ill feelings about it. I felt it was just a grudge match, but I've seen more and more on how the Hitler type can manipulate not just thousands of people, but entire countries.

Saddam killed his first man in cold blood at the age of 16; he sneaked up behind him and shot him in the back of the head. He then killed his way to the top.

He has no intentions of stepping down. He already invaded a neighbor once, and he will do it again. He is a snake in waiting who will strike at an innocent country such as Kuwait, a scared field mouse just trying to live in peace. Saddam the snake is just waiting for the eagle to fly away.

I have been all around this world. I have served in the armed services since just turning 17. I fought Saddam's Republican Guard in front-line combat. I was in the thick of Desert Storm.

I volunteered to go back and finish the job. Never mind the last time; now is the time. Support me! Support my fellow friends, soldiers, airmen, sailors, and my buddies, the Marines. Support not only us, but support your friends, neighbors, and relatives. Support your American government.

Don't fly away, eagle. You, the people of this country, are the eagle.

John Glen Arnold

To the Editor:

The front page of the March 9 Baltimore Sun had a huge article, "DNA'S Secrets Set a Man Free," about Bernard Webster's two-decade odyssey in the labyrinths of Maryland's penal gulag.

And why was an innocent man liable to be convicted then?

This nation goes through media-fed paroxysms over the latest fad issue. Before today's death penalty concerns, it was the Catholic priest frenzy. Before that the media focused on children who were kidnapped and killed; before that, daycare providers molested the children; before that it was dads who abused their children; and before that, 20 years ago, it was the victims' rights movement!

That's right, the hot political truth everyone ignores is that many innocent people were convicted during the height of each of these various hysterias! Our society goes through media-fed frenzies and later discovers the awful results of the various witch hunts, but never admits it caused the problems "discovered!"

So we read that most of the daycare provider convic-

PARDON MY...FRENCH?

By David Foster

"Mea Culpa" is actually a Latin phrase loosely translated as "It's my fault, I admit it." This is a mea culpa for me, as I made a big mistake in last week's column, "My Angle on Iraq," when I committed that most grievous of journalistic sins, not triple-checking my some of information before putting words to paper; rather, I was working off memory at the last moment before deadline, and ended up throwing a wild pitch way over the backstop.

My paragraph pertaining to France's oil interests, specifically the naming of Unacol as a French oil company heavily invested in Iraq, was flat-out wrong. Unacol is an American oil company with no ties to France or Iraq, as far as I can determine.

HOWEVER, in my opinion the correct information from the Feb. 25 Christian Science Monitor article titled "Driving Forces in War-Wary Nations: The Stances of France, Germany, Russia, and China are Colored by Economic and National Interests" only strengthens my argument that France's interest in avoiding war and indefinitely containing Saddam Hussein is every bit as much of a matter of money as it is of French largesse; furthermore, the same could be opined of Germany, Russia, and China's resistance to the use of U.S. military force to disarm Hussein of his weapons of mass destruction.

From The Monitor: "'Most of the governments [resisting U.S. military action] stand to make some money, so they do have some interest in the current Iraqi government surviving," says Mike Lynch, managing director of Strategic Energy and Economic Resources. "It's not trivial amounts of money. Once it's developed, the oil will be 2.5 million barrels per day.'"

FRANCE: "France has lucrative economic interests that would be more lucrative if Hussein stays in power. France's TotalFinaElf has contracts with Iraq to develop the Majnoon and Bin Umar fields once sanctions are lifted. In addition, Iraq owes France billions in foreign debt accrued from arms sales in the 1970s and '80s, which experts say could be virtually uncollectible in the case of war." Note: The Majnoon oil field alone is estimated to contain reserves of up to 30 billion barrels of oil, with the capacity to be pumped for 1 million barrels a day, according to the U.S. Department of Energy.

The article goes on to further detail the interests France, Germany, Russia, and China each have in seeing that Saddam Hussein remains in power. You can look it up at www.csmonitor.com.

The Monitor article gives prominent mention of Deutsche Bank, which led me to look at that bank's fall report "Baghdad Bazaar: Big Oil in Iraq," as it was summarized six weeks ago by the London Observer, which also sheds some light on the slippery nature of mixing diplomacy, war, and oil, and the fallacy on the left of describing the U.S. as intent solely on a "war for oil," while at the same time pointing out that the right's argument to "disarm Saddam and free Iraq" is hardly the only possible goal of George Bush and Tony Blair:

"What happens next in this crisis may determine what happens to Iraq's oil, where it goes and who makes the resulting profits...417 new wells are planned [at this time by the Iraqi government]. That's a lot of new business for someone. If Saddam's regime survives, these wells will be drilled by Russian, Chinese, Iraqi, and Romanian compa-

With Every Fiber

Sleepless nights, images of death, despair. War is here, and my heart is sick, bleeding perhaps, for the inevitable loss of human life. We would rather not ponder it, but most have no choice today, unless they actively shove the thoughts out, or somehow manage to accept the appropriateness of violence. This I am afraid I cannot do. I have tried with every fiber of my being to find the path to comfort, or to agreement with my president, but I cannot. So today I state my opposition to violence, as well as my love of my country and my deepest respect for our brave military. These views may indeed co-exist.

I cannot fathom the depth of courage present in every soldier standing today directly in the face of peril. And they are doing it for me. And for all I love. And for the country where I live a free life. I may write what I wish, I may disagree with my leaders, I may vote. As a woman I am free, certainly more so than billions of my international peers. Choices open to me are merely dreams to them. I join them in the intense love of motherhood, but I do not share the anguish of watching my children starve, or die in my arms from a disease prevented easily by a cheap vaccine. They cannot imagine the wealth I enjoy, with clean running water at my fingertips, food and medicine in abundance, and a warm and secure home. By these standards, I am rich. And I am free. And every soldier facing death today is doing so with the motivation of protecting this existence. For that, words are inadequate to describe my gratitude.

My country is a beautiful place, by virtue of both its geography and its people. We are a good people. We long to do what is right. Our concerns are routinely focused on the welfare of others, and we strive to improve. In fact, we are such a hard-working nation in general that we really don't afford ourselves enough rest. Crime exists, as do greed, abuse, ignorance, and hate. But I believe that at the heart of our society, there is decency, and there is kindness.

That belief is what strangles me as I try to accept the pursuit of President Bush. Each time he speaks to us, I wait almost without breathing to hear him give me the proof – the real, unadulterated, courtroom admissible proof – of Saddam Hussein's actual treasure stores of such weapons that warrant war, and of the clear and present danger that Hussein poses to our great nation. He has never given me that proof. I am supposed to take him at his word. If it were something less appalling than war, perhaps I could. But he is asking me to accept only his repetitive phrases, assuring us of the danger and of his dedication to save us. The international inspectors insist they have found only scant evidence of such weaponry, but our administration simply does not accept these findings. And now we are engaged in war.

The world's populations have begged us to stop, begged us to wait. But the time is now, our president says with unshakable resolve. And when our allies disagree, we sting them with rapid-fire insults. Scorn and denigration of our allies is shortsighted and childish and should be stopped immediately. Our administration seems to say: "If you're not for us, you're against us." This, too, is dangerously simplistic and flat-out wrong. No one should march to war without great and deep contemplation, and rarely should anyone be maligned for choosing not to fight, especially in this situation, where the proof and the justification for violence is questioned intensely the world over.

Saddam is a murderous thug, that fact I think has been proven, and not just by our own government, but by evidence from many nations. If he were gone, his downtrodden people would surely benefit – I do think this is so. But is all-out war our only solution? Does this devastation help the already starving, desperate population? If war truly results in the liberation of these people — these people who are our fellow human beings, who have lives and who love their children, just like we do — If they are better because we have engaged in this conflict, then I will recant. But by the time this goes to print, perhaps we have already launched the so-called "mother of all bombs" (a most callous and nauseating misuse of the word "mother"). The carnage it inflicts will be real, and each innocent life extinguished is a deserved life, a life not all that unlike our own. I cannot dismiss a single innocent lost as a necessary evil, and that most certainly includes our own brave men and women in uniform. We have highly intelligent and able people in high military places. Can we not work with other nations' operatives to devise a plan of stealth whose only aim is Saddam and his cohorts? Why is that so impossible?

I have watched countless hours of C-Span, listening to Britain's House of Commons debates, our own Congress

Senate Panel Passes Slots, House Budget Cuts Them

by Dan Genz
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – The two chambers of the Maryland General Assembly took opposite tacks on legalizing slot machines Tuesday, with a Senate panel forwarding the idea to the full membership and the House introduction of a budget that replaces slots revenue with new taxes and spending cuts.

The Senate Budget and Taxation Committee voted 11-2 in favor of a plan to close the state's deficit and give $690 million for education each year through a heavily amended version of Gov. Robert Ehrlich's controversial slot machine proposal, which would put the gaming devices at several race tracks.

"If you look around there's not another state in this union that has a better product to fund education," Currie said. "This is a good bill," he said, quoting Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., "because nobody out there likes the bill."

The Senate measure gives education 46 percent of the expected $1.5 billion in annual slot machine revenues, while the tracks would get 39 percent. Local jurisdictions with slots gaming will receive 4.75 percent, and breeders will receive between 5 and 6 percent, with 5 percent going to the Lottery Commission's administrative costs. Ehrlich's plan gave education 42 percent and the tracks 43 percent.

Miller, D-Calvert, said the Senate will pass a slots bill to the House by the weekend and asked the House to "show me the money," if it won't buy into Ehrlich's plan.

The House has made its opposition to slots abundantly clear, voting overwhelmingly last week to study the issue for a year.

The budget the lower chamber revealed Tuesday replaces slots revenues with $100 million in cuts and $75 million in new taxes and fees on corporations.

"It's a tough budget, but it accomplishes the task of balancing with cuts and revenue," said Majority Leader Kumar Barve, D-Montgomery. "It was hard work to make the cuts, and I applaud the committee."

But the delegate whose job it is to sell the proposal to other members, Appropriations chairman Howard P. Rawlings, D-Baltimore, called the budget "a failure" at providing a remedy to the state's long-term needs. Rawlings, an ardent slots proponent, said his panel's budget leaves "a hell of a lot undone."

"We failed at the task of putting our house in order fiscally," because of a lack of new revenue, he said.

Borrowing money from funds each year is not the road to fiscal responsibility, Rawlings said. The state needs to address the long-term because it has solved deficits by borrowing from one-time funds three years in a row, he said.

The House budget drains $300 million from the Transportation Trust Fund, $106 million from the Rainy Day Fund, $75 million from the Workers Insurance Fund, and another $250 million from other funds. That does not address the state's financial problem, he said.

Using the long-term as a need for slots this year is "irresponsible and illogical," said Delegate Peter Franchot, D-Montgomery. "Every time you hear 'structural deficit,' substitute 'slots,'" he said.

The state faces expected deficits of $5.5 billion through 2008 without any new programs.

"We are in big trouble," Rawlings said.

The House budget gave small businesses a victory. It forestalled an attempt to rescind the portion of the sales tax it gets for collecting the tax.

Corporations weren't so fortunate. Businesses will have to spend four times the current amount, $100, for filing fees, and the budget closes a controversial Delaware holding company loophole.

Even affiliated companies or chains will have to file jointly in Maryland – bearing tax responsibility for all their dealings in the state.

Businesses said the proposal will make Maryland a worse place compared to other states.

Eventually, the House and Senate will have to agree on a budget to send to Ehrlich, something Miller said may take well beyond the scheduled April 7 end of this General Assembly session.

Getting House members to buy into the Senate version of the budget, said House Majority Leader Barve, will be a struggle. "Ask me if it gets out of the Senate."

Proposal To Have Moratorium On Death Penalty Dropped By Senate

by Sarah Hoye
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – An effort to reinstate a death penalty moratorium was halted in the Maryland Senate by a single vote Tuesday. The Senate defeated the measure 24-23, with Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert, casting the deciding vote.

The bill would have given new life to a moratorium imposed by Gov. Parris N. Glendening to allow University of Maryland researchers time to study any possible bias in the state's ultimate penalty.

Gov. Robert Ehrlich dumped his predecessor's moratorium upon taking office in January, even though the study results released that same month revealed racial and geographical bias in the state's application of the penalty.

If it passed, the bill would have imposed a new three-year moratorium and established the Maryland Commission on Capital Punishment to be headed by Lt. Gov. Michael Steele to ensure the state's death penalty was free from bias.

The vote, originally scheduled for last week, was a disappointment for Sen. Ralph Hughes, D-Baltimore.

"I was hoping to get that one vote," said Hughes, the bill's primary sponsor. "We'll just have to regroup and see what our next move can be. Hopefully some of the things learned here could be used at future appeals hearings."

Miller's deciding vote was no surprise. He'd said earlier this month he would not vote in favor of a moratorium, even though he voted to allow it to proceed to a full and final Senate vote.

"I wrestle with this issue every year, but I'm not ready to change my mind," Miller said. "The death penalty is not working in Maryland ... the decision has to be up or down, not for a moratorium."

Hughes had postponed the vote until Sen. Sharon Grosfeld, D-Montgomery, an avid proponent, returned from emergency surgery. But pleas from Grosfeld didn't change any minds.

"I am disappointed that [senators] could not distinguish between this and a repeal," Grosfeld said. "They voted against this because they saw this as boosting a death penalty repeal, which is a misunderstanding."

Grosfeld's legislation to repeal the death penalty never made it out of committee. She said she hoped to have had the chance to talk to more of her colleagues.

"I don't know how [there can be] that degree of acceptance of an inherently unjust problem when we're talking about putting someone to death," she said.

Disappointed, but not surprised by the vote, was Senate Judicial Proceedings chairman Sen. Brian Frosh, D-Montgomery.

"The study showed there needs to be adjustments and it needs to be fixed ... our system is insufficient," he said. "I don't think we've executed anyone who's innocent ... but if we keep it up we will."

But death penalty supporters said the vote was proper.

"I was pleased and I think justice will be served," said Sen. Nancy Jacobs, R-Harford, who exhorted her colleagues to vote down the measure. "This is about justice. This is about justice for Dawn Marie Garvin. This is about justice for the victim's families."

Garvin was slain in 1987 by Steven Oken, next in line on death row. Oken was to be executed this week before a stay was issued. Without the stay, Oken would have been the first Maryland inmate to be put to death since 1998.

Garvin's brother, Fred Romano, watched the vote from the gallery.

"I'm ecstatic. It's all about justice," Romano said. "The clock is ticking ... and it's about time the spotlight gets off the criminal and put on the victim."

Also in the gallery was Don "J.C." Moats, the father of Joseph Tutz, 21, who was fatally shot in Forestville in December 2001.

"I'm glad they did what they did," said Thomas Glisson, a Moats family friend. "It's going to help a lot of victims."

Delegates Take Two Tries To Pass Medical Marijuana; Senate Up Next

by Maria Tsigas
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – The Maryland House of Delegates initially said no to "medical marijuana," but then made a U-turn and passed the bill that would minimize penalties for chronically ill patients caught using marijuana.

The Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee, which had been awaiting House action, could vote today on the same bill. Last year, a medical marijuana bill passed in the House, but died in the Senate.

The bill failed during the initial House vote, 68-62, Tuesday morning, because it lacked a minimum majority of 71 votes. However, the bill was held for reconsideration in the afternoon session, where eight delegates who missed the morning balloting voted in favor, allowing it to pass with a 73-62 vote.

The bill that passed was significantly changed from the original, which called for the Board of Physician Quality Assurance to oversee a program to issue identification cards to patients who used marijuana for medical purposes. Now, the bill provides an opportunity for a person who is caught using marijuana to prove in court that use of the illegal drug was "of medical necessity."

Proponents argued the bill has maintained its original intent – to help those suffering from illnesses such as cancer, AIDS, or multiple sclerosis. Cancer patients on chemotherapy suffer from nausea and weakness "all the time." Once standard medications for those symptoms fail, marijuana may be appropriate as their last resort, said Delegate Dan Morhaim, D-Baltimore County, the bill's sponsor and a physician.

"This bill is about compassion. This bill is about medical necessity. This is about the sick," said Delegate Carmen Amedori, R-Carroll.

However, some medical marijuana proponents said this legislation is only a "partial victory."

"While this bill is a step forward in our struggle to protect seriously ill Marylanders, it does not go far enough," said Billy Rogers, state policies director for the Marijuana Policy Project in Washington. "Under the bill, even if the court agrees that a patient was using medical marijuana legitimately, the patient will be punished with a [$100] fine."

Opponents said the amended version was a far cry from the original bill, and that the bill should provide better regulation of medical marijuana use, not just a court defense.

Delegate Brian Moe, D-Prince George's, whose four amendments were rejected March 13 in the House, again pleaded with delegates to vote down the bill.

"This bill has nothing to do with medical marijuana," Moe said. Delegate Barry Glassman, R-Harford, called the bill "bad public policy."

"We're sending our law abiding citizens out to buy marijuana illegally," Glassman said. "If the senators are using their heads, they won't pass this bill."

Ehrlich Lobbying For Tougher Gun Laws With Project Exile

by Tom Lobianco
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Gov. Robert Ehrlich convened a group of state's attorneys and fellow Republican lawmakers Tuesday to rally support for his version of Project Exile – a proposal to toughen gun laws – with only a three-week window for the General Assembly to consider the proposal.

The meeting marked an increased effort by the governor in his lobbying for Exile. The proposal, one of the governor's four major pieces of legislation introduced this session, would enforce minimum sentencing for people convicted of gun crimes.

"We believe we will have Exile," said Ehrlich, who has spent most of his first three months in office battling the General Assembly over legalizing slot machines and fixing the state's $2 billion budget gap.

The bill is crafted after a Virginia law that toughens sentencing and moves gun crimes from state to federal court, said Ehrlich spokeswoman Shareese DeLeaver. By kicking gun crimes up to the federal level for prosecution, attorneys can get stiffer sentences, said Maryland U.S. Attorney Tom DiBiagio, one of Ehrlich's invited supporters.

The governor's bill, however, does not require federal prosecutors to take on an increased caseload. In fact, cooperation between state and federal prosecutors is "not new at all," DiBiagio said.

Some Maryland jurisdictions already work with DiBiagio's office in prosecuting gun crimes, including Prince George's County and Baltimore. Prince George's County state's attorney Glenn Ivey said Ehrlich's support will help ongoing efforts to crack down on gun crimes.

"The coordination is going to be helpful," he said.

Coordination between the governor's office and the General Assembly about the bill seemed to be lacking, however. With three weeks to go before the Legislature adjourns, some lawmakers said they were concerned about the governor's commitment to Exile and other parts of his legislative package.

Ehrlich dismissed those concerns, saying he intended to begin pushing Exile in March from the start.

"We wanted to do it right," Ehrlich said. "Right now we have to get our bills passed."

The bill is locked up in committee in both chambers with slim chances of survival. House Judiciary chairman Joseph F. Vallario Jr., D-Prince George's, said the bill won't make it out of his committee, and Senate Judicial Proceedings chairman Brian Frosh, D-Montgomery, has not said when his committee will vote on the bill, if he brings it to a vote at all.

Frosh is already on a winning streak against the administration, successfully blocking an Ehrlich Cabinet nominee, but Ehrlich said he is still optimistic.

"We met with [Vallario] ... we met with [Frosh]," Ehrlich said. "It's difficult to predict what the package will look like. We will obviously be working hard."

House Approves $260 Million In Corporate Taxes

by Dan Genz
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – The House approved about $260 million in new taxes and fees Wednesday, moving the budget's most controversial aspects from the back rooms to the Senate chambers.

Voting 89-47, the General Assembly's lower body approved the revenue measures along mostly party lines. They will begin debating the remainder of the $2 billion deficit-closing proposals in the budget today.

"We're in a deficit. We need money," said Delegate Michael Gordon, D-Montgomery, chairman of the subcommittee that brokered the bill. The package of new corporate filing fee in-costing families who had already paid for their children's trips, but that "the cost of student life is priceless."

In Montgomery County, Superintendent Jerry Weast had canceled foreign travel for hundreds of students who had planned to travel this spring for musical performances, foreign language study, and cultural exchange. Late Wednesday, that restriction was expanded to include a ban on any overnight trip or any trip more than 75 miles from the county, so that students could get back home quickly in the event of a crisis.

Weast also urged principals to weigh trips to Washington, D.C., on a case-by-case basis.

Keeping children close to home was cited by many school districts in their restrictions. Some Eastern Shore school systems canceled all trips off the Delmarva Peninsula, including trips for school-sponsored activities such as band, chorus, sports, field trips, and competitions.

"We feel that we can better ensure the safety of students and maintain communication with staff members and students if they do not travel too far from Wicomico County," schools superintendent Charlene C. Boston said Tuesday. Wicomico schools spokeswoman Tracy Sahler said a student trip to watch the Baltimore Orioles play this spring has been canceled. And high school students planning to compete in a statewide occupational skills championship in Catonsville this month will not be going, she said.

While bans on trips to Washington and New York were popular with school systems, students in Baltimore had not had their travel restricted as of Wednesday.

"We sent home a letter concerning emergency preparedness," said Vanessa Pyatt, a city schools spokeswoman. "But as of now we haven't stopped any trips."

But Anne Arundel County students will not be allowed to take school-sponsored trips to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York City, or anywhere else that would require air travel, said Jane Beckett-Donahue, spokeswoman for the county.

Cross, the South River saxophonist, testified before the Anne Arundel school board Friday on behalf of 130 people, students, and parents, some of whom had saved all year and already paid to go to Edinburgh. The last-minute cancellation of the South River High School trip by Anne Arundel County superintendent Eric J. Smith cost students and their parents thousands of dollars in reservation fees, said assistant principal George Beaumont.

Cross argued for the trip, saying, "We should not cower in our own country." But the board Tuesday voted to uphold Smith's decision to cancel the trip.

Cross said he understands. He's just happy the district will let him travel to Cleveland this spring to present his science fair project on rat brain proteins at a national competition. The school system has told him he has to drive.

creases, controversial loophole closings, a 2 percent tax on HMOs, and new tax compliance regulations were measures of both fairness and revenue, said Ways and Means vice chairwoman Anne Healey, D-Prince George's.

Opponents charged that the bill harms small businesses, big businesses and "Ma and Pa."

Keeping the family metaphor going, Minority Leader Al Redmer Jr., R-Baltimore County, said his family will face a $400 corporate filing fee for the rental property purchased last fall under a limited liability corporation, hurting his ability to break even on the deal.

Meanwhile, the new fees can run from $400 to as much as $20,000 for companies with more than 500 employees, up from a flat $100. The increase is expected to raise $125 million.

Another controversial measure would impose a 2 percent tax, providing $45 million for the state, on HMO insurance provider premiums. The tax is already collected on other forms of health insurance, bill supporters say.

"This is an issue of fairness. This is an issue of treating all different agencies the same," Healey said. "It is an issue whose time has come."

Taxing HMOs is a "non-starter," Gov. Robert Ehrlich said Tuesday, while his spokesman later called it "unacceptable."

Preparing to fight the vote, Redmer brought a handful of amendments to weaken the impact on business — and a white handkerchief to use when defeat was at hand. After losing four consecutive amendment votes by nearly 2-to-1, Redmer shelved the rest of his proposed amendments, waved the white handkerchief and told fellow lawmakers, "I know when I have been defeated ... so on behalf of Maryland taxpayers, I surrender."

BUNDLE UP BEFORE HITTING THE SLOPES – Sixteen "Bigs" and "Littles" with Big Brothers Big Sisters enjoyed a cold, snowy February afternoon recently snow tubing at the Wisp Ski Resort. After spiraling down the mountain, the volunteers and children warmed up in the warming hut with hot chocolate and cookies. For many of the Little Brothers and Sisters, this was their first time tubing. "Because of the generous support of the community and Wisp Ski Resort," said Joan Johnson, county coordinator for BBBS, "the Littles can participate in events such as this, and studies show that we do make a positive difference in the lives of Garrett County children – giving them hope for a brighter, happier, and more productive future." Emily Capel is pictured above waiting patiently while Big Sister Leah Huber helps Laura Casteel get ready so they can snow tube together down the mountain. For information on BBS, persons may call Joan Johnson at 301-334-3591 or 800-400-0735. Photo by Johnson.

Loophole closings garnered $35 million, a move Majority Leader Kumar Barve, D-Montgomery, hailed as a "no-brainer."

Minority Whip Kenneth Schisler, R-Talbot, called them the worst provisions of the bill and said the $35 million in taxes threaten to severely damage Maryland's standing in the business community.

But he and Redmer looked on the bright side: The approval will make electing more Republicans next election season easy, they said. The bill passed with a veto-proof majority, but Ehrlich might test the lawmakers' resilience.

"He would certainly consider [a veto]," Ehrlich spokesman Henry Fawell said.

Passing it without a veto could hurt Ehrlich. Two anti-tax groups that strongly supported his campaign have blasted him for proposing a property tax, and threatened to abandon him if he signs on to further taxes.

Now the fight with the Senate — which, like Ehrlich, wants to use slot machine revenue to help balance the budget — begins in earnest, said Speaker Michael Busch, D-Anne Arundel. But some paused to celebrate before the battle.

"We balanced the freaking budget," Barve said. "That is not a trivial matter in these times."

Diverse Co-Curricular Slate On Tap For Spring At Garrett

A variety of co-curricular activities are available to Garrett College students this spring semester and into early summer, according to a schedule recently published by Sally Staley, coordinator.

MARCH

During spring break, two trips have been scheduled. On March 19-29 members of the Wildlife Club are traveling to Arizona, where they will experience new habitats and ecosystems as they hike and camp in state and national parks. Another group of students will travel to Broadway and visit New York City from March 26 to 29.

Other activities in March will be the dramatic presentation Unchanging Love at the Our Town Theatre from March 26 to 30, the concert by Robert Plano, young piano virtuoso, in the auditorium on March 29, and the concert by Reggie Morris and the Chicago Blues, a reggae band, on March 31.

APRIL

Four activities are scheduled in April. The first is set for April 5, when "Stirrings With Dance Alloy," a multi-disciplinary program connecting the arts and the environment with human life, will be presented at Frostburg State University. A trip to the Women's History Museum at Seneca Falls, N.Y., is being sponsored by the Psychology of Women class April 9-10.

A performance by Ewabo, a steel drum trio, is scheduled in the Garrett College auditorium on April 16, and a lecture by Michael and Vianne Bell, "It Takes a Village—Creating Communities of Learning in South Africa," will be offered on April 16.

MAY

Three activities are scheduled in May: a trip to the Smithsonian Institution on May 2; the third annual "Write Away" writers' conference on May 10; and the Our Town Theatre presentation of Camping With Henry and Tom, about the visit of Henry Ford and Thomas Edison to Swallow Falls, during the last week of the month.

SUMMER

Summer activities include the four Chautauqua programs, "Let Freedom Ring," on July 5, 6, 7, and 8 that will present the characters of Thomas Paine, Frederick Douglass, Susan B. Anthony, and Franklin Roosevelt, respectively.

Persons desiring further information about the co-curricular offerings at Garrett College may contact Staley at 301-387-3132.

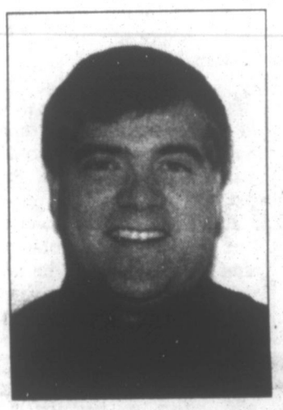
GCHM Pharmacist Attends Program On Bioterrorism



Lance Rhodes, pharmacy director at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, recently attended a training program in Rockville titled "The Pharmacist's Response to Bioterrorism."

Rhodes first registered with the Maryland Board of Pharmacy as a volunteer in order to participate in the training to respond to state and local emergencies.

"I thought about the county and the hospital, and wanted to volunteer so that we would be available to respond in a bioterrorist emergency," he said.

Following the program, Rhodes was issued an Emergency Response Card, which allows him to participate in preparing/dispensing medication and educating the public should a disaster require the use of pharmaceuticals.

His training included information on various treatments for agents that could be used as biological warfare and information to assist in the National Pharmaceutical Stockpile.

Young Terra Alta Woman Pilots Nighthawk, USN's Newest 'Copter

LTJG JESSICA CRAWFORD, NAVAL AVIATOR

By Kearstin N. Clay

With the war on terrorism under way and a war with Iraq brewing, Jessica Crawford, Terra Alta, W.Va., has come face to face with the same fate as countless fellow Americans deployed to the Persian Gulf. The young woman is a pilot in the United States Navy.

"You just have to have faith in the country and believe in what you're helping to defend. You can't think of it in terms of fear, but in terms of a job to do and people depending on you to deliver for a cause you believe in," Crawford said.

She didn't always know what she wanted to do, but, "[Jessica] always had a good head on her shoulders," explained Mark Bjorkman, Crawford's high school guidance counselor.

"When I realized I needed to pick a direction in life, I thought of what I'd most like to do if I could do anything, and this is where it took me," said Crawford.

While playing a game of "if I could be anything" with her mother Donna during her sophomore year of high school, Crawford decided that she would like to be a pilot. "I wanted to be a pilot because I wanted to do something for a living that I enjoyed and felt was a worthwhile contribution. I guess deep down I also hope to be a role model for others – sort of a 'you can do anything you put your mind to' attitude that I wish we would see more of," she explained. "Luckily I was raised to not only dream, but to believe in myself enough to work for it."

With the help of her family she began to do some research on getting a pilot's license. She quickly came to the realization that the costs involved were astronomical. One viable option was the military. After graduating from Preston High in Kingwood with the class of 1996, Crawford was accepted to the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis.

"She chose the Naval Academy because she wanted to fly and to me that sounded odd. I thought, well, wouldn't you go [to the] Air Force Academy? But she did the numbers and she figured everybody who went to the Air Force Academy wanted to be a pilot," her mother said. "At the Naval Academy, there are so many other things that you can do for the Navy, the numbers would probably be better to get a pilot's license."

Upon earning a degree in astrospace engineering, Crawford began her two-year training at flight school in Pensacola, Fla. After pilots learn "every nut, every bolt, every system, everything from the front to the back," they have to decide what type of craft they want to fly: props, jets, or helicopters. Although many of her friends couldn't believe she would turn down the opportunity to fly jets, she chose helicopters.

"Flying is incredible and helicopter flying is a challenge that seemingly breaks all the rules," said Crawford. "I'll stick with it as long as I can, it's too much fun not to."

Currently she is with Helicopter Combat Support Squadron Five, Detachment Two, as an LTJG (0-2), unrestricted line officer, naval aviator, stationed in Guam. "But she's not there," her mother said with a laugh.

After spending only about a month in Guam and surviving Typhoon Pongsana, Crawford was deployed to the Persian Gulf, where she is currently aboard the USNS Flint T-AE 32, an ammunition supply ship. However, during most of the day she can be found aboard an MH-60S Knighthawk, the Navy's newest helicopter, which is equivalent to the Army's Blackhawk with maritime adjustments for shipboard operations.

As of right now her days are pretty busy. "The squadron in Guam sends out detachments to various ships in the Pacific. Each detachment is made up of approximately 28 folks and two helicopters. We're a self-sufficient group providing maintenance, support, administration, flight crews, air traffic control, ground handling, etc., in order to maintain 24-hour readiness capability for search and rescue, combat support, and logistics throughout the 5th and 7th fleets," she explained.

Her commitment to the Navy won't conclude for another four years or so, but for now she's content and her family is proud.

EMS Report

munities, the council examines response times and manpower issues.

Council member Brad Frantz, Garrett County Emergency Management director, reviewed the county's operational statistics for 2001.

Last year, the Northern and Southern Garrett Rescue squad's 263 EMS personnel responded to 1,950 calls. Their average total call time, from the time a call was received until a squad arrived at a hospital, was 83.16 minutes. Allegany County's total response time for its 14 squads was 50:59.

Frantz noted that Garrett's response time was slower because of geography. The Northern Garrett squad has a greater distance to transport patients than Southern, which would "skew" the time, he explained.

The lack of manpower is one of the bigger problems that the council will be addressing in the coming year, reported Dr. William Mays, secretary/treasurer and Region I medical director.

It takes so much time and effort to become an EMT, remain certified, and devote many hours on a squad, he said, that many people are reluctant to become volunteers. Additionally, those already volunteering many hours of their lives are also burning out from the stress, which is leading to manpower shortages.

EMT-B certification requires 130 hours, the equivalent of an A.A. degree in nursing, Mays pointed out. Paramedic training requires 550 course hours.

"Are we putting too much demand on our volunteers?" asked Commissioner Fred Holliday.

"Yes," said Mays. Not only has the number of 911 calls increased over the years, but the public is expecting more medical treatment in the field. "It's not scoop and run anymore," he said.

The doctor noted that the council has had to cancel several training classes because of the lack of interested students.

The council is trying to recruit new volunteers and raise public awareness about emergency medical services, especially in local schools.

"So often we don't stop and think about the amount of time and energy that fire and rescue volunteers put into helping us," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg.

For information about becoming an EMT, persons may call David Ramsey, Region I Emergency Medical Services Advisory Council administrator, at 301-895-5934 or e-mail dramsey@mdemus.umaryland.edu.

GCAC Requests $10,000 From Commissioners

The Garrett County Arts Council made its annual request for funding from the county this week. Last year the council received $5,000. Executive director Steve Schlosnagle asked the Garrett County commissioners to double that amount for FY 2004.

"Places with healthy, vibrant arts communities are places which are attractive to businesses, to visitors, and to residents," said Schlosnagle. "The arts mean business. That's why the arts play an important role in the consideration and implementation of strategic economic development plans in many communities."

Some of the many ways in which the council makes the county more attractive, he said, are the following:

•Operates the Gallery in Oakland, where local artists and students exhibit/sell their works.

•Conducts summer workshops and art/craft demonstrations.

•Allocates at least $2,000 annually to fund special art workshops and presentations in the public schools.

•Supports dozens of arts presentations by other local nonprofit organization through its grants program. Last year the council disbursed more than $30,000 to 19 organizations.

Schlosnagle said the state had cut the council funding for Community Arts Development by $4,700 so far this year. More cuts are expected.

Commissioner Fred Holliday said state cuts were affecting everyone. "Image what it's like at our (the county) level," he said, noting that the county may lose as much as $1.75 million from the Highway User Fund alone.

Several GCAC board members and supporters asked the commissioners to allocate the full $10,000 request for a variety of reasons.

The arts uplift people's spirits in times of crises, said supporter Judy Turrentine. She and her husband recently moved from Washington, D.C., to Deep Creek Lake. Before the move, she served 25 years in the U.S. Air Force as a member of the Singing Sergeants.

Following Sept. 11, the group did not cancel its tours as many other groups did. Turrentine said her group's music moved people and helped to restore their faith in their country.

"In a world on the verge of war," she said, "the arts bring us hope, faith, beauty, and joy. It may be the one thing that makes us civilized."

Last year the council allocated $5,000 to Our Town Theatre for its general operations. "We try very hard to be there for the community," said OTT artistic director Jane Avery. "You can hear the relief in parents' voices when they realize there is no cost for their children to participate," she said about inquiries on the costs for children to take part in OTT events such as Barter Theatre Day and KidStuff.

Judy Carbone, a potter, said she and her photographer husband received "immediate and enthusiastic support" from the council for their artistic endeavors when they moved here from Fairfax, Va.

Finding funding is always difficult, said Wayne R. Johnson, Garrett Lakes Arts Festival board chair. But with private donations and state funding down, the job is even more difficult this year. He said tickets sales account for only 25 percent of their budget. Last year the council contributed $7,300 to GLAF.

"We do this not for ourselves but for the people of Garrett County," Johnson said, adding that he would like to see an accounting of how many hours all the arts supporters volunteer each year.

"Because of the remoteness of the area, many young people don't get off the mountain to attend arts and cultural events," said past executive director Beth Johnson. "Without the Arts Council, many kids would not be exposed to them."

"I know the value of the school performances," said Commissioner David Beard. The former teacher said the students always looked forward to the council-supported presentations. He added that he was a "richer" person as well because of the arts.

The commissioners received a copy of the council's FY 2004 proposed budget. Included in the $146,890 budget are administration and operations costs, program and project expenses, and grant allocations for organizations.

Secretary Tom Frawley said the council has a detailed application process for grant requests. "The money will be spent, hopefully, wisely and carefully," he told the commissioners about the requested $10,000 from the county.

In addition to the county's allotment, the council receives funding from the Maryland State Arts Council, Gallery sales, fees and tuitions, membership contributions, admissions and raffle ticket sales, and various other contributions.

Last year, more than 150,000 persons attended various council-supported events throughout the county, according to Schlosnagle.

The commissioners will review the council's request further with the county administrator and Financial Services before making a final decision.

THESE WOMEN ARE OUR HISTORY — Famous women from America's past and present who have led efforts for women's rights—and human rights for all—came to life in "From Tea Talk to Presidential Talk," a program of readings presented at Garrett College recently in observance of Women's History Month. The program was narrated by Dr. Gail Herman, and was sponsored by the Garrett Branch of American Association of University Women and the college's Psychology of Women class, taught by Terry Kasecamp. In her welcoming remarks Herman told of how women at one time talked over teacups at kitchen tables before these women leaders moved into other arenas as public speakers, abolitionists, suffragists, social workers, and political activists. Organized by Herman and Kasecamp, the program was also presented for a local Girl Scout Troop, and will be presented again for the students and teachers of Accident Elementary School. The college event also featured displays created by Kasecamp's students that depicted the progress of women's rights through the years.

What's Happening Our Town Theatre

'The Play's the Thing'...But Not Quite Yet.
By Melodee Hill

This is the second installment in a series of three articles about producing a play.

After Jane Avery and the board of Our Town Theatre decide that Romulus Linney's play Unchanging Love is a play they would like to produce, dates are chosen for the production. Ads are placed in the paper and calls are made and friends are told about the upcoming auditions. This is probably the largest deciding factor in producing a play. If enough people do not audition, it is impossible to stage the play. Garrett County has an amazing number of talented artists of all disciplines, but a finite number of actors or people interested in theater. Whether or not enough of those people will be interested and show up for auditions is unpredictable.

Jane, as director, has given her permission for me to attend the auditions. The musical director, Muriel Franc, will also be there to audition the actors who are trying out for a singing part. While Unchanging Love is a play that contains musical numbers, I would not call it a musical; the singing is an integral part of the action of the play. Muriel and Jane discuss the music while we wait for auditioners.

Jane has prepared forms (a little like job applications) and left them on the table downstairs. When someone comes to audition, he fills out the form, giving some general personal information, part or parts he is trying out for, nights he is available for rehearsal, and whether or not he would accept a different part or be a technician on the stage crew if he did not get the part he wanted. There are copies of different characters' scenes and monologues on the table, and the auditioner is requested to bring those with him when he comes upstairs to audition.

The first evening of auditions is pretty busy, with quite a few people showing up. First, if the person were trying out for a singing role, he would go with Muriel back to the piano and she would play some strains of the music to find out the person's range. Jane and I would listen while the two of them would sing parts of some of the songs or some songs that the singer knew well. This was to find out if the singer had the range for the music and could project enough to be heard.

When they were finished, the auditioner would come over to see what Jane wanted him to do. Some people seemed very comfortable with this whole process, while a few seemed nervous or hesitant. Jane gave each auditioner a brief overview of the play and then asked him to read the part. If a person seemed nervous, Jane worked really hard to put him at ease and talked to him until he seemed comfortable. Some of the actors were amazing-themselves one minute and a completely different character before their next heartbeat. Jane would ask them to repeat their monologue using a different emotion, voice, facial expression or body posture. Most of the people could do this with varying degrees of skill. Jane later explained to me that she was trying to see how well the actor could follow her instructions and remember directions.

During the last evening of auditions, I asked Jane how she chose her actors. She explained, "Since I have been doing this for years, sometimes it is an instinctive choice. Obviously, the play calls for a certain number of males and females, and there may be a part which requires a certain physical type. Beyond that I look for people who have indicated that they have enough free time to make a commitment to the rehearsal schedule, people who are able to take direction, and people who are able to switch gears and be flexible. Sometimes I like to gamble and cast a person against his type. Maybe cast a gentle, compassionate man in the role of a rough and tumble, cold-hearted scoundrel, or have a young person play a character who is much older. It is a challenge for both of us, and we can both grow from the experience."

Over the next few days, Jane makes some tough choices, and finally, the cast list is announced and a technical crew is assembled. A date is set for the cast and crew to meet and get to know each other, read the play as a group, and discuss the individual characters. There is also discussion about props, sound effects and design of the set. The challenging aspects of the play for the audience, as well as the cast, also enter into the conversation. Rehearsals begin in a few days; three to four evenings a week for the next five weeks, then nightly for the final week before opening night. Everyone leaves with a copy of the playbook, and most will go home and read it through again and highlight their lines, so at the first rehearsal they can easily find their lines while they are gesturing and walking about on the stage.

The first rehearsals are very rough, a little like play readings on the move. The director starts to block the play. This means she tells the actors how and where to stand and how to interact with the other actors who are in the same scene. The actors are trying to write down her directions so they won't forget them, read their lines, and add emotions and characteristics to bring their part to life. Jane decides if an action looks natural, what emotions the actor should be expressing, whether the scene looks good and is visible from different audience angles, and about ten other things that I haven't learned yet.

During the first week of rehearsals, the play seems like a gelatinous thing, free-form with a tenuous outline – a chaotic organization of words and actions. There is no set yet, imagination is a handy tool, and although Jane has a vague idea what is going to be where, even she is not sure of some things. "Shelby, I think you just walked through a wall" or "Leena, you just looked at him through the building" are frequent comments.

After a few weeks, the stage is built and some of the set furniture is placed. The director and actors rearrange themselves accordingly, and the chaos becomes recognizable. Rehearsals are still stop and go, actors are still reading from their books, but the play has shape and life – still no walls and doors – but shape and life!

The person responsible for the walls and doors and the rest of the set and lighting design is Ben Sincell, professor of theater at Garrett College and the technical director for Our Town Theatre, and several other Garrett County arts organizations. According to Ben, a well-designed set will be easy for the actors to maneuver within, will be a backdrop, rather than an intrusion, into the play, while suggesting elements of the play with subtle symbolism.

While he is creating a design for a set, Ben will read the play about four or five times. During his first reading, he will get the sense of the story, while subsequent readings will suggest themes and metaphors that he can incorporate into the set design and the lighting of the play. While he was reading Unchanging Love, Ben said it gave him "a gritty, dirty feeling, like something greasy"; for some "inexplicable" reason it reminded him of pickled pigs' feet. (I hope he doesn't incorporate too many of those into the set!) The set should fulfill the needs proscribed by the script as well as the desires of the director, and finally it should follow the rules of line, form, mass and harmony that govern any work of art. There is a lot of creativity and carpentry that will go into building the set over the course of the next few weeks.

As he establishes the space of the stage and the set building continues, Ben will be thinking about the lighting. This is the device he uses to build an emotional connection between the actors and the audience using color and angle. He has to be sure that the audience can see all the action of the play, or he can control how much or how little of an actual scene the audience sees. He can direct or divert their attention with critical lighting cues, provoke a response, or set a mood. The audience usualiy never notices these subtle manipulations while they are immersed in the action of a play, but they are an integral part of the experience.

The set is the most tangible aspect of the play, and a lot of creative and physical energy goes into the creation of this piece of art. I was curious how it felt for Ben after weeks of labor, and a few nights of use, to have to tear the whole thing apart and return the theatre to its original state. He explained that when he first started doing theater it was very upsetting for him to have to destroy a set, but now it was rather like filling in a grave and he was usually ready to move on to the next project. "When a painter paints a painting, there it is. Theater, as an art form, only exists in the moment," he commented. "Even if you perform the same play every night, it is never the same show, and it always ends at the curtain call as soon as the actors come on stage as themselves."

Next week: props and costumes, final rehearsals, artistic expression.

Children's Movies To Be Shown At Train Station

Children's movies will be shown at the B&O Railroad Station in Oakland during a 3-month trial period starting Saturday, March 29, from 1 to 3 p.m.

Thomas & Friends movies will be shown, which are based on the railway series by the Rev. W. Awdry. I Love Toy Trains featuring the music of Jim Coffey will also be shown. These movies are "award-winning and educational," said a spokesperson for the weekly event.

The cost is one Train Station dollar. These dollars are available from all local merchants located on Alder and Second streets, with the exception of Englander's. For every $5 purchased, persons receive one Train Station dollar, which children may use to purchase movie tickets, popcorn, cotton candy, or Thomas the Tank Engine products.

The cost to local merchants will be $20 per year, and in return the shops' names will be mentioned in the advertising.

"This will give our children a place of their own to go, parents a chance to shop because Fresh Start Day Care, a licensed daycare provider, will supervise the children, and help promote downtown shops," said the spokesperson.

SMS STUDENT WINS STATE POETRY AWARD – Joanna Guy, a sixth-grader at Southern Middle School, was recently named a winner in the Young Authors' Contest sponsored by the State of Maryland International Reading Association Council and by the Garrett County Reading Council. Guy's entry won first place in the poetry category for grade 6. "Perspectives," her winning poem, is a combination of two poems she had originally written separately. It has been published in the 2003 Young Authors' Anthology Literacy: Light of the World. The young poet is pictured above at a reception that was held in Hunt Valley last week to honor contest winners from across the state with, from the left, her parents John and Elizabeth Guy, and her Southern Middle language arts teacher and contest sponsor Polly English-Ramsay. "Much of Joanna's inspiration for her creative writing is gained from observing the clouds," Ramsey commented. "She believes the moving clouds symbolize ideas and changes in life." Guy's winning poem appears to the right.

PERSPECTIVES
by Joanna Guy

How DO things happen?
A little boy said,
On a cold lonely night
When he was in bed.

Are we just here
On an endless breeze,
To float around
With no destiny?

Or when feathers blow 'round
With the sigh of the wind,
And land in birds' nests
Are they 'specially sent?

Do we die because we live?
Is what we think right opposite?
Is God an idea?
Is the devil our mind?
Is heaven above us?
Or is it just sky?

Little bugs dance
In the light of the moon
To the rustling leaves—
Mother Nature's tune.

A wolf cries to the sky
Is he asking why?
How DO things happen?
Does life simply go by?

We have many theories
Of how things could be,
But what if they're wrong—
Do we just believe?

Young Readers Club To Discuss Fairy Tale Parody

The Ruth Enlow Library's Young Readers Club will discuss the comedic fairy tale parody Once Upon a Marigold by Jean Farris at its upcoming meeting, set for 4:15 p.m. on Thursday, April 10, at the library.

"Who knew love could be so amazing—and stupefying?" the publisher's book description asks. "Not Christian. He was clueless when he started spying on the royal family through his telescope. He lives in a cave with a troll for a dad, after all. If his dad had only warned him about all that mind-boggling stuff, maybe things wouldn't be such a mess. But then, maybe, Princess Marigold would be dead.

"But Christian wasn't warned. And now that he's fallen for the princess, it's up to him to untwist an odd love triangle—er, rectangle—and foil a scheming queen who wants to take over the kingdom, even if it means bumping off her own daughter.

"With echoes of William Goldman's modern classic The Princess Bride, Jean Ferris's hilarious parody of 'Once upon a time...' overflows with oddball characters and sage observations—and ends with a slapstick happily-ever-after that's full of surprises."

Young readers who would like to participate in the discussion are encouraged to borrow a copy of Once Upon a Marigold from the library, and read as much as possible prior to the meeting. Participants are not required to complete the book to attend.

The Ruth Enlow Library also offers book clubs for teens and adults. Further information can be obtained by contacting the library at 301-334-3996 or visiting its web site at www.relib.net. All book clubs are funded by the Friends of the Library.

A MASTER AT WORK – Coaching young men in the game of basketball is a passion for Southern High School boys' varsity coach Tom Bosley, a passion that has led not only to hundreds of wins by the Rams over his 17-season tenure, but to innumerable personal benefits for the hundreds of players under his tutelage in those years. His achievements were recognized Saturday at College Park, where he was named the Mideast Sectional Boys' Basketball Coach of the Year by the National Federation of High School's Coaches Association. Bosley coaches not only high school varsity players, but is actively involved in local youth leagues as a coaches' coach, and is a well-known instructor at various collegiate basketball camps. He has also been a successful coach in the sports of football and baseball. See story for details.

Southern's Tom Bosley Named Sectional Coach Of The Year

A major honor recognizing many years of outstanding work as a high school basketball coach has been bestowed on Southern High School boys' varsity coach Tom Bosley.

Bosley, who has been the Rams' mentor for 17 seasons, was named the Mideast Sectional Coach of the Year (2002) for basketball by the National Federation of High School Coaches Associations. The award was presented Saturday to Bosley by Ned Sparks, executive director of the Maryland Public Secondary Schools Athletic Association, during halftime of the Maryland 2A championship game at College Park.

The Mideast Section of the NFHS includes the states of Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia. The association is the official national coaches association of the National Federation of State High School Associations.

As the Mideast sectional winner, Bosley is automatically a finalist for the National Coach of the Year in his sport. Recipients of the national awards will be announced by April 1.

In his 17 years at the helm of the SHS program, Bosley has amassed a record of 273 wins and 132 defeats for a 67% win efficiency. In the past five seasons, the collective mark of his teams is an outstanding 101-22, or a win percentage of 82.

His career includes five 20-plus win seasons, and his teams have won three area championships, five Western Maryland Interscholastic League titles since joining the league eight years ago, and two 1A West Region championships. Eight of his teams have made the final eight, and two have advanced to the final four in the state. The last team to reach the state semifinals was that of 2000-01.

Bosley is known throughout the region as a "professor" of basketball, and has been an instructor at numerous area and collegiate basketball camps. He was selected as an assistant coach to Cokey Robinson for the United States squad that played in the Jordan Brand Capital Classic in the 2001-02 season, where he coached some of the top Division I prospects in the country, including Nik Caner-Medley of the University of Maryland.

Bosley was quick to point out that, while he feels "very honored" to be named the recipient of the award, he considers it more of a team award that he accepted on behalf of a lot of people.

"The success that I have enjoyed is a result of the efforts of many, many people," he said. "In fact, it's the result of an entire basketball coaching/training system that is in place in Garrett County, with a lot of people playing key roles in making that system work so well."

Bosley explained that area children are introduced to the system in the youth league when they are just in the third grade, and that the fundamentals they receive from that point on are consistent with how basketball is taught and coached at Southern High School.

"Every year I run a clinic for the local youth coaches, just to make sure we are all on the same page in our approach to the game," he said, "at least with the basic fundamentals, such as emphasizing one-on-one defense. And then I spend a lot of time going around to watch the practices and games of the kids, both boys and girls. By the time they reach our program, they've been in the system for a number of years, their fundamentals are both sound and consistent, and they know pretty much what to expect.

"The value of our system is not just that it teaches the kids the fundamentals in a consistent way, but it also builds their confidence and helps them develop a real passion for basketball, plus that strong work ethic that is needed to keep improving," he said.

Bosley noted the dedication and hard work of several other coaches and athletic department personnel, including Dave Bender, Don Stemple, Paul Pacella, Jim Bosley, and Fred Gregg.

"These are among the key people who spend so much time and effort to make our system work," he said, "and, of course, there are many others, too numerous to mention.

"We get tremendous support from Mr. Woods (principal) and the rest of our staff, from local businesses that support us financially, and from the community in general," he said. "Again, it takes a huge team effort by a lot of people for any athletic program to be successful."

Bosley said that, while winning games is the goal and is the fun part of basketball, it's not the wins and losses that are ultimately important.

"What is most important is that, through athletics, we can help these young people become contributing citizens in our society," he said. "Endeavors and achievement in athletics are invaluable in just about any other path these kids choose to take in their adult life, whether its college, the military, or going right into the work place.

"We (coaches) spend a lot of time sitting down and talking to our kids about many things besides basketball. We talk about values and the importance of family and driving safely and drugs, alcohol, and tobacco. We encourage them to be involved in a lot of school activities and programs besides basketball.

"If through basketball I can't make a positive impact on a young man, especially one who is having problems, then I really feel like I have failed in my job as a coach," he said, "and, unfortunately, I've had a few of those. But I have also been at least a small part of some real success stories," he said, "and that's really why I love teaching so much."

Bosley also has an extensive background in coaching football and baseball at Southern, and is a former basketball coach of the Garrett College Lakers.

"Tom Bosley is the epitome of what a teacher/coach should be," stated Tom Woods, school principal. "He's an excellent teacher in the classroom from 8 to 3, where he uses a forum of athletics to reach students. But a lot of people don't realize that some of the greatest teaching occurs in an after-school setting, such as in athletics. Tom teaches the values of the sport, but more importantly, he teaches values of life."

NORTHERN'S "BOYS OF SPRING" – The Northern High School baseball team is itching to get on the field and show what it can do, and the Huskies will get their chance tomorrow afternoon in the 2003 season opener at Westmar. The NHS players, kneeling from the left, are Preston Sisler, Adam DeWitt, Derek Workman, Torrey Poholsky, Travis Spear, and Jason Thomas. Standing are Mike Wolf, Jordan Brenneman, Dan Vagnetti, Cliff Everett, Danny Ellis, Kris Carr, and Chad Carr. The Huskies' head coach is Phil Carr, and the assistant coaches are John Helmick, Jamie Workman, Jon Houser, Ed Carr, and Jeff Carr (not pictured).

Young Northern High Diamond Squad Ready To "Go For Gold"

The Northern High School boys' varsity baseball team has its work cut out for the coming season, as the Huskies return nine players from last year's 9-10 roster that will be welcoming a number of underclassmen to the varsity ranks. NHS gets its first taste of the spring sport tomorrow afternoon when Northern visits Westmar for a 4:30 p.m. season opener in Lonaconing.

"We're still a young team but we do have some valuable experience," commented Northern head coach Phil Carr. "We started four to five sophomores every game last year and were very competitive in most of the games we lost. We had some tough losses last year, some in the later innings and one game in extra innings. Hopefully with a little more experience we can finish off some of those games this year."

Among last year's starters lost to graduation were two stalwarts, shortstop Greg Whittemore and backstop Bryan Lenhart, who respectively were the 2002 NHS squad's two leading hitters. Both of the former Huskies continue to ply their talents on the local diamond circuit for Garrett College coach Ed Wildesen and his Lakers.

The top returning offensive performers for this year's Northern unit are junior Chad Carr, who tallied a .294 batting average with eight runs batted in last season; senior Dan Vagnetti—.262 average, three doubles, and 10 RBI; and junior Derek Workman—.250 average and 15 RBI. Each member of that trio knocked one home run last year.

The top returnees for Carr's pitching staff are junior Jason Rice, who chalked up a 4-2 mark last season, with 51 strikeouts in just 35 innings of work and a 2.60 earned run average; Vagnetti—1-2, 24 strikeouts in 29 and 2/3 innings, 4.08 ERA; and junior lefty Torrey Poholsky—1-0, 10 strikeouts in 10 innings, and 2.10 ERA.

"I feel we will have an experienced, solid pitching staff with some depth," stated Carr, who pointed to senior Cliff Everett, juniors Danny Ellis and Billy Jones, and Preston Sisler, a sophomore, as the Huskies who will round out his mound staff. "We hope to play solid defense behind our pitchers.

"We need to take advantage of opportunities anytime they present themselves. Our team speed is better, so hopefully we can make some things happen. Our weakness could be scoring a lot of runs—we have to improve our hitting," the Huskies' skipper commented.

Carr listed his probable starting line-up around the horn as follows: at first base, senior Landon Southerly; second base, Workman; shortstop, Sisler; third base, Vagnetti; and catcher, Chad Carr, with Sisler and fellow sophomore Michael Wolf backing him up. Patrolling the outfield will be: Everett or Ellis in right; Poholsky in center; and junior Jason Thomas or Wolf in left. Players who can plan on being called upon to make valuable contributions

Correction On Wrestling Noted

It was incorrectly reported in last week's issue that Northern High School wrestler Casey Kamp was defeated by Ethan Cohen of Hammond. In fact, Kamp defeated Cohen by a 7-2 decision to earn third place in his division, with Cohen settling for fourth. The error is regretted.

Lakers Off To A Rough Start; Lose Four Of Five

After about a half-dozen scheduled games were cancelled or postponed because of winter weather conditions, the Garrett College baseball team was finally able to begin its season this past week. But it has been a rough beginning for Coach Ed Wildesen and his young squad, whose first steps onto a field were taken the day of their first game. The Lakers then proceeded to drop four of their first five contests.

Garrett opened with a 9-4 loss to the junior varsity of West Virginia State College at Institute, W.Va., last Friday. They met the same team for a doubleheader the following day and finished with a split, winning the opener, 5-3, and getting edged in the second contest, 6-5.

The Lakers were then topped by visiting Morris College (N.J.), 8-6, on Monday, and dropped a 12-5 decision to host Allegany College of Maryland on Tuesday.

Four Laker errors in the first inning against the West Virginia State jayvees on Friday gave the home team a 2-0 lead. Garrett came back to knot the score at 3-3, and later at 4-4, before the Yellow Jackets erupted for three runs in the seventh and two in the eighth to gain the victory.

Pacing the Lakers' nine-hit effort was freshman Giancarlo Silvestri, who was 3-for-3 for the day and scored a run. Jarod Bennis provided two singles and two runs scored, while former Southern High School standout Tobi Stoner contributed a double.

Pacing State was Flynn, who stroked a pair of doubles and a single, and also scored three runs. Taylor provided three singles and scored twice.

In the first game on Saturday, the Lakers trailed 3-2 going into the final inning, but rallied for three runs to pick up the win, despite having only three hits for the entire game.

Leading the seventh inning effort was freshman Kyle Moore, who smacked a three-run double. The only other Garrett hits were singles by sophomore James Funk and former Northern Husky Greg Whittemore.

The Yellow Jackets finished with six hits, with Flynn again leading the way with two.

Stoner earned the win on the mound and struck out six in the process.

A pair of two-run homers by the Jackets led to the Lakers' downfall in the second game, with McDowell smacking one in the third inning, and Shillino rapping one in the fourth.

Moore gave the Lakers a 3-0 lead with a three-run blast in the first inning, and also had two singles in Garrett's six-hit effort.

Adding a single and scoring three runs was Silvestri, while James Funk finished with two RBI.

Adkins went 2-for-3 for State, with a double and a single.

The Lakers let leads of 6-1 and 6-3 get away from them in Monday's game against Morris College, as the visitors put four runs on the board in the top of the seventh to take the lead for good.

Garrett finished with a 16-9 lead in hits, with Whittemore getting three of them. Jared Bennis also had three hits, including a two-run homer and two singles, while Silvestri rapped a solo homer and a double, and also scored twice.

Getting two singles each for the Lakers were Jason Savage, Moore, and Brian Rockwell.

The Lakers were flying high in the early innings of Tuesday's game at Allegany, as they wiped out a 1-0, first-inning Trojan lead in the first inning by scoring five runs in the top of the second. But those were to be the only runs recorded by Garrett, despite tagging AC pitchers for 14 hits.

The Trojans (4-4) knotted the score at 5-5 with four runs in the bottom of the third, and then scored at least one run in every inning after that to pad their lead.

Allegany pitcher Steve Winslow, who took the mound in the third, gave up six hits, but held Garrett scoreless over the final six innings to gain the win.

It was a three-run homer by Tobi Stoner that highlighted the Lakers' five-run second, and it was three crucial errors by the Laker defense in the third that helped the Trojans record four runs and tie the score at 5-5.

Joe Moravec went 4-for-6 to lead the Trojans' 17-hit performance, with all four hits being singles. Brent Davison had an inside-the-park homer and a single for three RBI, and Todd Schickling contributed three singles.

Stoner had two singles besides his home run to pace the Laker offense, Savage also finished with three hits, and Moore and Jarod Bennis each contributed two hits.

The Lakers will try to get back into the win column this Saturday when they host Orange County in a doubleheader. They will also play a twinbill Sunday at Montgomery Germantown, host CCAC South for two games next Monday, travel to Westmoreland CC for a doubleheader on Tuesday, and play a single game at Potomac State College next Wednesday.

SEASON AT A GLANCE

On the 21-man Laker roster, Coach Wildesen has only six sophomores to count upon for team leadership.

"Even though we are 1-4 right now, I believe our pitching and defense are going to jell and really compliment each other as the season progresses," Wildesen said. "Team chemistry also seems to be pretty good, and offensively we are capable of really putting the ball into play."

Key players last season who have moved on include former Southern High ace Josh Bosley, who was 5-2 in pitching and had the third highest batting average for the Lakers last year. Named All -Region XX and second team All-Maryland JUCO, Bosley is now playing for Shenandoah University.

All-Region and All-Maryland JUCO catcher Dean Altavilla is now playing for Radford University, as is outfielder Ryan Wetzel, another All-Region and All-Maryland JUCO selection.

Among local players for Garrett this year are Northern High School grads Greg Whittemore and Bryan Lenhart, and Southern's Tobi Stoner. Also on the roster is Westmar graduate Chad Kroll.

"The attitude of our players has been very good," Wildesen said. "I think we have a pretty balanced team. We just need to get some more games in."

Gruenwald will be coming from Colorado Springs, Co., where he is currently training. Pen-Mar League Meeting Slated

The Pen-Mar Baseball League will hold an organizational meeting this Sunday, March 23, at 3 p.m. at the McDonald's Restaurant at Keysers Ridge.

All current teams should be represented at the meeting, and new teams are welcome to join the league, which has been in existence for 53 years. Last season's teams were Oakland, Rosemont, Parkersburg, and Tri-State (Cumberland). Tri-State was the regular-season and playoff champion, and went on to win the Maryland semi-pro playoffs held in Hagerstown.

The league is a showcase for many current and past area college players. A number of its former members have gone on to play professional baseball, and many coaches in the tri-state area have played in the league. It provides a forum for adults who wish to continue playing.

Those team representatives who are unable to attend Sunday's meeting are asked to telephone Terry Helbig at 301-533-2815, Joe Litten at 301-723-3700, or Jim Weinstein at 304-842-2206.

Squad Ready

from the bench include senior outfielders Adam DeWitt and Jordan Brenneman, who will be sidelined tomorrow with a foot injury from the recently concluded wrestling season; and junior second basemen Kris Carr and Travis Spear. In addition to their regular duties, Jones and Rice will see action at third base and first base, respectively.

Despite the lingering winter that has hampered their outdoor practice efforts, Carr's Huskies are ready to hit the trail this season. "Of course, because of weather we will probably get off to a slow start—not being on a field," the coach remarked. "We were fortunate to scrimmage at Boonsboro last Saturday. The kids have been working hard getting ready for the opener. We have a competitive bunch of guys, which makes for better practices and will make us a better team as we go along through the year."

Following tomorrow's opener against the Wildcats, Northern heads to Mapletown for a noon doubleheader Saturday, and to Hancock on Wednesday for a 4 p.m. outing. NHS's home debut is two weeks away, when the Huskies host Beall's Mountaineers on Thursday, April 3, on their Cove diamond.

NWTF Chapter To Host Turkey Hunting Clinic

The Western Maryland Chapter of the National Wild Turkey Federation (NWTF) has slated a spring turkey hunting seminar and clinic for Saturday, March 22, at the Savage Mountain Sportsman's Club near Frostburg. Registration will take place from 8 to 9 a.m., and the event will run from 9 a.m. to approximately 2 p.m. The Frostburg shooting range will be available after the event for shotgun patterning, and participants are asked to bring their own shotgun and ammunition, with different turkey loads if interested.

The seminar will cover a variety of topics of interest to both beginners and experienced turkey hunters, including instruction on using various types of calls, calling, pre-season scouting, shooting skills, use of decoys, and turkey hunting tactics, regulations, and safety. Door prizes will be awarded, and turkey calls will be available for purchase.

The cost, which includes a lunch, is $10 per adult and $5 for children 17 and under. Each child participant will receive a free NWTF "Jakes" youth membership.

For more information and directions, persons may call NWTF Western Maryland Chapter officers Ray Beard at 301-334-1404 or Joe Mills at 301-689-6764, ext. 301.

The student race organizers are planning for the event as part of their coursework in Dr. Michael Swiderski's Adventuresports Institute's Programming Management class at the college.

Before the race, persons are needed to help stuff registration packets and gather supplies and equipment, according to a student spokesperson. On race day, volunteers are needed to fill the posts of registration table assistants, timekeepers and finish line assistants, security personnel at the mountain bike transition area, course equipment acquisition, course set-up and tear down, run and bike trail monitors, food and fluid aid, staging area set-up and tear-down, emergency personnel assistants, basic computer service, traffic and parking control, and awards distribution.

All volunteers will receive a complimentary race T-shirt. Anyone wishing to volunteer or needing further information may call 301-387-3335.

WHAT MUST I DO TO GO TO HEAVEN?

In the Word of God (the Bible) a religious ruler of the Jews came to Jesus by night and told Him that he knew that Jesus had come from God. Jesus answered him with the statement, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." Since a person must be born again, this question arises: "What must I do to be born again?" By the time you finish reading this, you can be born again!

1. ACCEPT AND ADMIT THAT YOU ARE A SINNER:
   "As it is written, there is none righteous, no, not one:" Romans 3:10
   "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;" Romans 3:23
2. ACCEPT THAT AS A SINNER, YOU DESERVE DEATH:
   "For the wages of sin is death..." Romans 6:23.
   What is this death? Revelation 20:14-15 tells us; "And death and Hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death. And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire."
   Thank God there is a way out!
3. BELIEVE AND ACCEPT THAT JESUS HAS ALREADY PAID YOUR SIN DEBT:
   "For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly." Romans 5:6
   "But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him." Romans 5:8-9
4. ACCEPT BY FAITH THAT JESUS CHRIST DIED FOR YOU ON THE CROSS, WAS BURIED AND ROSE AGAIN. RECEIVE HIM AS YOUR PERSONAL SAVIOR.
   "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him." John 3:36
   "Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ:" Romans 5:1
   "For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." Romans 10:13

God gives you the choice of being cast into the eternal lake of fire or living eternally with Him. You can be saved, and know that you will go to Heaven when you die! Will you trust God to save you now? Why not pray this prayer:

"Dear God, I know that I am a sinner and that I deserve death and Hell. I believe you died for me and rose again. I am now calling upon you to save me from sin and Hell. In Jesus Name. Amen.

If you sincerely prayed this prayer, we would like to hear from you and send you further information on the Christian life.

THE HOURS

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:54 - Released 12/27/02

For years, the American film industry has been criticized for its lack of challenging roles for women, and this is why Stephen Daldry's The Hours is such a rare treat, providing us a chance to watch the work of three of today's most talented female actors in a film that paints a complex and multi-textured picture of psychological inner turmoil, conflicted sexual identity, and the life-crippling depression that can arise from those issues. Nicole Kidman, Julianne Moore and Meryl Streep, all of whom have proven themselves many times over, play the three heroines whose separate but tangentially related stories are adroitly woven together to form a rich tapestry further embellished by the supporting performances of Ed Harris, John C. Reilly, and Stephen Dillane. Based on the Pulitzer Prize-winning novel by Michael Cunningham, adapted for the screen by David Hare, the film's separate threads all involve the book Mrs. Dalloway by Virginia Woolf, about a woman whose slavish attention to the trivial details of planning a party mask the deep despair that plagues her mind. Borrowing the unconventional time frame from Mrs. Dalloway, The Hours takes place during one crucial day in the life of each of the three women.

First there is the story set in 1923 of the famously troubled bisexual authoress herself, Virginia Woolf (Kidman, sporting a prosthetic nose and an uncharacteristically plain wardrobe), beginning to write the novel while battling the depression and emotional instability that eventually drove her to commit suicide nearly 20 years later. Pampered by her loving husband (Dillane), attended by her staff of servants, and visited by her sister (Miranda Richardson) and her three children, Virginia remains distracted and emotionally unavailable to all, working out the morose details of her dark novel while languishing in what she sees as the suffocating setting of rural England.

The second story features Moore as Laura Brown, a disenchanted and pregnant housewife in 1951 Los Angeles who, despite the devotion of her husband (Reilly) and young son (Jack Rovello), cannot reconcile herself with the prospect of living out her life in the secure but emotionally vacant existence she has established. While reading Woolf's novel, she begins to enact a desperate plan to extricate herself from the oppressive situation.

Thirdly, Streep plays Clarissa Vaughn, the lesbian caregiver and former lover of a gay writer named Richard (Harris) who is suffering from advanced AIDS in 2001 New York City. Clarissa, whose day is spent planning a party to celebrate his winning a prestigious poetry award, is given the nickname "Mrs. Dalloway" by the bitter and despondent Richard, since she remains blissfully intent on the minutiae of floral arrangements, hors d'oeuvres, and seating charts while ignoring everything else in her life, including her daughter (Claire Danes), her lover (Allison Janney), and Richard's own imminent death.

Since it is such a well-known fact that Hollywood regularly fails to provide good roles for women, The Hours seems almost like an overindulgence, packing three excellent female performances into the same film. Still, I feel that the actors' Academy Award nominations situation for this film is rather wacky: Kidman, who was nominated but did not win for her astounding part in Moulin Rouge last year, is singled out with a Best Actress nomination despite the fact that her part is no more demanding than either of her co-stars. Don't tell anyone, but I think it's the fake nose that clinched it. Moore is strangely nominated for Best Supporting Actress (she also received a Best Actress nod for Far From Heaven) even though her part carries equal weight in the narrative. Meanwhile Streep, who I feel does more "acting" than either of the other two, is nominated as Best Supporting Actress for her part in Adaptation, so it would seem her work here is unnoticed. Of course, the film is also nominated for Best Picture, Best Director, screenplay, costumes, music...

Regardless of my long digression about Oscar nominations (aaaaaaah—it's all politics), this film's success lies not so much in any one of these three performances, but in director Daldry's artful combination of them into the emotionally deep and satisfying final product. Daldry and his editor, Peter Boyle (who himself garnered an Oscar nod), took these three seemingly unrelated stories and blended them together into a seamless and fascinating collage of experiences, all touched by the central element of Woolf's book, all driven by its influence on them, all of whose connections reveal themselves slowly and with increasing clarity as the film unspools. I'm not usually a savvy enough moviegoer to be struck by the way a movie is edited, but here it is clearly a major part of the film's success, skipping back and forth between the three story threads with a dizzying, gazelle-like agility that makes it appear as if they are all happening simultaneously even though they are decades apart. Of course the film's immersive scenic quality (cinematography by Seamus McGarvey) is another essential element, particularly in the 1920s section, where the beauty of the pastoral English countryside makes Kidman's part all the more challenging, forcing her to convey to us the desperation she feels in this doctor-ordered prison paradise.

The Hours is a richly valuable opportunity to see immense talent at work, on both sides of the camera. Stop planning parties and spend a few hours to see it. ★★★★½

THE WONDER OF FRUITS AND VEGGIES – This week at Friendsville Elementary School, all school lunch program participants were encouraged to "taste" the featured fruit or vegetable of the day. To prepare for the event, cafeteria staff added a festive touch with colorful posters as well as fruit and vegetable "babies" and balloons. All students who accepted the challenge received a sticker of the featured fruit or vegetable, fruit/vegetable bookmarkers, and "five-a-day" magnets that serve as reminders of the importance of consuming five servings of fruit and/or vegetables daily. The outreach effort is an offering of Garrett County Food and Nutrition Services and the Food Stamp Nutrition Education Program, (Cooperative Extension), which is funded by U.S. Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the Maryland Department of Human Resources and the University of Maryland. Shown above are Friendsville School cafeteria manager Norma Bowman, left, and cafeteria assistant Tammy Savage as they prepare for the fruit and veggie taste testing under the watchful eyes of some botanical delicacies.

GC Task Force Arrests MLP Man On Drug Charges

A Mtn. Lake Park man was arrested on numerous drug charges after a search warrant was executed after a three-month long investigation, which began when investigators received information that the suspect was attempting to manufacture methamphetamine, according to the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force.

Terry K. Hebb, 24, was arrested and charged with attempting to manufacture methamphetamine, possession of equipment to manufacture methamphetamine, maintaining a common nuisance, possession of a firearm in a drug trafficking crime, manufacturing marijuana, and possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

According to police, items recovered from the residence were suspected materials that are used in the manufacture of methamphetamine, including the recovery of suspected red phosphorus, tablets containing pseudo-ephedrine, acids, and ether.

Task force investigators were assisted by uniform members of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office and agents with the Drug Enforcement Administration from Hagerstown and Baltimore.

Hebb was released from the Garrett County Detention Center after posting $30,000 bond, according to a jail spokesperson.

GETTING A GLIMPSE – Mountain Top Youth for Christ recently gave several young people in the community a glimpse of what it is like to live with hunger and then gave them an opportunity to make a difference. From March 7 to 8, approximately 30 children from four different churches came together for this 30 hour famine event to help feed hungry kids throughout the world. The young people took part in the famine and then went on to collect money to be sent to World Vision to help provide for needy children. Also, as part of the famine, the group held a youth rally, a 24 hour lock-in and a canned food drive. So far, the group has collected more than $3,400, with pledges still coming in. This year's top fund-raiser was Victoria Moser, who collected $500. They also collected more than 425 items for a local food pantry that will be distributed to children in need who live in the community. To learn more about the 30-hour famine or about Mt. Top Youth For Christ, persons may call 1-800-798-7670 or visit www.mttopyfc.com.

Methamphetamine is a powerful stimulant that is popular on the west coast and Midwest states, and is gaining popularity up and down the east coast, according to police. Street names for the drug include speed, crystal, and ice, and the effects of the drug include excitability, restlessness, increased heartbeat, and it is typically ingested by snorting or injection.

Rabies Case

brought back home, another household member immediately handled the dogs.

A short time later, a neighbor reported that there was a raccoon in the road running around in circles that had attempted to attack the automobile. Although it had been run over, it was necessary for the owner of the three dogs to kill the animal. There was no additional exposure to humans or animals in this incident.

Two of the three dogs were currently vaccinated against rabies, while the third dog's vaccination had lapsed in February. The chief of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene's Zoonotic Disease Division recommended that all of the dogs obtain rabies boosters and be monitored for 45 days.

Post-exposure shots were recommended for the dogs' owner and the household member who immediately handled the dogs after the initial incident, because both may have been exposed to the rabies virus.

In conjunction with this incident, the GC Health Department released the following recommendations:

•Make sure all dogs, cats, and ferrets have current rabies vaccinations or rabies boosters. A series of low-cost rabies clinics will be offered at various locations in the county in May.

•Use extreme caution in handling a pet that has been involved in an altercation with a wild animal. Ideally, pets should not be handled for two hours after an altercation. This will allow any virus that may be on the pet's coat to die. If it is necessary to handle pets, gloves should be worn and hands should be washed after handling the pets.

For information on rabies or the upcoming clinics, persons may contact Environmental Health Services at 301-334-7760.

fertilizer, shortly before the 3:17 a.m. crash as he was descending the steep grade of Maryland Highway into Bloomington.

Maryland State Police troopers with the McHenry barrack reported that witnesses told them the truck was traveling eastbound at a high rate of speed and failed to stop at required truck-stop areas along the steep descent. The tractor-trailer failed to negotiate the sharp right turn at the base of the mountain and struck the concrete and rock embankment.

Emergency personnel from the Bloomington and Tri-Towns volunteer fire departments and the Tri-Towns Rescue Squad had to extricate Kidder from the mangled cab. MSP medevac helicopter Trooper 3 was summoned to transport the seriously injured driver to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where he was stabilized before being flown on to the Shock Trauma Center Monday evening. Kidder's extensive injuries reportedly include major injuries to his legs involving fractures of both femurs.

The spill of the truck's cargo—ammonium nitrate fertilizer in pellet form—required a Hazmat response by the Allegany County Hazardous Incident Response Team, which remained at the scene throughout Friday morning. One lane of Maryland Highway at Bloomington was closed until 6:30 a.m., police said.

Friday's accident was the latest crash to occur at the base of Backbone Mountain at the Allegany/Garrett County line, which has been the scene of numerous tractor-trailer accidents for the past several decades, many of which resulted in fatalities. A truck pull-off and mandatory truck stops have been installed to help ensure the safety on the descent, which has a 9 percent grade over much of the four miles from Swanton to Bloomington.

At last report, Tfc. D.T. Wagoner's accident investigation was continuing with assistance from the Maryland State Police Commercial Vehicle Enforcement Division. The status of possible charges remains in the hands of the investigation team.

state and local government agencies for 75 percent of the total eligible costs of equipment, contracts, and personnel overtime related to emergency services in dealing with the snow during a 48-hour period.

"These are the crucial hours when work crews clear snow from emergency routes and roads to critical facilities to permit the passage of emergency vehicles," said a FEMA spokesperson.

Related emergency protective measures such as sanding and salting, search and rescue, shelter operations, and police and fire department response will also be eligible for reimbursement.

Frantz said FEMA will contact the Maryland Emergency Management Agency to arrange a workshop, which he and officials from the other designated counties will attend. During the event the representatives will learn more about what costs are eligible and will be given forms to fill out.

Frantz said he will then go over data submitted by local municipalities and agencies, verify the figures, and determine what is eligible.

General superintendent Fred Polce, Garrett County Roads Department, told the commissioners recently that his department spent nearly $190,000 during the Presidents' Day storm. He noted, however, that most of the cleanup cost occurred well after the actually storm itself. Between Feb. 14 and Feb. 28, $662,000 was spent on labor, overtime, materials, and equipment, according to Polce.

The state of Maryland estimated costs of more than $55 million for the snow cleanup efforts, according to Senator Paul Sarbanes, who, along with the rest of the Maryland Congressional Delegation, urged President Bush to endorse the governor's request for the FEMA funds.

Garrett County's estimated snow related costs, which were submitted to FEMA by the state, amounted to $700,000. Frantz stressed, however, that this figure was only tentative. The exact cost has yet to be determined.

Brown named Thomas Davies of FEMA to coordinate the federal assistance in the affected areas.

Other designated counties are Allegany, Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Calvert, Caroline, Carroll, Cecil, Frederick, Harford, Howard, Kent, Montgomery, Prince George's, Queen Anne's, Talbot, and Washington.

Bill Killed

pany owners indicated they could save time and money if they could travel certain county roads, rather than being limited to state highways.

The current maximum weight limit of vehicles traveling on county roads is 73,000 pounds. Drivers with vehicles weighing more than that, but less than 80,000 pounds, must use state highways or risk being ticketed.

Commissioner Fred Holliday said the legislation would have supported economic development. The commissioners stressed that the bill would have only allowed them to raise the limit for certain roads. Each road would have been examined and a public hearing held before any increase was made, they said.

Andersen, her husband Alden, and Troy and Betty Ellington testified against the House version of the bill, HB 831, at a public hearing in Annapolis earlier this month. They also sent their written testimony to the Senate Finance Committee.

The residents were concerned that increasing the weight limit would also increase truck traffic and, therefore, the danger on their road. The hilly, narrow road with its blind curves was already too dangerous, they told the House committee.

Holliday and engineer Dwight Emory, county roads department, testified before the Finance Committee in favor of the legislation. Emory told the committee that Sand Flat Road could support the additional weight.

Only one county road in the state, Linkwood in Dorchester County, is allowed to exceed the 73,000 pound limit.

"Committee members were probably worried if they allowed it (the legislation) in Garrett County, with so many people opposed to it, it might have statewide implications," said Hafer at the recent mid-legislative meeting.

Andersen said she was relieved the issue was over for now. She has sent a letter to the Senate committee members thanking them for their decision. "I'm sure you have saved lives," she told them.

Though the bill is defeated, she added, a citizens' safety group should be formed to address the dangerous conditions on Sand Flat Road.

"T-MINUS THREE AND COUNTING" – Crellin Elementary School Principal Dana McCauley is shown at right as she helps student Kalynn Eyler and her grandmother, Shelly Upole, mount their "Space Shuttle Columbia" rocket onto the launch pad, which appeared to be a 2x10 board with a large rubber band attached. Nearly 60 students and their parents participated in a five-week project at the school, learning about engineering, design, teamwork, aerodynamics, and other sciences, McCauley said. The work all culminated in a mass launching of the rockets on Monday afternoon. (See front page picture.) The rockets' trajectories and distances were measured and awards were given for those that traveled the farthest. Photo by John McEwen.

nies.... Although hampered by U.N. sanctions, Iraq has been busily signing contracts for the development of its oil resources. French and Russian companies have been particularly favored. Major companies with deals in Iraq include [France's] TotalFinaElf, Russia's Lukoil, Zarubezneft, and Mashinioimport, and the China National Petroleum Company. All this business would be threatened by the overthrow of Saddam's regime.

"There is a potential conflict of interest amongst the permanent members of the U.N. Security Council over the commercial implications of war in Iraq. A regime change in Iraq would benefit U.S. and U.K. oil companies, while a peaceful resolution would benefit oil companies based in Russia, France, and China." (My italics added for emphasis.)

So there you have it—information which just further muddies the waters, while simultaneously fueling the fires of argument on both sides of the issue. President Bush has a job to do as he sees fit, and American soldiers are putting their lives on the line to carry it out. The bottom line of the pros and cons of oil comes down to the fact that oil is pretty much second only to water at the most important natural resource in today's world; and given The Christian Science Monitor's reporting that China's demand for oil will match the United States' demand in 30 years, it's vital to the world's security and stability that the flow of oil is unfettered for everyone, and is not held hostage by a dictator's whims. The least you and I can do is to cut back on our own oil use—but I'm not counting on that.

As for my own opinion on the war just begun, while it's too naïve to think this is only about "safeguarding freedom," it's far, far too cynical for me to buy the tired argument that this is "just a war for oil"—even as I can concede that American and British companies, including the vice president's former employer Halliburton and Condeleeza Rice's former employer Chevron, stand to benefit, among others. Still, I cannot bring myself to question the integrity of the members of the president's team by thinking that they would willingly spill blood for profit.

I am also not hard-hearted enough to discount the certainty that innocent children, women, and men will die unintentionally from the use of American weaponry and the mess that will likely follow once the firing stops, nor am I so stupid as to think that this endeavor does not pose huge risks for our soldiers, and the world at large.

The question basically comes down to "What do you believe?"—the word of George Bush, or the word of Saddam Hussein, who, since agreeing to U.N. Security Council Resolution 687 of April 3, 1991, has had 662 weeks to disarm and counting. That's almost 5,000 days, during every one of which the Iraqi people have suffered the untold depravations of his despotism, and over half of which include the poverty and disease caused by economic sanctions—all while the dictator has rebuilt his military, added to his collection of ornate and heavily fortified palaces, promoted his personality cult, and added to his family's personal fortune scattered about in Swiss bank accounts.

My gut goes with Bush...and if I'm wrong—and when this mess is over we come to find out he and his administration were deliberately misleading the world by raising a false scare about weapons of mass destruction just to get us into a war and our hands on Iraq's oil—and we don't attempt to help the Iraqi people move toward self-determination on their own—I promise I will be among the first to march for his impeachment and an international war crimes tribunal for him and his advisors. I don't think for a minute that will be necessary, however.

Remember the president's words:

"If we fail to respond today, Saddam and all those who would follow in his footsteps will be emboldened tomorrow. The stakes could not be higher. Some day, some way, I guarantee you, he'll use the arsenal. Just consider the facts—

"Iraq repeatedly made false declarations about the weapons that it had left in its possession after the Gulf War. When UNSCOM would then uncover evidence that gave the lie to those declarations, Iraq would simply amend the reports. For example, Iraq revised its nuclear declarations four times within just 14 months, and it has submitted six different biological warfare declarations, each of which has been rejected by UNSCOM. In 1995, Hussein Kamal, Saddam's son-in-law and chief organizer of Iraq's weapons-of-mass-destruction program, defected to Jordan. He revealed that Iraq was continuing to conceal weapons and missiles and the capacity to build many more. Then and only then did Iraq admit to developing numbers of weapons in significant quantities and weapon stocks. Previously, it had vehemently denied the very thing it just simply admitted once Saddam Hussein's son-in-law defected to Jordan and told the truth.

"Now listen to this: What did it admit? It admitted, among other things, an offensive biological warfare capability—notably 5,000 gallons of botulinum, which causes botulism; 2,000 gallons of anthrax; 25 biological-filled Scud warheads; and 157 aerial bombs. And might I say, UNSCOM inspectors believe that Iraq has actually greatly understated its production.

"Next, throughout this entire process, Iraqi agents have undermined and undercut UNSCOM. They've harassed the inspectors, lied to them, disabled monitoring cameras, literally spirited evidence out of the back doors of suspect facilities as inspectors walked through the front door. And our people were there observing it and had the pictures to prove it.

"We have to defend our future from these predators of the 21st century. They will be all the more lethal if we allow them to build arsenals of nuclear, chemical, and biological weapons and the missiles to deliver them. We simply cannot allow that to happen. There is no more clear example of this threat than Saddam Hussein."

The president who delivered that no-holds-barred assessment was not George Bush, but Bill Clinton on Feb. 18, 1998 in a televised speech widely lauded by his fellow Democrats, including Bush critic Sen. Tom Daschle.

"If we fail to respond today, Saddam and all those who follow in his footsteps will be emboldened tomorrow. Some day, some way, I guarantee you, he'll use his arsenal. Just consider the facts...."

If Bill Clinton saw it then, why can't we see it now?

While undoubtedly some very dark days lie ahead, the decision is before us now. Given the choice, I roll the dice with President Bush, and I would lay money on it that the Iraqi people will, too.

For better or for worse, the time for debate is over. All we can do now is offer prayers for our soldiers, the people of Iraq, and our world.

And that's why I prefer to read The Republican over major market media, since local papers are far less likely to promote the mass media's latest hysterical fad issue!

Autism is a complex brain disorder that often inhibits a person's ability to communicate, respond to surroundings, or form relationships with others. Autism is considered a spectrum disorder because symptoms and severity vary from individual to individual.

Autism has NO known cure. On April 5, Michael and I will be walking to raise money for the National Alliance for Autism Research (NAAR) at Allegany College. NAAR was founded by families, like us, who share the same hope that one day we will have an answer.

Some facts about autism spectrum disorder are: it occurs in 1 in every 250 births; it affects people of all racial, ethnic, and socioeconomic backgrounds; more than 1 million people live with it; this disorder is the second most common developmental disability after mental retardation; there is no cure; most people require a lifetime of supervision and care; and autism is four times more prevalent in boys than in girls.

Michael and I thank you very much.

Sincerely,
Karen and Michael Clapper

To the Editor:

Diplomacy reached a new low when President Bush gave Saddam Hussein 48 hours to leave his own country. It seems the plan is to export democracy to Iraq and "liberate" its people by blowing them up. We also planned to liberate the people of Kuwait and Afghanistan with military force. Nobody in their right minds could now call either of those countries democracies. In fact, the United States itself is looking less like a democracy every day with Congress complying with the Bush administration's relentless agenda to curtail civil rights. (But the war in Iraq has nothing to do with democracy.)

As a parent, I cannot imagine the horror of watching nearly 5,000 children die each month from the effects of 12 years of sanctions. Imagine having no medicine to ease your child's pain. How does one protect a child when 3,000 bombs are dropped in one day in accordance with the American war plan? How blithely the supporters of this war dismiss the deaths of human beings as "collateral damage." Would I mourn the loss of a child any less because I had been "liberated?" (But this has nothing to do with liberty.)

Some time ago, while visiting a Christian community, I saw a woman who was dressed in the traditional long black robes of a Moslem nation. She was holding the hand of a little girl who was obviously blind. The girl's name was Miriam, and the community had paid for her and her grandmother to come to the U.S. to get medical help. Besides being blind, Miriam had leukemia caused by her mother's exposure to our weapons in the first Gulf War. Our anti-tank weapons contained "depleted" uranium, which, when dissipated on impact, made areas forever toxic. The sperm of men exposed, both Iraqi and American, was contaminated. Babies were born with no brains and only one eye. Miriam was doing much better when she returned four months ago to her home; if still alive, she lives in Baghdad.

"The first casualty in any war is the Truth." The Bush administration has succeeded, since Sept 11, 2001, in equating political lies to patriotism. A Princeton survey of 1200 people asked the question: "How many of the 9/11 hijackers were Iraqi?" Only 17% answered correctly. The answer is, of course: NONE. Perhaps somebody should tell President Bush. We have to ask ourselves what has happened to this country when a man can be arrested in front of his son for wearing a T-shirt bearing the slogan "Give peace a chance." (But then, this has nothing to do with peace.)

The truth is, this war has been planned since 2000 when Saddam Hussein abandoned the dollar for oil transactions in favor of the Euro. Our country is on the verge of economic ruin and President Bush knows that Iraqi oil, with the dollar as its monetary base, will pull us back from the brink of imminent bankruptcy. This also explains why Britain — or specifically, Tony Blair — supports us; Great Britain is not yet using the Euro. It is Iraq's misfortune that it sits on the second largest oil field on the planet; Saddam sealed his country's fate when he adopted the Euro.

The line is drawn, and I know which side I am on. Whatever your opinion, let it be based on the truth. Educate yourself; children's lives depend on it. The population of Iraq is almost 50% children under the age of 15. That is who we will be killing with our tax dollars and military might; remember this as you go to church on Sunday. Remember Miriam.

We have been told we will drop food as well as bombs. We weren't told that the cluster bombs we drop become land mines when they fail to explode on impact. The unexploded shells are yellow; so are the food canisters.

In waging war on Iraq, a nation that has not attacked us, and indeed does not have the capability to attack us, we are sowing seeds of terrorism which will come back to haunt us all. We are making enemies of our allies and earning the disdain of the world.

Sincerely,
Eileen Schlosnagle

PS. David Foster, supporting war in his "Angle on Iraq" in The Republican last week, mentioned his "hero," Nelson Mandela. Mr. Foster is well aware that Mandela does not share his admiration for President Bush. In fact, Mandela contends that President Bush is intellectually incapable of making sound moral and political decisions pertaining to war and peace. I find it difficult to respect a journalist who slanders and dismisses a global peace movement with one flippant comment. I am in awe (and here that word is used in the right context) of the coalition of peacemakers who have organized peaceful marches throughout this country, often against huge obstacles and police harassment, to allow the people to participate in one last vestige of their dying democracy.

Mrs. Schlosnagle,

Personal attacks I can take, but attacks on my professional integrity cannot go unanswered.

1) As for my "slandering" of the global peace movement, you can check my facts on the Korea Truth Commission's own website at www.kimsoft.com/2001/kr-truth.htm, and you will find everything I printed about that organization in last week's paper. As the KTC is on ANSWER's steering committee, and therefore helps set its agenda, it begs the question—Are there elements of the peace movement that are less "for peace" than "against America?" or to be more precise, "anti-Bush?"

2)Nelson Mandela remains one of the leaders I admire most in the world, in no small part because he rose above his own admitted past of terrorist activity to eventually lead his nation to democracy through nonviolent reconciliation (note that Saddam Hussein has had 12 years of U.N. olive branches laid at his feet to take a nonviolent approach to peace); but just as Mandela was mistaken in his youth, he is not infallible in his elder years. Indeed, I—who joined the anti-apartheid protests outside the gates of Ronald Reagan's White House, and took part in a number of marches against his military stances—Xeroxed Mandela's interview last fall in Newsweek during which he lambasted Bush's Iraq policy, and used it for months to bolster my philosophical arguments against a war with Iraq; however, even when I first read Mandela's otherwise thoughtful comments, I was struck by his vehement personal attack on Bush that included charges of racism in his formulation of U.S. foreign policy. It honestly made me begin to wonder if hyperbole were going to take precedence over examinations of facts, and I feel this has in large part come to pass on both sides.

You and I know each other, and know that our views up until this Iraq issue have been pretty much in step. Overall, I am no great "admirer" of President Bush, but diatribes from the left attacking him serve no more purpose than eight years of diatribes from the right attacking Bill Clinton. Let's stick to the facts, and deal with our sadly ever-imperfect world such as it is—which, in my opinion, is exactly what the President is doing.

David Foster

To the Editor:

It is clearly obvious that the citizens of the United States have experienced an upsurge in patriotism in the 18 months since the September 11, 2001, terrorism attacks. As the U.S. moves steadily toward intensified conflict in the Middle East, another round of flag waving is sure to occur. This is all well, good, and understandable as we stand behind our country and our loved ones who defend her.

However, the American flag is not simply a decoration to grace the front of a home or the utility poles lining the street. Title 4 of The United States Code, Chapter 1 (The Flag Code) describes how the U.S. flag should be flown. Specifically, Section 6 (c) states: "The flag should not be displayed on days when the weather is inclement, except when an all weather flag is displayed" and Section 8 (k) states: "The flag, when it is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, should be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning."

I encourage the citizens of our area to take a moment to read the following essay, written by Master Sergeant Percy Webb, USMC, titled "I Am Old Glory":

I am Old Glory: For more than 10 score years I have been the banner of hope and freedom for generation after generation of Americans.

Born amid the first flames of America's fight for freedom, I am the symbol of a country that has grown from a little group of 13 colonies to a united nation of 50 sovereign states.

Planted firmly on the high pinnacle of American Faith my gently fluttering folds have proved an inspiration to untold millions.

Men have followed me into battle with unwavering courage.

They have looked upon me as a symbol of national unity.

They have prayed that they and their fellow citizens might continue to enjoy the life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness, which have been granted to every American as the heritage of free men.

So long as men love liberty more than life itself; so long as they treasure the priceless privileges bought with the blood of our forefathers; so long as the principles of truth, justice, and charity for all remain deeply rooted in human hearts, I shall continue to be the enduring banner of the United States of America.

Regardless of the heartfelt intent, the sight of Old Glory left out in the rain or snow or allowed to flap like tattered laundry at the end of a stick or wind blown garbage caught on a car antenna is disgraceful. The flag is a living symbol of the greatest nation on earth — our home country. Please treat it with the respect it deserves.

To the Editor:

I'm amazed that many people will protest about the possibility of our nation going to war. The majority of the protesters state their concern about Americans and innocent civilians being killed and wounded as their main justification.

Should we question their real motives — are they really concerned about discussions, and point-counterpoints. I have read so many opinion pieces on both sides of the issue that I finally had to quit for a while or go crazy. It is a complicated matter, with emotion raging. Yet as I examine my own heart, and search within my own faith, I always come up with the same thing. Every fiber of my being tells me it's wrong. It's wrong. I am sick with fear that the ruination and destruction will only reap more of the same. There must be a point in the course of human history when we refuse to engage in war. It must cease to be a solution.

It is easy for me. I will weather this storm from my safe home and will most likely be protected, whatever my opinions may be. I am aware of that. But I take on some of the responsibility, too, of what our country does. I am an American, and I am thankful for that, but I ache inside when I consider the havoc being wrought as we advance along this aggressive, unprecedented path. If we find stockpile upon stockpile of weaponry in Saddam's possession, then the loss of life may not be all for naught. If we truly stay and help rebuild a government that will greatly enhance the lives of the Iraqi people, then it will not be in vain. But rarely have we been successful in actually instilling our idea of democracy in a foreign country. It will require unprecedented energy, focus, and money. And it comes at a time when our economy is already circling the drain. These are very dark days.

If we don't find the weaponry in Iraq, the fallout will be great, I am afraid. Our country's policies are already perceived by many around the world as dangerous. International fear of the USA will grow, and fear will evolve into anger. I dread the possibility that my sons will grow up in a world where travel will be dangerous for them, as they will be hated throughout the planet because of the place of their birth. And it's sad, desperately sad, that millions of good, kind Americans may be misjudged in this way if we end up with nothing to show for our current course of action.

War. It's ancient, it's barbaric, and it is beneath us as a society. I refuse to believe that it is an inevitable extension of being human. I choose to hope for peace. May our soldiers come home, each and every one, and may God grant peace on our Earth.

American lives being lost? Are they concerned about innocent victims being wounded and killed?

During the 1960s & 1970s more Americans were killed and injured each year on our highways by DWI drivers than were killed and wounded in the entire Vietnam War! How many of these protesters did anything to stop alcohol and drug impaired drivers from causing highway crashes? If you were involved as a protester, I hope that you were not using drugs and/or alcohol that contributed to the larger problem.

Highway statistics reveal that more Americans have been killed and injured by DWI drivers since 1960 than the total number of Americans killed and wounded in all of the wars during the 20th century. Many of these highway casualties were completely innocent adults and children. NHTSA projections are that about another 20% of the highway crashes are caused by drug impaired drivers; obviously those doing crash investigations need to be more pro-active in drug testing. Recent (2001) NHTSA statistics reveal that 25% of all drivers killed in auto crashes are under the influence of drugs. Projections are that more Americans have been killed and injured by intoxicated and impaired drivers than all the Americans killed and wounded in all the wars and terrorist attacks since this country was founded.

Why do we allow this to continue? Do you think it will not happen to you? Do you realize that each person has about a 40% chance of being involved in an auto crash where the driver is impaired or intoxicated with alcohol and/or drugs? And the sad part is that the number of drivers intoxicated with drugs is on the increase, yet adequate testing is not testing being done.

Some facts about the cost of crashes due to DWI each year for the last 3 years: About 17,000 deaths, over 300,000 injured, and consumer cost of over 110 billion dollars, and this is only for the drivers tested and confirmed to be DWI. Projections are that all of these statistics are really 20% higher. I don't know what the potential war with Iraq will cost, but it may well be less than the cost of DWI per year.

If those protesting the war really want to help prevent Americans from being killed and injured, or want to prevent innocent people (especially children) from being slaughtered, then they should speak out against DWI drivers. Anyone concerned about innocent Americans being killed and injured should write letters to our local judges, state's attorney's office, and our state senators and delegates urging them to enforce and change our laws such that the number of innocent Americans being killed and injured will be greatly reduced. Crashes due to DWI should be the exception and not the norm!

We can and must take action to reduce the number of Americans being killed and injured by intoxicated and impaired drivers.

To the Editor:

I am a 28-year veteran of the Garrett County Roads Department. I was hired in 1973 as a laborer, was promoted to truck driver, pay loader operator, and finally, foreman. This position I held for five years prior to my termination in May 2001.

While I was foreman I exercised supervisory authority, including assuring that personnel working under my supervision abided by appropriate county regulations. My employee evaluations for 1998, 1999, and 2000 were good, achieving a rating of 4 out of 5 in each category.

On May 9, 2001, I was called in to the Grantsville county roads office where I was terminated because of a problem with my driver's license.

In February of 2001, the county was informed that my privilege to drive in Maryland was suspended. I met with Mr. Polce and Mr. Pagenhardt, and they agreed to allow me to use annual leave of 200 hours and vacation time so I could attempt to resolve this matter. The county was aware of the problem with my driver's license in late January to early February, and still allowed my use of annual leave and vacation time until the problem was resolved. At first they seemed willing to work with me.

On May 9, 2001, the county commissioners voted to terminate my employment while I was on vacation. The commissioners were told I had 12 points, which was incorrect information from the MVA, but they still decided to terminate a 28-year veteran. The issue with my driver's license had been resolved as of May 24, 2001.

I have challenged the county action on two fronts. In my opinion, the county did not follow the rules, its own rules, as contained in the employee handbook and therefore is not justified in terminating me.

The critical violation is article 7-301(a) of the county employee handbook. This section states that in the case of termination, the appointing authority shall require written charges to be presented indicating the nature of the employee offense of why other actions were inappropriate.

I asked the Civil Service Board for a hearing on April 24, 2002. They met and heard evidence from both sides. The board rendered its decision in favor of overturning the county commissioners' decision. I was to be given my foreman position back, with all back pay and payment of medical bills. I had also lost my medical insurance upon my termination.

To quote the Civil Service Board on April 24, 2002, "Mr. Wiley is to be returned to the position he had, had this termination not occurred."

At this time the Garrett County commissioners took a timely appeal to Garrett County Circuit Court. Judge Sherbin met with both sides. The judge kicked the decision back to the Civil Service Board to make a decision. The Civil Service Board met again on January 28, 2003, and again overturned the Garrett County commissioners. This time it was a 3-0 decision. I was to be given back my foreman job, back pay, and medical expenses. On the last page of the Civil Service finding, they wrote, "Mr. Wiley should be returned to the position that he had, had this termination not occurred." I thought I would be able to return to work.

But on Feb. 14, 2003, the Garrett County commissioners filed yet another appeal. Each time they file an appeal it costs the Garrett County taxpayers $100 plus fees, checks being made payable to David K. Martin.

My questions are: How much money will the county commissioners decide to waste filing appeal after appeal? How can these three gentleman, one of whom I see on the streets of Grantsville, feel good about wasting tax dollars that should and could be used for important tax issues?

I am writing to the Attorney General and the A.C.L.U. to inquire about their help.

Maybe the citizens of Garrett County could call the commissioners' office and let them know how they feel about this issue.

Sincerely,
Kenneth T. Wiley

To the Editor:

If our nation's economy is to return to full strength, America's small businesses will have to lead the way. That's because our nation's small businesses account for 99% of all employers and create three-quarters of all new jobs.

In the coming weeks, Congress will be debating President Bush's economic package. The most obvious question is: Will the president's plan help small businesses? The answer is a resounding "yes."

First, and most importantly, the plan puts the 2001 income tax cuts into full effect immediately. Given some 90% of businesses pay personal income taxes rather than corporate income taxes, this part of the plan immediately increases the bottom line for small businesses. In fact, the White House estimates that some 23 million small-business owners would receive tax cuts averaging over $2,000 this year.

Second, the plan specifically target's small-businesses for help by increasing the tax deduction for small business investment in equipment from $25,000 to $75,000.

Finally, by wiping out the double tax on dividends, the president's plan reduces the cost of capital and increases the funds available for small-business investment.

This proposal, combined with the president's call for an end to the death tax, shows he understands that helping small businesses is the best way to invigorate the American economy and create jobs. Congress should get behind President Bush and pass his economic plan.

Sincerely,
Darrell McKigney

Darlington Raceway

Darlington Raceway is at risk of losing one of its two annual races, analysts say.

Racing purists don't want Darlington to lose a date

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Darlington, S.C.

It's no secret that Sunday's Dodge Dealers 400 may have been the last spring race at historic Darlington Raceway. But as long as Jim Hunter is in a powerful position with NASCAR, the 53-year-old track still has hope of hanging onto its two race dates.

Hunter, NASCAR's vice president for communications, considers the track, affectionately known as "The Track Too Tough to Tame," as one of the treasures of auto racing. He tells it to everyone who will listen — including his fellow NASCAR executives.

"They know my feelings," Hunter said. "I love this place, and I think it ought to have two races a year."

Hunter's love affair with the egg-shaped, 1.3-mile oval began in 1961, when he watched former Army tank driver Nelson Stacy steer a yellow Ford to victory in the Southern 500. Hunter served as the track's president (1992-2001) and has even written a book about the place, "The History of Darlington Raceway."

"I think it's premature for people to assume that this place is going to lose a race next year," Hunter said. "I would be surprised if that happened."

Rumors of dropping a Darlington race have been around for years. They resurfaced this winter when NASCAR officials said they were considering revisions to the Winston Cup schedule.

Most NASCAR observers think Rockingham, N.C., is in the most immediate danger of losing one of its two dates, with the other likely to be transferred to California Speedway, which is in a larger market.

But Darlington remains at risk because of its small size (by Winston Cup standards) and a shortage of surrounding amenities. Yet, in its supporters' eyes, what it lacks in modernity is offset by what Hunter calls its character.

"You have the potential for an accident every lap and every turn," Hunter said.

Hamilton holds on

Bobby Hamilton, who walked away from Winston Cup to drive his own truck in the Craftsman Truck Series, made that decision look good on Friday. With 17 laps remaining in the Craftsman 200, Hamilton powered past Ted Musgrave, then fought off Musgrave's last-lap challenge to get his third career Truck Series win and take the series points lead. — Rick Minter

NASCAR

Ricky Craven edged his No. 32 Pontiac ahead of Kurt Busch to win the Carolina Dodge Dealers 400 in one of the closest finishes in Winston Cup history.

Duel to the finish

Craven edges past Busch in dramatic ending at Darlington

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Darlington, S.C.

With Darlington Raceway seemingly needing a miracle to hang onto its two race dates, the racing gods smiled on the old track in a bigger way than even it's strongest supporters could have imagined.

As the laps wound down Sunday on what might have been the final spring race at Darlington, Ricky Craven and Kurt Busch staged a two-lap fender-banging duel to the finish line that was the closest in NASCAR history.

When the smoke cleared, and NASCAR checked its electronic scoring, Craven was the winner by inches in one of Winston Cup's most dramatic final laps ever.

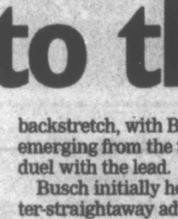
"This is exactly what you dream of," Craven said. "It will probably never happen again, but it's the perfect way to win a race at the perfect track."

The suspense began with 23 laps to go, when race leader Jeff Gordon, a six-time Darlington winner, was bitten by the "Lady in Black" — Darlington's tricky egg-shaped oval.

When Gordon ran his car into the Turn 2 wall, both second-running Elliott Sadler and third-place Busch pulled alongside Gordon on the backstretch, with Busch emerging from the three-wide duel with the lead.

Busch initially held a quarter-straightaway advantage, with Gordon and Sadler, who later hit the wall himself, both fading.

But Craven, whose car gained speed as the sun poked through the clouds late in the race, was slicing the deficit every lap. He finally caught Busch, who was battling a failed power steering system on his No. 97 Ford, as the lead duo drove through Turns 1 and 2 with two laps left to run.



CRAVEN

Both drivers nearly wrecked as first Craven, then Busch, used their front bumpers to muscle their way into the lead.

"When we got together in Turn 1, I don't know how he saved it," Craven said of the near wreck. "Then, I don't know how I saved it. That was wild."

Busch prevailed exiting Turn 2 and maintained the top spot until the leaders exited Turn 4 with the checkered flag beckoning in the breeze.

But those were just preliminary skirmishes compared to the final 300 yards of the 400-mile race, which NASCAR officials are considering dropping in favor of an added event in California.

Craven said that when he saw Busch's rear tires spinning ever so slightly in Turn 4, he knew he had a chance to win. He accelerated to the bottom of the track and pulled alongside Busch as they exited the final turn.

Then with the near-capacity crowd of 55,000 on its feet, the two leaders rubbed sheet metal in what amounted to one long wreck all the way down the frontstretch. As the two leaders approached the finish line, either Busch steered his car to the left into Craven, or Craven steered to the right into Busch, or a little of both.

The end result was that Craven nosed ahead of Busch by inches as the leaders crossed the finish line in a cloud of tire smoke.

After Craven righted his wrecking Pontiac, he circled the track on the cool-down lap and radioed to his crew, "Who won?! Who won?!"

With his crew also uncertain of the outcome, he looked at scoreboard in the infield and saw his No. 32 flash to the top of the list. Only then did he know.

"This will be the greatest race of my life, there is no question," Craven said, adding that he was captivated by the track from the first time he saw it.

In 1992, David Pearson, the all-time leader in wins at Darlington, took Craven, then a NASCAR newcomer, around the track in a van and gave him tips on negotiating the tricky surface.

"From that day on, I have just loved it here," he said.

POST-RACE NOTES

Kenseth pads lead in points standings

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Darlington, S.C.

Matt Kenseth was able to increase his Winston Cup points lead by escaping with relatively minor damage from an early-race wreck and soldiering on to an eighth-place finish in Sunday's Carolina Dodge Dealers 400.

His points lead grew from 49 to 57 over second-place Tony Stewart, who finished 10th despite an encounter of his own with the wall in Turn 2.

KENSETH

"You just fight as hard as you can and get the best finish you can," Kenseth said.

Stewart, who dodged a couple of early crashes, said he thought he was being cautious when he hit the wall.

"At a track that's this narrow, you don't have much room for error," he said. "I probably should have just tried to give myself a little bit of extra room.

"I thought I did, but evidently I didn't."

Costly mistake in pits

Mark Martin appeared to have one of the fastest cars in the latter stages of the race, but a miscue in the pits cost him a chance to win.

He dropped from second to 11th on the final restart after he had to return to the pits because his crew left off one lug nut.

Still, he battled back over the final 52 laps to take fourth at the finish line.

"Once in a while you drive her in the fence or you have a lug nut fall off," Martin said. "That's just the way it goes."

One is enough

The victory by Ricky Craven and the third-place run by Dave Blaney were the best showing in months by single-car teams.

It was the first win for a single-car team since Craven won at Martinsville in October 2001.

Blaney, who jumped from 15th to seventh in the points standings, said he doesn't really consider himself at a disadvantage.

"I really don't think we give anything up," Blaney said. "And if we did, I wouldn't admit it."

Blown opportunities

Roush Racing's engine woes continued as the engine in Jeff Burton's No. 99 Ford went up in a cloud of smoke after only 32 laps.

During the previous race at Atlanta Motor Speedway, four of the six Roush engines in the race failed.

Two Roush drivers in Friday's Craftsman Truck Series race at Darlington lost engines, and then on Saturday, Kurt Busch blew an engine in his No. 97 Ford during practice.

"We're having way too many problems, but it's not because we're not trying hard," Burton said

Unlike his teammate Busch, who criticized Roush's engine program last week, Burton expressed support for the team's mechanics.

"We've got to stay behind our guys and believe in them," Burton said.

Busch thrilled by finish

By RICK MINTER
Cox News service

Darlington, S.C.

Even in defeat, Kurt Busch was beaming as he recounted the final laps of Sunday's Carolina Dodge Dealers 400.

"That's the coolest finish I've ever seen, and I'm glad I got to be a part of it," he said. "It's a bit stale that I was on the wrong end of it, but it was just an awesome duel."

Busch's sportsmanship showed when he paid winner Ricky Craven a visit in victory lane.

BUSCH

"This is something where we'll slap high fives and drink a couple of beers to later on," Busch said.

The official margin of victory — two-thousandths of a second — was the closest ever recorded since NASCAR began using electronic scoring in 1993.

Craven said the memory will last a lifetime. "I'll be 65 years old sitting on the porch and two-thousandths of a second will make a heck of a story," he said.

Dave Blaney, who finished third, had the best seat in the house for the last-lap showdown. But even he had to wait for the track's electronic system to tell him who won.

"I couldn't even tell who won it was so close," he said. "It was pretty cool."

Earnhardt Jr. back on track

After disappointing finishes of 36th and 33rd in the first two races of the season, Dale Earnhardt Jr. has reeled off finishes of second at Las Vegas, third at Atlanta and sixth at Darlington.

That has allowed him to climb from 38th in points after Rockingham (221 points behind the leader) to fourth (126 back).

"I've got to be patient when the car isn't really working," Earnhardt said. "That's what we did here."

He said Darlington has been a problem track for him in the past, but not this time.

"I feel confident about this run," he said, — Rick Minter

STEAM Group Helps To Make A Difference

The STEAM (Student Tobacco Elimination Among Minors) group at Northern High School has been active in the community this school year promoting tobacco control in a variety of ways. The group is made up of volunteers from the high school who meet twice a month to plan and conduct activities that are aimed at controlling or reducing the use of tobacco in our county.

Most recently, STEAM members offered presentations for two local after-school programs. The first presentation was conducted at the Friendsville After-School program, and the second one at the Partners After School Program at Accident Elementary.

STEAM members educated after-school participants about the harmful effects of smoking. Following this, participants were asked to make an "ugly" face to represent what they thought of smoking. The STEAM students took pictures of each participant making an "ugly" face. Then, participants decorated picture frames for their pictures. These pictures were then judged by a panel of STEAM students, and "The Ugliest Face" was chosen. Winners were presented with T-shirts.

In addition to the Ugly Face Contest, Northern STEAM members have also worked with the Garrett County Health Department to conduct compliance checks of area tobacco vendors, promoted the Great American SmokeOut, organized displays in the school's lobby showcase, and will be conducting puppet shows at area child care centers.

Their activities are funded by a SASS (Students Against Starting Smoking) grant, which is a collaborative effort between the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene and the Maryland State Department of Education. For more information about the Northern STEAM group, persons may contact Sharon Custer or Brenda Frazee at the Garrett County Health Department.

GC United Way To Benefit From Highland Fest

The 2003 McHenry Highland Festival board of directors has voted to donate the majority of proceeds raised by the upcoming event to the United Way of Garrett County, according to festival coordinator Jerry McGee. The festival is set for Saturday, June 7, at the Garrett County Fairgrounds.

The Highland Festival has supported the United Way in the past. Last year's event raised $5,352 for the local United Way chapter. "We were amazed at the amount donated last year," said Tom Myers of the United Way of Garrett County. "This helps assure the funds will be used locally."

"The United Way was chosen because the money stays in the county and is divided among several organizations," McGee explained. "United Way also makes sure agencies are accountable for what they receive and how it is used."

Some of the organizations funded by United Way of Garrett County are the Dove Center, Christian Crossing Thrift Shop, Mountain Glade Adult Care Services, Garrett Organization for the Handicapped, Maryland Salem Children's Trust, Burlington United Methodist Services, plus local branches of Big Brothers Big Sisters, Boy Scouts, Habitat for Humanity, Literacy Council, American Red Cross, and Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety.

A portion of the funds raised this year will be donated to Garrett College to establish a scholarship fund for local students who want to pursue musical studies at the college, McGee added.

The annual McHenry Highland Festival celebrates the area's Celtic heritage with sheepdog demonstrations, Scottish dancing, a British car show, Highland athletic games, and musical entertainment on stage. Livestock, shows and a military enactment are also planned for the festival.

World renowned fiddler Bonnie Rideout will perform again at the festival, along with Carl Peterson and Sang Run. At least five bagpipe bands will perform throughout the day.

"We want it to be a day of fun for the entire family," said McGee. "More family and children's activities are being planned. It also can be educational for those who want to learn more about traditions of England, Ireland, and Scotland."

The festival offers a fund-raising opportunity for non-profit groups through sales of advance tickets or by sponsoring a concession booth. Students can earn community service hours by helping at the festival. Volunteers are needed in advance to help with planning for events and to help at the festival.

Persons interested in volunteering to assist prior to or at the festival, or who desire further information, can either e-mail McGee at jmcgee@garrettcollege.edu or call 301-387-3093. Information is also available at www.highlandfest.info.

SAVING BOX TOPS, LABELS HELPS SCHOOL – Crellin Elementary School is participating in three different programs – Box Tops for Education, Tyson Project A+, and Campbell's Labels for Education – to raise money and obtain supplies for the school. Participants can help the school by collecting Box Tops for Education on many General Mills products. Each of the specially marked box tops is worth 10 cents. Tyson Project A+ also supports the school by raising money. Each of these labels or box tops found on Tyson products is worth 24 cents. Labels from Campbell's products will also help the school obtain equipment and supplies. "We ask parents and all community members to help save these items," said the school's fund-raising spokesperson. The box tops and complete labels from the products may be sent in with a student or dropped off at the school. Pictured, left to right, are Wyatt Sanders, first grade; Tesla Corby, second grade; and Ross Gank, third grade. The students are holding a poster and the containers that are located in the school cafeteria to collect the box tops and labels.

HOUSING PARTNERSHIP CONTINUES – The Garrett County Board of Education, Southern High School, and the Garrett County Community Action Committee are continuing their partnership to provide housing for income-eligible families in the county. Southern High building trades classes, instructed by Loren Bowser, will construct house no. 5 on a GCCAC lot at the Overlook. "This partnership gives the students hands-on field experience, resulting in better trained young workers for the local building industry," said Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of Garrett County Schools. The partnership has produced four houses in the Oakland area for Garrett County families. "It is amazing, when you consider all the coordination that is required, to have the students construct these homes," said Deb Swiger, Home Ownership Program coordinator for GCCAC. "The staff of Southern High deserve a lot of credit." Cindy Sharon, GCCAC housing director, added that the homes are exciting to sell because of what they represent: a community effort and a product of the local youth. According to JoAnn Vent, BOE supervisor of Career and Technology Education, the Board of Education and GCCAC are working to extend this initiative to Northern High School. Pictured in the front row, left to right, are Vent, Teets, and Sharon. In the back row are Bowser; Tom Woods, SHS principal; Loring E. Young, GCCAC development vice president; and Swiger. For information about the Home Ownership Program, persons may call Swiger at 301-334-9431, ext. 150.

"Brrr...it is so cold!! I know that tomorrow is supposed to be the first day of spring, but I can hardly imagine anything green surviving under the icy remnants of this winter's snowstorms and blizzards."

Have faith. Spring is coming as it does every year, for God's plans are so much stronger than our doubts. We read in Job 12:13 and 22, "With God are wisdom and might; He has counsel and understanding...He uncovers the deeps out of darkness, and brings deep darkness to light." Yes, beneath the sheet of snow, crocus with colorful potential and daffodil bulbs that hold the color of the sun wait for the curtain of winter to lift so the show of spring can begin.

Do you ever feel that life could not possibly hold any goodness for you...that you cannot dig out from under your circumstances? Yet, the same God that brings spring from depths of winter can bring light and warmth to your life, no matter how hopeless you feel.

Visit God's House this Sabbath. Plant your seed of faith. Spring will come to your soul sooner than you think...and you will blossom.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHERE IS YOUR AUTHORITY?

March 23, 2003

Background Scripture:
Mark 6:1-13.
Devotional Reading:
John 12:44-50.

In some ways, since Jesus' times, the world hasn't changed as much as we might expect. For example, in Mark 6:1-6 Jesus' countrymen were both amazed at the authority he exuded and incredulous that such authority could reside in someone local. "Where did this man get all this?...Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary and brother of James and Joses and Judas and Simon?" How could a local boy make good on such a high level? So, although they were intrigued by the authority with which he spoke, "they took offense at him."

That happens today, too, doesn't it? Many years ago when I was an undergraduate at the University of Pennsylvania, I was a member in the campus drama group. There was one fellow thespian who never seemed to do much in this busy organization, just sat around and plinked on the piano a lot. "Boy, there's one guy who will never make it in the entertainment world," I opined. It seemed like a very safe prophecy, but ten years later I saw his name as director of some of filmdom's most successful films. I was both amazed and chastened, just as Jesus' countrymen would be today.

In Our Own Country

Jesus' response is still as true today as it was then: "A prophet is not without honor, except in his own country, and in his own house" (6:4). He was right about many of his neighbors and also about his own family. Mark tells us that, when he went to his own home, his friends "went out to seize him, for they said, 'He is beside himself'" (3:21) and John tells us "For even his brothers did not believe in him" (Jn. 7:5).

Halford E. Luccock says, "They had all the physical facts about this strange man, his birth, his occupation, his home and family. That is all they needed—the obvious facts." But, as both Jesus' neighbors and his family would learn, there is usually a lot more to a person we think we know than the obvious facts. "Our world is ridden with 'factfinders'" who look no further than the facts.

Eventually, his family and friends would realize that this local boy, whom they thought they knew so well, carried an authority in himself that was messianic. But they also were to learn that Jesus could bestow authority on his disciples who came from the very lowest levels of society. These men seemed the least likely to share in the mission of the messiah. Still, Jesus sent "them out two by two and gave them authority over unclean spirits" (6:7). Jesus first called them to "come,' But now the command is to "go"! Lots of people like the first part of that, but never get around to the "go" part.

Badge of Authority

This is important for us to remember: the authority of Jesus is his not only to keep, but to share with those who follow him. That's us. But, let's make certain we understand what this authority is: to preach, to heal and to cast out evil. Our authority is not to act in an authoritarian manner, but to use our authority to help others. And this is what they did: "So they went out and preached that men should repent. And they cast out many demons, and anointed with oil many that were sick and healed them'"(6:13). That is and has always been the church's badge of authority. If we are not doing those things today, can we be the Church?

Mark tells us, "And he could do no mighty work there, except that he laid his hands on a few sick people and healed them. And he marveled because of their unbelief." (3:5,6). Despite the authority of Jesus, he was limited in what he could do by the lack of faith on the part of the people. Mark says Jesus "could do no mighty work there," while Matthew makes it "did not do." I think Mark's "could" is more helpful for us, because we too often forget that the power of God in Christ needs to work in the context of faith. I have always observed that the greatest results are respondent, not to disbelief, but faith.

Herbals: Precautions Are Similar to Drugs

Taking herbal (plant-derived) medications may be different from taking traditional medicines. However, approach herbals the same way you would conventional drugs. Herbals can have side effects, interactions with other drugs or disease states, and dose limits just as over-the-counter or prescription medicines do. The US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) does not regulate herbals the same way that they regulate prescription medicines. Therefore, it is very important to buy herbals from reliable sources.

Anyone with an impaired kidney, liver, or immune system should exercise caution before taking herbals. Pregnant or breast-feeding mothers, young children, and seniors need to exercise caution, as well.

Just because they are "natural" does not mean they are also safe. If you think you are experiencing a side effect from an herbal product, tell a health professional.

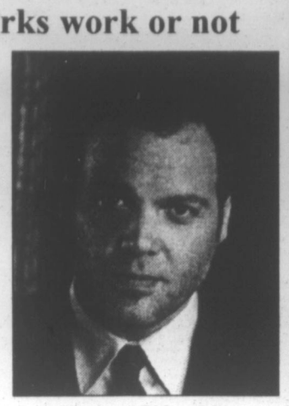
D'Onofrio's quirks work or not

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it



Vincent D'Onofrio

Q: I enjoy watching Vincent D'Onofrio on "Law & Order: Criminal Intent," but his rather strange mannerisms make me wonder whether I am missing something. Does his character have a secret problem, phobia or mental disorder of some kind? –Byron L. Smith, Mankato, Minn.

A: Not in the sense you probably mean. D'Onofrio is a wildly versatile and inventive character actor who uses his entire "instrument" – voice, body and facial expressions – to build a character. Police Detective Bobby Goren, D'Onofrio's "L&O" alter ego, is a deeply eccentric man who lives mostly in his head and takes an almost sensual relish in tackling complicated cerebral puzzles and unraveling them. It either works for you or it doesn't. I find D'Onofrio's performance one of the most fascinating on network TV right now, but other critics (and viewers) say they find it just too distractingly mannered.

"You wouldn't want to live with the guy, although you might want to go have a drink with him sometime," D'Onofrio says of Goren. "I'm here for five or six seasons, so it's only going to get stranger."

Q: Is that John Ritter's voice I heard speaking for "Clifford the Big Red Dog"? –Lisa Antognoli, Asheville, N.C.

A: Yes.

Q: Do you recall a late-night soap from the '70s in which the gender roles were switched? Women were corporate bosses, men were househusbands and secretaries. –Earl Warner, Wenonah, N.J.

A: You're thinking of Norman Lear's "All That Glitters," which aired in late-night syndication from April to July 1977. Set mainly in the offices of the female-dominant Globatron Corporation, the satiric sitcom featured, among others, Lois Nettleton as driven executive Christina Stockwood, a pre-"Dallas" Linda Gray as transsexual model Linda Murkland and Gary Sandy, who would go on to "WKRP in Cincinnati," as Dan Kincaid, the secretary with "the cutest little buns in the corporation."

Q: Who were the stars of "Car 54, Where Are You?" Are they still alive? –Mary Gillette via e-mail.

A: The first sitcom about police officers, "Car 54," a 1961-63 NBC offering, starred Joe E. Ross as high-strung Gunther Toody and a pre-"Munsters" Fred Gwynne as his partner, Francis Muldoon. Ross died in 1982 at 68. Gwynne died in 1993 at 66.

TOTE

The AP environmental science class has been awarded two grants to establish a newspaper and office paper recycling program for Northern High School. The Maryland Student Service Alliance awarded the class $300, and the Tidewater Environmental Health Association gave an additional $275 for the purchase of bins and advertising for the program. The Take Our Trash Elsewhere (TOTE) program will place recycling bins in each classroom and office to collect recyclables. Students involved are Lacie Berkebile, Nicole Doerr, Jamey Durst, Jodi Fratz, Will Gallagher, Michael Guard, Mitchell Guard, Carissa Kamp, Heather Lander, Tina Opel, Melissa Patterson, Steve Rounds, Valene Synder, Annie Winter, Ben Winter, Molly Wolf, Megan Zimmerman, and April Slagle, teacher of the class.

15th ANNUAL NATIONAL YOUTH SERVICE DAY

April 11 through 13 is National Youth Service Day, and young people across America will clean up schoolyards, set up recycling projects, mentor, and counsel. Persons interested in obtaining more information on how to plan a work project, recruit volunteers, or raise funds may stop by the Counseling Center or visit www.YSA.org/nysd.

ATTENTION ALL STUDENTS

The Counseling Center has received information on the 2003 Maryland Summer Centers. These programs offer unique instructional experiences for students who are gifted and talented with the opportunity to work in settings and with resources not available during the regular school year. For more information, persons may contact the Counseling Center.

ATTENTION, JUNIORS AND SENIORS

Persons who will be attending Garrett College and have a GPA of 85% or better may enter into the Honors Program. Persons may sign up in the Counseling Center to speak to a representative from Garrett College about this program. The date has not yet been determined.

The Angela A. Bailey Educational Scholarship has been established for students who are diagnosed with a learning disability or a health-related impairment. Applicants must be able to demonstrate a steadfast motivation to improve academically while enrolled in high school and must be planning to enroll in a two- or four-year college or vocational technical school. Additional information and scholarship applications are available in the Counseling Center. The award amount is $250, and the deadline to apply is April 26.

Applications have recently been received for the Maryland Association of Private Career Schools (MAPCS) Scholarship Program. These scholarships are for use at designated private career schools only. The participating schools are listed on the application, which students may pick up in the Counseling Center. The deadline is April 18.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It is illegal to hunt camels in Arizona.

• A newspaper once ran a classified ad that read: "Wedding dress. Worn once by mistake."

• Here's an experiment to liven up a dull night: Get some Wint-O-Green Life Savers and stand in front of a mirror in a pitch-dark room. Bite down on the candy with your lips apart, and you might see a spark of blue-green light. When molecules of sugar crystals are ripped apart, electrons jump across the crack in the candy. Since wintergreen contains fluorescent methyl salicylate, which absorbs ultraviolet light and converts it into visible light, that's the only flavor that sparks.

• It was Margaret Thatcher who observed, "In politics, if you want anything said, ask a man; if you want anything done, ask a woman."

• John Mills won an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actor for his role in "Ryan's Daughter." The unusual thing about it is that he won the award without saying a single word — he played a deaf mute in the film.

• After his arrest, serial killer Ted Bundy said, "I'm a very nonviolent person."

• If you're ever at the horse races, keep this in mind: The favorite wins fewer than 30 percent of the races.

• Robert Todd Lincoln, son of President Abraham Lincoln, was present at three presidential assassinations: his father's, President Garfield's and President McKinley's. After the last one, he refused to ever attend a state affair again.

• Dirty snow melts faster than clean snow.

• In the Virgin Islands, Franklin D. Roosevelt's birthday is observed as a legal holiday.

The event celebrated a gift by the Japanese government of 3,020 cherry trees to the United States. After World War II, cuttings from the cherry trees were sent back to Japan to restore the Tokyo collection that was decimated by American bombing attacks during the war.

Thunderstorm Phobia

Q. My 9-year-old spaniel developed thunderstorm anxiety when we moved from Nebraska to Arizona about four years ago. She is a nervous dog by nature, and it is a very traumatic time for her when our monsoons arrive. She deals with thunderstorms pretty well when she's inside with us, but if a storm comes when she's outside in her run, she will actually claw her way up the sides and out the top! Help! — Simply Sharon

A. Thunderstorm anxiety (or phobia) is common in many pets. Their reaction to lightning and thunder can range from a worried bark or meow to a terrified rampage through the house.

Here, however, that may not be the entire story. Your dog is sometimes out in her run during thunderstorms (say, when you're at work). Her fear reaction to the noise and lightning is understandable if you look closely at the material with which the run is built.

The chain-link fence, the wooden roof, and even the ground are all conductive, to different degrees. So, the first issue here is that the dog is susceptible to a lightning strike.

Second, a theory being researched (mentioned by Dr. Nicholas Dodman in his book, "Dogs Behaving Badly") suggests that animals sense a buildup of static electricity in the air prior to and during a thunderstorm. Emotionally sensitive dogs may get upset at this buildup. And since your spaniel is sitting inside a very conductive run, the static buildup may be even more noticeable and upsetting.

A corner of the run should become a safe haven. Place a nonconductive rubber mat on the ground, and build a "box" of nonconductive materials like linoleum, with a top and a single opening. The dog can hide in there during storms, which may help reduce much of her anxiety.

Next week, I'll deal with the pharmaceutical and therapeutic aspects of thunderstorm phobia.

"You spend the early years buying stuff and the rest of the years repairing it."

Flight attendants on a long layover.

"After filling prescriptions for twenty years, Dorfman said he needed a day to empty things."

Board Provides Prekindergarten Registration Info

Beginning March 1, 2003, and ending May 1, 2003, the Garrett County Board of Education will be accepting applications for its Extended Elementary Education Program or prekindergarten. To be eligible for this program a child must have been born between December 1, 1998, and October 30, 1999.

There is a two-step application process:

1. Interested parents should obtain a copy of the Notification of Interest for Prekindergarten Program documents. (These documents can be obtained from the nearest elementary school or from the Office of Pupil Services at the Board of Education office in Oakland.) The first document explains the enrollment and selection process for the prekindergarten program. The second document is an information sheet. This information sheet should be completed and forwarded to the Office of Pupil Services, Garrett County Board of Education, 40 South Second Street, Oakland, MD 21550. The form can also be taken to the closest elementary school.

2. Upon receipt of the Notification of Interest for Prekindergarten Program information sheet, the parents will be given or sent a second set of documents. This second set includes a parent letter, a photocopy of the Board of Education's guidelines for determining the eligibility and selection of prekindergarten students, and a Garrett County Prekindergarten Program Questionnaire. This questionnaire will need to be completed and returned as soon as possible to the Office of Pupil Services. The information provided by parents on this questionnaire will be used to determine which children are enrolled in the prekindergarten program. The Office of Pupil Services will date and log in all questionnaires.

Any questions about this enrollment process should be directed to Mrs. Liz Lewis, administrative secretary, Office of Pupil Services, at 301-334-8939.

Speeding Ticket Leads To Arrest Of Finzel Man

A Finzel man stopped for speeding on Interstate 68 last Thursday afternoon, March 13, was subsequently jailed after he reportedly refused to sign the citation and put up resistance as a Maryland State Police trooper attempted to arrest him.

Shane Dwayne Russell, 18, was traveling westbound on the Interstate when he was stopped at Chestnut Ridge Road at 1:53 p.m. Although he was advised that refusal to sign the citation would lead to his arrest, Russell allegedly continued to refuse to comply. When the trooper enacted the arrest, Russell allegedly resisted before he was taken into custody.

Russell faces charges of resisting arrest, disorderly conduct, and speeding. He was released from the Garrett County Jail after posting a $1,000 bond set by a District Court commissioner.

TWINS DONATE LOCKS OF LOVE – Marissa and Trista Aronhalt, sixth graders at Southern Middle School, recently gave up a significant length of their curls to Locks of Love, a non-profit organization that provides hairpieces to underprivileged children with medical hair loss. Trista (wearing glasses) has had a constant battle with seizures over the past several years, and testing at Johns Hopkins Hospital required the cutting of her hair. To help Trista feel better, her sister Marissa decided to do the same. Both girls had 10 inches cut off, which was sent to Locks of Love. It will now be processed into the hand-assembled, vacuum-fitted hair pieces, which require about four months for completion, and then will be provided, either free of charge or at a nominal cost, to a child who has experienced the total loss of scalp hair. Eighty percent of Locks of Love donors are children. The organization was founded in 1997, and since that time has helped over 850 youngsters. Persons who wish to donate hair may do so by making sure it is clean and dry, placed in a plastic bag, and mailed in a padded envelop to Locks of Love, 2925 10th Ave. N., Suite 102, Lake Worth, FL 33461. Marissa and Trista are the twins of Rick and Becki (Harding) Wilt, Oakland, and Greg Aronhalt, Mt. Storm, W.Va.

Colon Cancer Program Slated At Health Dept.

The Garrett County Interagency Cancer Committee has slated a free program titled "Spring Into Good Health—Get the Facts on Colon Cancer" for 6 to 8 p.m. on Monday, March 24, at the Garrett County Health Department in Oakland. The event is taking place in conjunction with the March observance of Colon Cancer Awareness Month, and the agenda will include a discussion of facts on the prevention of colon as well as skin, oral, prostate, breast, and cervical cancers.

"Colorectal cancer is the second leading cause of cancer related deaths in the United States for both men and women combined," an Interagency Cancer Committee spokesperson said. "Approximately 147,500 new cases will be diagnosed this year and approximately 57,000 will die from the disease. Early screening can keep you from getting colon cancer or find the cancer early when it is most curable."

The speakers list includes Charles Walch, M.D., F.A.C.S., a board certified surgeon associated with the Garrett Surgical Group and Garrett County Memorial Hospital. JoAnn Forno, R.N., B.S., is the manager of Garrett County Memorial Hospital's Surgical Services Department, including the operating room, recovery, outpatient surgery, and chemotherapy. Walch and Forno will be speaking on colon cancer, screening, and procedures.

Garrett County commissioner and pharmacist Ernie Gregg, a cancer survivor, will share his personal experience with discovering colon cancer, survival, and advice on what can be done to overcome cancer.

The event will include refreshments and door prizes. For further information, or to register, persons may call Rebecca Parks or Sharon Rounds at the Health Department at 301-334-7770 or 301-895-3111.

GET THE JUMP ON CANCER – A free program titled "Spring Into Good Health—Get the Facts on Colon Cancer" will be offered from 6 to 8 p.m. on Monday, March 24, at the Garrett County Health Department, where guest speakers including Dr. Charles Walch, left, and registered nurse JoAnn Forno will provide the latest information on colon cancer, screening, and procedures. Garrett County commissioner Ernie Gregg, himself a colon cancer survivor, will also share his own personal experiences. For further information or to register, persons may call Rebecca Parks or Sharon Rounds of the Health Department at 301-334-7770 or 301-895-3111.

THE LAWSONS

Garrett County native Rev. Mark Lawson observed his 20th anniversary as an ordained minister last month with a special service at the New Beginnings Covenant Church of Uniontown, Pa., where he serves as senior pastor.

Lawson is the son of Marlin and Lena Lawson of Friendsville, where he was raised. His wife, Kathy Lawson, grew up in McHenry and is the daughter of Kitty Savage of McHenry and the late Earl Savage. The Lawsons both graduated from Northern High School.

Mark Lawson has served on the ministerial staff of a number of churches, including the Keller Glade Church and Bethel Temple Church, both located in West Virginia; and the Markleysburg Church of the Brethren, the Bear Run Church of the Brethren, and the Fairchance Church of the Brethren in Pennsylvania. Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

Why are some fridge magnets so weak?

Isn't it a drag when that big old Pete's Pizza magnet won't even hold up little Billy's latest A+ paper?

Every magnet is made up of magnetic "domains," tiny regions in which all the atoms are aligned in the same direction, so that there is a net "magnetic moment" in one direction. If the atoms were not aligned, but were merely random, there wouldn't be any magnetism at all.

Unlike large and powerful industrial magnets, refrigerator magnets don't get much special treatment. The typical refrigerator magnet of today is a soft, flexible piece of material with advertising on one side. The magnetic domains are neither very strong nor very many, and are embedded haphazardly in the flexible material. There are magnets for use on metal walls in offices, but these are sold in stores, not given away for promotional advertising.

In order for any magnet to work, the other surface has to cooperate. We say it must have magnetic susceptibility. That means there have to be domains in that surface which are willing to have their atoms aligned in response to a magnetic pull from outside. Glass won't do that; neither will aluminum. The most powerful magnet in the world can't help. (A refrigerator with an aluminum door is impossible to attach anything to, and is probably un-American.)

The refrigerator door's paint (and porcelain, if that's part of it) are not magnetic either. The refrigerator magnet has to pull through Billy's test paper, through the paint and porcelain, and reach the steel below. Too many pieces of paper and the force of attraction is no longer enough to keep the magnet attached to the door, the force of gravity will make it fall to the floor.

How can you find the "secret spot" where your magnet works best? Here's an experiment: Take several squares of toilet paper and use a magnet to hold them to the refrigerator. Most cheap refrigerator magnets will hold three squares, but will fall off with four squares. (It also depends on the thickness of the toilet paper.) More powerful refrigerator magnets may go up to five squares. Somewhere around the "four" vicinity, the magnet may slowly slide down the refrigerator and come to a halt. That is a region where there is good alignment between the magnetic domains in the magnet and the domains in the steel door.

Farming On The Mountaintop

State Ag. Department To Celebrate 30th Anniversary With Open House

Recognizing the essential role of agriculture as Maryland's largest industry and foundation of Maryland's economy, Governor Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. has proclaimed the week of March 17 to 22 to be Maryland Agriculture Week to coincide with National Ag Day. The department will celebrate both agriculture week and its 30th anniversary during an open house this Saturday, March 22, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Coincidently, 2003 also is the 30th anniversary of National Ag Day.

"For the past 30 years, the men and women of the Maryland Department of Agriculture have been dedicated to protecting consumers, assisting farmers, and promoting Maryland's agricultural economy," said Governor Ehrlich.

In 1972, the Maryland General Assembly approved legislation establishing the Maryland Department of Agriculture on the basis of agriculture's growing importance and impact to the economy of the state. A year later, the Maryland Department of Agriculture became a full-fledged part of state operations. Today, more than 400 MDA employees provide services ranging from promoting Maryland agricultural products to battling invasive plants and insects and assuring the accuracy of gasoline pumps and grocery store scales.

"We are proud of the services we provide our farmers and all Maryland citizens," said Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley. "We look forward to continuing to provide the maximum protection possible for the consumer as well as promote the economic well-being of farmers and businesses engaged in agricultural related operations."

Maryland's agricultural industries provide food, fiber, and value-added products that account for $17.8 billion of the state's economy, $1.6 billion in farm revenue, and more than 410,000 jobs.

The department's open house celebrating the 30th anniversary will be held, rain or shine, at 50 Harry S. Truman Pkwy., just off Riva Road in Annapolis. It's free and open to everyone. Hands-on activities, a farmers' and craft market, and demonstrations will highlight the world of agriculture and the activities of the Maryland Department of Agriculture. Persons may call 410-841-5881 or log onto www.mda.state.md.us for more information about this family event.

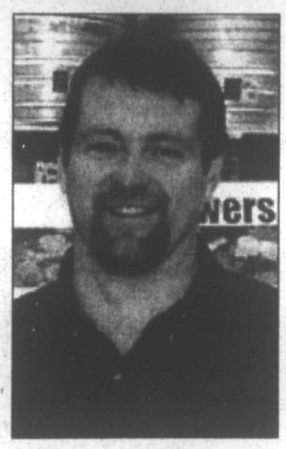
Hart Named Manager Of Southern States



Tom Hart, a lifelong resident of Grafton, W.Va., has recently taken the helm of Southern States Oakland Cooperative Inc. as the new manager.

Hart, a former self-employed contractor, graduated from West Virginia University, Morgantown, W.Va., with a degree in agriculture before teaching voag for three years.

"My number one goal is to make the store more profitable beyond what it has been," Hart said. "The number two goal is to strengthen the relationship with the community. And you can't accomplish goal number two without goal number one."

He said he commutes daily and jokes to his neighbors that he "makes deliveries from Oakland daily."

Southern States is a cooperative, which means it is owned by the patrons and therefore can offer products and services at a lower price, Hart explained.

The board of directors, which consists of local people, is responsible for the major decisions.

"Stop in and say 'Hello,' " Hart said. "I will do whatever I can for the customers."

Organic Seed Starting Workshop

Interested in organic growing? The whole process of organic production starts with the germination of the seed. The Mountain State Organic Growers and Buyers Association in cooperation with Max and Katharine Dubansky invites interested people to attend an organic seed-starting workshop. The workshop will demonstrate starting seeds and growing seedling using organic methods. They will discuss soil blocks, flats, organic amendments and more as they relate to growing healthy seedlings in and out of the greenhouse. The workshop will be held on Saturday, March 29, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Duransky's farm located in Pleasant Valley at 530 Lynndale Road, Oakland. The cost is $5 per person which includes materials and refreshments. For reservations and directions call 301-334-5633.

Nutrient Management Voucher Training

According to the Maryland Water Quality Act any person applying commercial fertilizers or manure on ten (10) acres or more is required to attend a training session to be awarded an applicator's voucher. There is no testing or cost involved in obtaining the voucher. We will be offering the training on Tuesday, March 25, 7 p.m., Continuing Education Building, Room 314, Garrett College. This will be the only opportunity before spring planting occurs.

Are you Seeding Forages too Deep?

That seed in the bag is a living thing. It can't walk or talk (thank goodness), but is just waiting to grow into a living plant. Once the germination process starts the seed uses the stored energy to get to the sunlight. If the seed is planted too deep it will run out of energy before emergence. The smaller the seed the less stored energy. Forages should not be planted deeper than one-forth inch. If alfalfa and clover are planted any deeper the seedling will not be able to come through the soil. If you see a few seeds on top of the soil you are probably planting at the right depth. To assure a good start take time to check your planting depth. Make sure the seedbed is firm so the seed has good soil contact.

Miss Swauger Becomes Bride Of Thomas Kooser In July Ceremony

HM1 Thomas Dale Kooser and Julie Annette Swauger were united in marriage on July 14, 2002, at Oak Grove Church of the Brethren, with the Rev. Alan Birkby officiating. The bride is the daughter of Harold and Linda Swauger, Friendsville. The groom is the son of William and Valerie Kooser, Connellsville, Pa.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father. She wore a sleeveless, A-line/empire waist style Alfred Angelo gown of ivory satin. The square neckline and fitted bodice were outlined and accented with pearls. The floor-length A-line skirt and semi-cathedral train were accented with pearls as well. The veil was a crescent headpiece of ivory roses and pearls made of pearled alençon lace designed by the bride's mother. The bride wore a single strand pearl choker to accent the neckline. She carried a cascade of silk ivory and lavender roses accented with baby's breath and greenery.

The groom wore his U.S. Navy service/dinner dress uniform adorned with ribbons and medals of service.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids wore lavender floor-length gowns with a fitted bodice and A-line waist. The junior bridesmaid wore a purple floor-length gown with a fitted bodice and A-line waist.

Deborah Carpenter, friend of the bride, served as matron of honor. Kathleen Seaman and Krystal Fabian, friends of the bride, served as bridesmaids, and Elizabeth Kooser, daughter of the groom, served as junior bridesmaid.

Brittany Williams, niece of the bride, served as flower girl and wore a lilac dress with purple and ivory roses and ribbon adorning the waistline. Kayli Dunithan, daughter of the bride, served as bridal princess and wore a floor-length spaghetti strap ivory satin gown with a straight skirt. She carried a bouquet of purple, lavender, and ivory roses, baby's breath, and greenery accented with purple ribbon.

The best man and groomsmen wore black tuxes and ivory shirts with lavender checkered vests. The junior groomsman wore a black tux and ivory shirt with a purple checkered vest.

Edward Labra, friend of the groom, served as best man. Bernie Knouse and Brian Wood, friends of the groom, served as groomsmen, and Brian Williams, nephew of the bride, served as junior groomsman.

Brandon Williams, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer and wore a black tux and ivory shirt with a purple checkered vest. He carried the bride's and groom's rings on an ivory satin heart-shaped pillow. Nathaniel Swauger, nephew of the bride, served as honorary ring bearer and wore black shorts with a white polo shirt, and carried a teddy bear.

Pianist was Judy Rush. Vocalists Becky Fike and Andy Fike sang "From This Moment" during the lighting of the unity candles. Shawn Fike sang "Me and You" as a special song from the bride to the groom.

Guest book attendant was Jessica Garlick, and program attendant was Bill Kroll. Bubbles given to the guests following the ceremony were distributed by Elizabeth and Charlie Garlick.

Three lavender and four ivory roses adorned the altar in memory of the bride's and groom's grandparents.

A reception followed at the Deep Creek fire hall with Night Sounds of Connellsville, Pa., providing the music. The three-tier wedding cake was decorated with ivory icing, and purple and lilac roses. Nancy Fike, Becky Fike, and Norma Rodeheaver set up and maintained the food and punch. Scrolls with a message to family and friends, and personalized golf balls were given to the guests at the reception. Lavender and purple balloons were let go following the reception.

Guests attending the ceremony were from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia.

The bride is a respiratory care practitioner and is currently employed at St. Agnes Healthcare in Baltimore. The groom is currently serving as the LPO of the Cardiology Division at the Naval Hospital, Guam.

The couple went to the Poconos for their honeymoon, and will reside in North Carolina following the safe return of HM1 Kooser from Guam.

Local Author has First Novel

Thomas Pessini, resident of Buffalo Run Road, Friendsville, announces the publishing of his first novel, Traitor in the White House, an espionage, suspense thriller.

A native of Morristown, N.J., Pessini arrived in Friendsville in April 1993 to settle after retirement from the U.S. Army. He is married and has four children and two stepchildren, all of whom are grown. He has an associate's degree in law enforcement, a bachelor's degree in English education, and serves as a substitute teacher.

Traitor in the White House is the first novel in a series of over 19 that he plans to write based on the values of protagonist MIA agent Skip Daggart. Each novel will be based on a lot of Pessini's personal experiences and true events that he has witnessed. The plot of his first novel evolves around a president who is dying of cancer and wants to start WW III, and was dubbed a "Bruce Willis-type movie/scenario" by many at Frostburg State University.

The novel will be published one chapter a week, with the first chapter to be available for download by computer after 4 p.m. the evening of Monday, March 31, on Pessini's web site www.qcol.net/tppublications, a web site that he created three years ago for writers and poets who deserve to have their talent published. A new chapter will be available every Monday after the 31st for 20 weeks. Previous chapters will always be available to late-comers. The chapters can also be purchased in booklet form from an order form available on the web site, or from several outlets that will be selling the booklet, including: Twila's Mill Grill in Bruceton Mills, Shawnee's Hairstylist at 120 High Lane in Cumberland, and Mainstreet Books at 2 East Main Street in Frostburg.

This new endeavor of publishing has been done by such authors as Stephen King, and makes it easier for readers who don't have time to get involved with a novel that "you can't put down" by only introducing a new chapter at a time, and is also a new way to introduce a series of novels at a reasonable price.

With the help of Mary Ann Chapman, editor and teacher of English at Frostburg State University, "a local dream has become a reality," Pessini said.

Friendsville Fireflies

The Fireflies 4-H Club will be bowling at The Bowler in LaVale and having pizza on Saturday, March 29.

Spaghetti Dinner

There will be an "all-you-can-eat" spaghetti dinner this Saturday, March 22, from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Accident fire hall. Proceeds of this fund-raiser will benefit the Northern boys' basketball team. The dinner consists of spaghetti, bread, tossed salad, dessert, and drink. The cost is $6 per adult, $3 for students up to age 7, and free to those under the age of 3. For more information, persons may contact Paul Edwards at NHS at 301-746-8668.

Neighborhood Watch

An Easter egg hunt has been scheduled for the after-school youth on Tuesday, April 8, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. at the school. Those attending will make their own Easter baskets. They will also have a family pizza party, with all parents of the youth urged to attend.

The next meeting of the Neighborhood Watch will be held Tuesday, April 8, at 6 p.m.

Easter Egg Hunt

There will be an Easter egg hunt on Sunday, April 13, at the Friendsville Town Park, beginning at 2 p.m. The three age levels for the hunt will be: 1-3 years, 4-6 years, and 7-10 years. Parents are encouraged to come and spend this time with their children. Prizes will be awarded.

This event is being sponsored by the Friendsville Neighborhood Watch and after-school teen volunteers. Those who would like to help stuff eggs for the hunt are asked to meet at the home of Brenda Frazee on March 26 at 6 p.m. This is an opportunity for students to earn community service hours.

Teen Recreation

Teen Recreation will start Monday, April 14, from 7 to 8 p.m. and continue every Monday and Wednesday after that until May 28 for grades 3-12. Basketball, volleyball, games, refreshments, and door prizes will be offered each night. Youth must attend at least eight sessions out of 13 to be able to go on the reward trip to Smiley's on May 28. This year it is the kids' responsibility to sign with in with JoAnn Ross each night by 7 p.m.

Wing Night

Wing Night will now be held from 6 to 9 p.m. every Friday at the Friendsville fire hall. The wings come in a variety of flavors. They also serve chicken dinners, fish sandwiches, french fries, onion rings, chicken fingers, and cheese sticks. Proceeds benefit the Friendsville Fire and Rescue Dept. Inc.

LIONS HONOR LAWSON – The Friendsville Lions Club honored member Michael Lawson with its Lion of the Year Award recently, marking the second year Lawson has earned the recognition. "Mike is a sincerely devoted, hardworking member of our organization," club president Randy Humberson said. "He is always available for our many activities, and has donated several hundred hours over the past year to our work in the community by participating in every one of our fund-raisers." Lawson chairs the club's chicken fry committee, organizes the kitchen activities at the Friendsville Days Fiddler's Contest, and has garnered top sales for the fund-raising raffles over the past five years. Post Card Has Incorrect Date For Blood Drive

Aurora area residents received a post card recently from the American Red Cross concerning an upcoming blood drive; however, the card gave an erroneous date for that drive.

The correct date for the drive is April 1, and it will be held at the Union Ambulance squad hall along U.S. Rt. 50. Donors will be welcomed from 1 to 7 p.m.

Bayard Church Sets Women's Conference

The Rophe Christian Conference Center, located south of Bayard, is currently selling tickets for its daylong women's conference slated for Saturday, May 17, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The featured guest speaker will be B.D. Hyman of Charlottesville, Va., daughter of film legend Bette Davis. Hyman's presentation will focus on her struggles in overcoming a dysfunctional relationship with her mother, the deliverance of her father from membership in a "cult," her own battle with cancer, and the mental illness of one of her children. Hyman hosts her own weekly television program, The Teaching Ministry of B.D. Hyman, which is broadcast on direct satellite channel Angel One.

Lunch will be served during the conference, and teaching tapes, literature, and books will be available at the event.

Tickets must be purchased by Friday, May 9, as seating is by advance reservation only. Tickets may be obtained for a $15 donation each by contacting Pastor Jim Strahin at 304-227-4509. The Rophe Christian Conference Center, a branch of the Twin City Fellowship Chapel Ministries based in Thomas, is located along W.Va. Route 90 approximately 6½ miles south of Gormania. Detailed directions are available from Pastor Strahin.

TERRA ALTA

Mathan Nissly was recently flown to Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh, where he was hospitalized for three weeks after receiving an tracheostomy tube for breathing.

Mathan, the fourth adopted son of Glenn and Jo-Anne Nissly, Terra Alta, was born three months premature and weighed only one pound, seven ounces. He had breathing difficulties at birth, and at the age of 3 he had reconstruction work done on his trachea. His recent hospitalization was because of severe breathing difficulties.

The Nisslys, who recently moved to the area to fill the position of caretakers at Camp Galilee, note their appreciation to all for cards, gifts, telephone calls, and prayers. Their address is: RR2, Box 129, Terra Alta, WV 26764.

Rev. Brostowski To Conduct Local Youth Revival

Evangelist Gayle A. Brostowski will conduct youth revival services at Elk Garden Assembly of God, Elk Garden, W.Va., on March 21, 22, and 23 at 6 p.m. each evening. A live band, Pressed For Time, will perform at the Friday service.

"Knowing that the Bible proclaims there will be a sovereign move of the Holy Spirit just prior to the Lord's return for his church," said an Elk Garden Assembly of God spokesperson, "Gayle believes that we are living in such a time when God desires to fulfill this promise and send revival to our nation. She comes preaching the message that God still saves, heals, and baptizes in His Holy Spirit."

A native and resident of northeastern Pennsylvania, Rev. Brostowski is an ordained Assemblies of God minister. Since June of 1994, she has traveled as a full-time evangelist throughout the Midwest and the northeast corridor of the U.S.

Prior to this, the reverend served for nine years in youth ministry as an assistant pastor at Assembly of God churches in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and New York.

"Please join us and be a part of what God is doing at Elk Garden Assembly of God," said the spokesperson. For more information, persons may call 301-453-3451 or contact elkgardenassemblyofgod@yahoo.com.

AURORA/EGLON

Mt. Grove Ramp Dinner

The Mt. Grove Volunteer Fire Department is getting ready for its annual ramp dinner. Planned for May 4, the need for ramps prior to that date is obvious, according to VFD members. As most members are either too busy or unable to do the work of digging the ramps, they are asking for help. If any civic or church organizations, scouts or 4-H groups would be willing to do this chore they are asked to contact Dennis Roth at 735-5035.

Lenten Services

Next week, St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Aurora, will host the 7:30 p.m. services, with the Rev. Glenn Nissly bringing the message. On April 2, the Rev. Sam Moon will be speaking at Mt. Grove Church of the Brethren. Maple Grove Assembly of God will host the April 9 services, with the Rev. Sandy McGinnis bringing the message.

Mountaineer 4-H

The March 10 meeting of the Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club moved to the Aurora fire hall, where members were given a program about fire safety and a tour of the facilities by Shad Green, Matthew Mayne, T.C. Kimble, and Adam Bachtel, who showed and explained use of various equipment. The 100% in attendance that evening expressed their appreciation to those above named and to the Aurora Volunteer Fire Department as a whole for the display and tour.

Using the Lord's Prayer, Craig Rembold opened the meeting, with Trevor Spaid leading in the recitation of the 4-H and U.S. pledges.

Preston County 4-H Day is set for April 12 at Valley Elementary School. Registration for participation is due by April 1, and planning to attend are Ashley Wilt, Kari Harsh, and Trevor Spaid. The next meeting will be April 14 at the Horse Shoe Run Farmers' Wildlife Park to clean the park. Sara Lewis, as Conservation Committee chair, is in charge.

Tracy Teets presented a demonstration titled "Leading a Hog for Judging." Kaitlyn Schalker demonstrated the steps in taking a good photo. "How to Care for Your Cat" was Katelyn Harsh's talk, and Caitlin Norwish told basic information about 4-H. "How to Take Good Pictures Using DOCS" was Caitlin Roth's subject for a talk. Nathan Cussins gave a history of 4-H camping, particularly of Jackson's Mill. Debbie Collins told how to make "Homemade Cocoa Mix."

At the county photo competition, Sara Lewis and Craig Rembold each had photo entries which will be submitted for state judging. Nicole Britner and Sara Lewis were presented white ribbons for their entries.

A camp planning meeting was planned for March 14, also a county event. Nicole Britner had two articles published in the Preston County News as a part of her project in journalism.

Bloodmobile Visit Slated

The American Red Cross bloodmobile will be at the Union Ambulance squad hall in Aurora, Tuesday, April 1, from 1 until 7 p.m. Those who have previously donated blood and received a card dated March 25, should disregard that notice. This is a mistake, and the correct date is April 1.

Students Compete

Recent competitions have included several area students as participants and winners. They include the electrical technology students who were recognized by the BOE for their contribution to the wiring of the new offices on the PHS campus: Zachary Bachtel, Wesley Lantz, Craig Rembold, Joshua Lantz, and Thomas Kimble.

Preston High FBLA will be sending several of its members to national competition in Charleston. Of the seven who will be going, Tyler Sigley placed first in Networking Concepts; Jared Sigley placed in Network Design; Ryan Feather placed first in Computer Concepts; and Josh Lantz was second in Business Calculations. Megan Robinette placed fifth in Word Processing, but will not be among those making the trip.

Youth Art Month also produced some local winners. William Dixon and Matthew Snyder, both sixth graders from Aurora, will have their art displayed along with other county winners. Skylar Freeman, PHS junior, is entered in a Tamarack Best of West Virginia Youth Art Month three-dimensional exhibition for which an awards reception is set for April 6 in Beckley.

Two Aurora Elementary students were second-place winners in the Young Writers competition for which an awards evening was March 12. Caitlin Norwish, a fourth grader, had a poetry entry, and Katelyn Harsh entered prose in the fifth-sixth grade category.

Personal Mention

The relatives here of Kathleen Harsh Ford, 87, who died March 16 at Akron, Ohio, went this week to the Newcomer-Fraley Funeral Home for visitation and for services on Friday. Mrs. Ford was born Aug. 27, 1918, at Aurora, a daughter of the late Henry E. and Mary Ann (Pifer) Harsh. She was the last surviving member of the 15 children. She is survived by four sons, Fred, David, Kenneth, and Lawrence Ford, and three daughters, Phyllis and Charlene Ford, and Donna Jones. Attending her services and/or visitation were Dan and Linda Liston, Jean Starr, Eldean Poling, Dale and Wilda Harsh, and Mary Jane and Lorain Hanline.

Mrs. Starr remained in Ohio for a visit with her daughter, and Mrs. Poling also planned a week's visit, but stayed just overnight as she was called home when her husband, Claud Poling, fell at their home and was taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of a fractured leg. He plans to return this week to their home on Stemple Ridge.

Eileen Rembold of Pittsburgh was a weekend visitor here with Mary, Shawn, and Craig Rembold, and with David and Wilma Mae Teets.

Lois Adams was released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital Saturday, but returned there by ambulance on Sunday, where she remains a patient. John and Jeanette Adams of Reedsville are presently staying at Aurora to help with the care of his parents.

Clifton Arnold of Aurora was taken Thursday to Garrett County Memorial Hospital and later transferred to Ruby Memorial Hospital for treatment of an apparent blood infection.

Members of Maple Spring Church of the Brethren at Eglon enjoyed a belated Valentine dinner on Sunday at the church.

March 18, 2003

The Adventure Sports Center, Inc. (ASCI), is requesting an Annual Audit proposal from qualified CPA firms that have extensive experience in providing audit and tax reporting services for not-for-profit organizations.

The proposal submitted in response to this request should include your Firm's ability to provide Auditing Services to the Adventure Sports Center, Inc., specifically as outlined.

To be considered, six copies of your proposal must be submitted to Duane Yoder, Treasurer, The Adventure Sports Center, Inc., Suite 22, 685 Mosser Rd., McHenry, MD 21541, by 4:00 p.m., on Friday, April 18, 2003. The proposals must be submitted in a sealed envelope and clearly marked "ASCI Auditing Service Proposal." The Bids will then be publicly opened and read aloud at the GIEC Building in the main conference room at 4:15 p.m.

The Adventure Sports Center, Inc., will invite qualified Firms from those bidding on the contract to deliver an oral presentation to the ASCI Finance Committee.

Bid packages are available at the Adventure Sports Center, during regular business hours, beginning Thursday, March 20, 2003.

Questions regarding the contents of this Request should be directed to Duane Yoder, Treasurer, The Adventure Sports Center, Inc., at 301-334-9431.

The Adventure Sports Center, Inc., reserves the right to accept or reject any bid and to waive any irregularities in the best interest of ASCI.

Background

The Adventure Sports Center, Inc., is a non-profit organization under Section 501 (c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. It was established (in 1998) in the State of Maryland for the purpose of promoting, educating and facilitating participation in a wide range of adventure-based recreational activities and competitions creating a destination for fostering economic development and providing a model for communities to manage and capitalize on their intrinsic natural resource base while protecting its integrity. The organization bases its operations in McHenry, MD.

The Adventure Sports Center, Inc., operates on a January 1—December 31 fiscal year and draws upon three primary sources to fund its daily operations: a subsidy from Garrett County Government, Interest Income and funds received from the sale of property. The facilities are slated to open May 1, 2005. Several programs will be made available at that time including but not limited to the instruction and drop-in facility use for kayaking, canoeing, rafting, mountain biking, hiking, orienteering, rock climbing, snow shoeing, cross country skiing, high and low ropes course and fly fishing, swift water rescue training, special events and competitions.

At this time, ASCI has two full-time employees. It is anticipated that one or possibly two more individuals will be added in the organization's second fiscal year (FY 04). The organization is governed by a series of Committees and the Board of Directors. The Board of Directors seats 15 members.

As the organization is in its first official fiscal year of operation, an audit has not yet been performed. Currently, the accounting function and tax reporting is handled by the Garrett County Community Action Committee. The Committee has agreed to perform this role on a temporary basis only. Although this arrangement has served the organization well, ASCI is in the process of soliciting proposals from qualified firms to perform Accounting Services for our organization. Both the Community Action Committee and the newly selected Accounting firm will cooperate with the Auditor by providing access to their working papers for ASCI and discussing any significant issues relative to our audit and tax work.

Financial Status

As stated above, operating expenses are being subsidized by the Garrett County Government. Additional funds from Interest Income and the sale of property are also available to cover administrative costs.

ASCI currently utilizes one checking account that contains $25,000 - $50,000 at any given time. ASCI also maintains a CD containing approximately $2,000,000 in reserve funds.

The Community Action Committee writes an average of 20 checks per month on behalf of the Adventure Sports Center. The organization's semi-monthly payroll is processed by Community Action as well and the payroll is paid primarily through direct deposit.

Computer Equipment and Accounting Software

An accounting software program titled Fundware is currently used.

Timing

As stated above, ASCI utilizes a calendar year which ends December 31. We anticipate that we would be prepared for the audit to begin fieldwork in May 2003 and would expect the delivery of financial statements and management letter by June 30, 2003. Tax returns are expected to be delivered at least five days prior to their due date for review by management with no more than one extension requested.

Services Requested

The Adventure Sports Center, Inc., requests a bid from your firm for:

1) Consolidated audit of the financial statements for the year ending December 31, 2003;

2) Management letters containing comments and recommendations with respect to accounting and administrative controls and efficiency;

3) Review of ASCI tax returns;

4) Be available to answer any questions throughout the year;

5) Other work as assigned.

If you decide to submit a proposal, we will make available all records and accounts as well as all other information required for you to respond.

GOT SNOW? BUILD A FORT – Some Grantsville area residents actually enjoyed the large amount of snow the county received last month. Pictured is a two room, 12-foot-by-16-foot, 6-foot high snow fort constructed by Jessica and Maria Bender and their father Marlin. Pictured in the fort are the Bender children and their cousins, Karlyn and Ryan Yoder.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Even though Pastor Pittsnogle had a birthday, she was still there on Sunday at Emmanuel leading worship with our seminarian, Margie Lauver. Actually, Pastor Pat turned (29?) on the Ides of March. That, of course, is March 15. It was not too much of the old "Beware the Ides Of March" for Pastor Pat this year, but hopefully a good day. The congregation helped her celebrate with punch and cupcakes following the service.

All of my generation's favorite second grade teacher turns 98 today, March 20. We wish best birthday greetings to Ida Reckner on this special birthday. She also taught my father, aunts, and uncles at the old Beachy School, which was located for most of the 20th century between my house and the home of my late grandparents, Orval and Emma Glotfelty, and most recently the house of my dear departed Pappy Dale.

I still have not seen any robins. Even without that, it seems like spring really will come soon. The groundhog predicted about March 21. Seeing the sunshine and feeling warm temperatures sure helps one hold out hope. It's warm enough to have changed the perfect wave-cornice shaped drift in between the house and the barn into a crowd of monsters and gargoyles. But on the bright side, I now don't have to risk my life to get to my car, and it looks like my lane will stay clear now even if we do get another snow. I haven't seen any of those bushes with the tiny white flowers in bloom yet.

I've noticed that many birds have returned already. I saw a big flock of turkey vultures (or as I used to call them, buzzards) above Negro Mountain. Every morning I am awakened not by the sound of howling wind, but the sound of birds singing. I've not seen the Glades so filled with water as they are this week. I'm waiting for the hot weather to load the clouds with some of this moisture to spread the wealth of life-giving water to other parts.

It looks to me that cross-country skiing is done in Bittinger. A planned skiing trip last weekend by Teresa Hannibal and her brood, along with my Caitlin, which was to happen around the airport, was canceled due to unfit snow. This is the season when Cindy and I delighted to gallop on our ponies in the temporary lake in the field. We loved to inspect the changing shape of the "crick" also.

Ruth DiPaolo spent this week in Virginia visiting her friend Betty. I am sure it is probably "real spring" down there, with flowers like daffodils sprouted and bushes blooming. My poor daffodil bed is still buried under about three feet of snow.

The Buckel clan back behind Peat Bog started their small-scale maple sugaring this week. Denny tapped about 200 maple trees in his woods. According to Sheila, it is hard going this year in carrying the buckets of sap on top or through the deep snow. After one good day last week, the sap slowed down. She expects some bears will come out from their winter dens soon, as they usually emerge when the sap starts to rise, but so far she hasn't seen any. I think they want the skunk cabbages to be well grown.

Next week's mid-week Lenten service will be on March 24 at St. John's over on Meadow Mountain at 7 p.m. It seems to me that the founders of our local area's Lutheran congregations were a little unorganized, or didn't talk to each other enough. There are two St. John's Lutheran churches all within horseback riding distance of each other. There is St. John's from our parish on 495 across Meadow Mountain. There is also one in the Cove, and if I remember correctly, also one in Accident. I guess St. John was pretty popular when these congregations formed. St. Luke and St. Matthew must not have been quite as popular during that time.

St. Patrick's Day is not a big holiday around here. I know that I never bothered to wear the green when growing up. I have a few close friends who do have close ties to the Emerald Isle. Joe Howe's family is from Ireland and his wife Andrea is also of Irish descent. They went as far as wearing green shamrocks on Monday. And Eileen Schlosnagle's mother still lives on the coast of Ireland.

A couple of former students of mine (Nate and Jennifer Blackley) brightened my day on Sunday with the news that they are expecting their first child sometime in late September or early October — another unofficial grandchild for me. Anyway, this joined the news that the son of my former student and good friend Crystal and new husband Denny Merrill became a father on Sunday morning. Maybe that makes me almost a step-great-grandmother, or something like that. Maybe only an unofficial step-great-aunt since Crystal is more like a sister to me than a past student.

My children just rolled in from school. Caitlin was carrying her prize-winning science project, which was about what kind of bread grows molds faster. She won honorable mention in the microbiology class for ninth graders at Northern High School. Robbie and Blakely Glotfelty, Matthew Bass, and Landon Southerly also were winners in their divisions.

Family members gathering for a dinner Sunday to celebrate Ida Reckner's 98th birthday were: William and Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa.; Jeff, Sheli, Ashlin, and Abbie Gray, Hanover; Julius and Karmen Carey, Chris, Janelle, and Allison Carey, and Anthony and Amanda Carey, all of near Frostburg; Dwaine, Lisa, Adam, and Amanda Platter, Smithsburg; Tim Glotfelty, Charee Reckner, and Michaele Puliti, McHenry; Karl, Cathy, Kara, and Marc DeBoeser, Allentown, Pa.; and Jim and Donna Glotfelty. Tom Glotfelty telephoned his grandmother Ida while between flights with Spirit Airlines Sunday afternoon, and also talked with other family members. Linda Oester and family presented Ida with a decorated birthday cake, and the other family members contributed to the dinner as well. Flowers were placed on a table in the rear of St. John's Lutheran Church, Meadow Mountain, in recognition of Ida's many years of service to the church, and to the community and her family, by her daughter Donna and husband Jim.

Callers at the Jim Glotfelty home during the week were Allen and Virginia Brenneman, and Stanley Miller. The Dwaine Platter family were weekend guests.

CareFirst Reform Bill Co-Sponsored By Senator Hafer

Senator John Hafer (R-D1) is a co-sponsor of two bills in the Maryland General Assembly which involve CareFirst BlueCross BlueShield.

Co-sponsored by 47 senators, SB 772 proposes reform of CareFirst's board of directors. Additionally, SB 773, sponsored by the Senate Finance Committee, of which Hafer is a member, also proposes an investigative committee to study whether CareFirst violated any laws and if new legislation is necessary.

"CareFirst needs to be thoroughly investigated for their inappropriate behavior and changes must be implemented in regard to reforming their board selection, compensation, and duties," said Hafer.

This legislation is in response to Insurance Commissioner Steven Larsen's rejection of CareFirst's attempt to become a for-profit organization and sell itself to WellPoint Health Networks, explained Hafer.

Larsen disapproved the sale on March 5, citing the failure of the CareFirst board to acknowledge the non-profit mission of the organization and the mulit-million dollar bonus package the executives would have received had the conversion and sale taken place, according to the Senator.

"It is our intention, with this legislative package, to return CareFirst to its original mission as a 'not for profit' insurer dedicated to serving the people of Maryland," said Hafer.

Following public hearings, both bills were approved this week, with amendments, by the Senate Finance Committee.

THERE'S ALWAYS SOMETHING TO DO for those who work on the highways and byways of Garrett County, especially when winter hits as hard as it has this year. Shown at work with the shovel is Roger Thomas, and the truck driver is Bill Ashby. The roads crews continue to be out in force, now cleaning up the piles of anti-skid that was so helpful some five weeks ago when the mountaintop was buried in several feet of snow. Remnants of that storm remain in the form of a few small piles of dirty ice, melting quickly today in the 50+ degrees. The weather is to remain warm and spring-like until Sunday, when some snow flurries are expected. They won't amount to much, though. Spring is here, flurries or not, and summer won't be far behind. GC Fair Board Not Proceeding With Trade Hall

The Garrett County Fair Board notified the commissioners last week that it will not proceed with the exhibit/trade hall. The proposed 25,000 square-foot multi-purpose facility would have been constructed on the board's fairgrounds in McHenry.

"The [Fair] Board feels that it is in our best interest to continue to operate our facilities as we have, and to devote our time and efforts in managing the ongoing activities," wrote president Roger Glotfelty Jr. in a letter to the commissioners.

"We are proud of our fair, which has been a huge part of Garrett County for the past 47 years," he continued, "and we look forward to it continuing for many years to come."

Glotfelty also thanked the commissioners for their help in assisting the board and the fair throughout the years. "We hope that we can count on you to continue this effort in the years ahead," he concluded.

Based upon an earlier agreement with the Fair Board, the commissioners recently secured $2,500,000 in federal, state, and local funding to build the structure.

"The county commissioners remain committed to the construction of the exhibit hall and have formed a site search committee to evaluate potential sites in the U.S. 219 corridor between Accident and Oakland," said the commissioners in a press release.

Consistent with earlier plans, the county plans to provide for the operation, maintenance, scheduling, and programming of the exhibit hall/trade show facility. The commissioners said they envision it as a place to hold trade shows, entertainment events, craft shows, auctions, large meetings/conventions, banquets, competitive events, and more.

"We respect the decision of the Fair Board," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg, chairman of the board of commissioners. "However, I feel an opportunity for a viable partnership has been lost. We will proceed with the project. Our intent continues to provide a multi-purpose facility for the county."

Last week, the House Appropriations Committee held a hearing for a bill requesting $300,000 in a state bond for the exhibit hall. The Senate Budget and Taation Committee has yet to hear the bill.

The legislation was also introduced last year in the General Assembly. But, in an effort to balance the state budget, the bill was put on hold, with the stipulation that it would be approved this year, said Del. George Edwards.

Legislators, however, have vowed once again not to pass any local bonds bills

Officials Give Monthly Reports; Price Of Milk At All-Time Low

The Garrett County commissioners held their monthly staff meeting this week, hearing reports from 14 departments and agencies. Among the issues discussed this month were milk prices, the new Grantsville Library, Rt. 40 School renovations, the Vacation Guide, economic development, smallpox vaccines, and funding cuts to youth employment programs.

Extension Office

"Milk prices are at an all-time low, putting a hardship on dairy farmers," said director Jim Simms, county Extension Office. The current gross price for Class I milk in this area is $12.49 per one hundred pounds, he said.

When the $1.20 hauling and $.15 advertising and marketing fees are subtracted, the farmer only gets $11.14 per hundred. According to a study conducted in Garrett and Washington counties involving 33 dairy farms, Simms said, the price of milk needs to be at least $14.19 over a six-year period for a farm just to break even.

"Milk prices haven't been this low since the early '80s," he said. Add to that 500 to 600 percent inflation, and dairy farmers are hurting and looking at other agricultural businesses.

Many local farmers attended the Agriculture and Rural Enterprise Conference recently held at Garrett College. Sponsored by Garrett-Preston Rural Development Corporation, the event showcased 16 different alternative agricultural enterprises, such as hydroponics, special beef markets, selling native plants, ag tourism, and home business operations.

"The conference was very successful," said Simms. His office will look at the enterprises that interested the farmers and provide them with technical and marketing assistance to help them get started.

For more information on alternative agricultural enterprises, persons may call the Extension Office at 301-334-6960.

Ruth Enlow Library

Ruth Enlow Library director Cathy Ashby reported that a ground-breaking ceremony would be held for the new Grantsville branch on Friday, April 11, at 4 p.m.

A notice for bids for shelving and furniture will be advertised soon. "Local vendors are encouraged to bid," Ashby said. A 2 percent local preference is

DCL Buffer Strip Clean-Up May Require Permit

As many Deep Creek Lake property owners plan their spring buffer strip maintenance, the Department of Natural Resources has issued a reminder that it is against regulations to trim or cut trees without first securing a permit from the lake management office.

The ice storm of October 2002 and the severe winter weather since that time has caused extensive damage to the trees along the forest buffer around the lake. As a result, property owners may want to clean up, trim, prune, or plant vegetation along the lakeshore.

The lake management office must grant permission before this work may be done on the state buffer strip or on property governed by the conservation easement. Persons must also remove all debris associated with permitted cutting. The burning of trash or debris on the buffer strip is prohibited.

Special permit applications and the guidelines for special permits can be obtained on the Internet at www.dnr.state.md.us/publiclands/western/deepcreeklake.html or by calling the office at 301-387-4111.

Because of its inability to inspect the buffer strip when the snow was deep, the lake management staff has an extensive backlog of properties to inspect and permits to issue. Efforts will be made to be timely in response to requests for permits this spring, an office spokesperson said. Patience will be appreciated, he added.

Citizens interested in learning more about the lake permit process are welcome to attend any of the information sessions offered during the summer season. Dates for these sessions are set for the last Saturday of each month from May to August (May 31, June 28, July 26, and Aug. 30).

The sessions are held at the Deep Creek Lake Discovery Center from 10 a.m. to noon. For further information, persons may contact the management office at the number noted above.

Korean War Era Recollections Sought For Oral History Project

The experiences of Garrett County residents who lived through the Korean War era and the tensions of the early years of the Cold War from the end of World War II to shortly after the Korean conflict are being sought for an oral history project currently under way.

Persons interested in sharing their recollections with one of the 26 Southern High School students conducting and transcribing the interviews are asked to contact project coordinator Paul Shogren prior to Monday, April 7, at 301-334-1386 or via e-mail at shogren@gcnetmail.net. A meeting for all interviewers and interviewees has been slated for 10 a.m. Tuesday, April 8, in the Southern High media center.

"It's important to contact us as soon as possible, because the student volunteers must finish their interviews and type the transcriptions before the end of the school year," explained Shogren, a U.S. Marine Corps veteran of the war. "The Korean War ended 50 years ago on July 29, 1953. We'd like to permanently preserve memories of that era, and bring those who lived through it together with today's young people, so that both groups can share a moment in our nation's history and learn from it and each other. Pictures, memorabilia, and art work of this era will be welcomed for inclusion in the project."

The recollections of those individuals willing to be interviewed by the SHS student volunteers will be compiled in a book similar to the World War II history book which is for sale through the Garrett County Historical Society.

"Our team of SHS students and teachers, veterans, and citizens are working hard on this project, and we'll be adding to the 12 interviews conducted with veterans and non-veterans last year when the project began. Some of the folks and their respective organizations that are playing important roles in this effort include Patty Novak, GCHS president Bob Boal, retired Southern High teacher Doug Buckley, and American Legion historian Randall Kahl of Proctor Kildow Post 71.

The Korean War era oral history project is an outgrowth of the World War II project spearheaded by Matt Novak, which culminated in the publication of Garrett County at Home and War, An Oral History of World War II. That book is "selling quite well," said a spokesperson for the Historical Society. There are 25 to 30 copies still available at the GCHS Museum in Oakland at $33 each (plus tax), and further information can be obtained by calling the museum at 301-334-3226.

"We hope the effort begun by Matt Novak, who dedicated himself to the project, will be part of a continuing effort to document Garrett County's oral history of the Great Depression, the Vietnam War, and other important slices of American and local history," said Shogren. "We would welcome the assistance of anyone who would have time to donate to our efforts, especially those who would be interested in helping coordinate the interviewing process in the northern end of the county."

Traffic Stop Culminates In Drug Arrests

Three Troy, N.Y. residents face drug charges following a Monday night traffic stop on Interstate 68, according to Maryland State Police troopers stationed at the McHenry barrack.

The trio was stopped for speeding at approximately 8:25 p.m. on the westbound Interstate west of Keysers Ridge. Upon contacting the driver, Jason Ryan McCormack, the state trooper noted the odor of suspected burnt marijuana emanating from the vehicle. When questioned about the smell, McCormack reportedly replied, "You're probably smelling the roach in my console." A vehicle search revealed a suspected burnt marijuana cigarette in that location, as well as additional suspected marijuana there and a plastic bag containing suspected marijuana and a smoking pipe in a bag that a passenger, Lacy Maraee Turner, 18, claimed as hers. The third occupant, Louis Edward Piche III, 19, then allegedly made a statement to the effect that half of the bag belonged to him.

McCormack, Turner, and Piche were each charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, while McCormack faces additional charges of speeding and driving on a suspended license. The three were subsequently released from the Garrett County Jail on their own respective recognizance.

New Dove Center May Be Located At Old BOE Lot

The Garrett County commissioners this week voted unanimously to convey the former Board of Education lot to the Dove Center, a domestic violence and sexual assault resource agency.

The center's board wants to consolidate its administrative office and shelter into one convenient facility. Its office is currently located along Garrett Highway, south of Oakland, while the shelter is at an undisclosed location.

The transfer of the county property to the center, however, is contingent upon a change in the Oakland zoning ordinance. Currently, the town prohibits a facility like the shelter from locating in the residential area.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg, chairman of the board of commissioners, said a letter would be sent to the town explaining the county's intent to convey the property to the center and requesting that the Oakland Zoning Appeals Board grant a variance for the project.

Located along Green Street near the courthouse and sheriff's office, the old Board of Education build-

GC Chamber Launches Series Of Meetings

Garrett County Chamber of Commerce president and CEO Charlie Ross recently reported to the board of county commissioners an infusion of more than $250,000 from the business community to the local economy. "The $150,000 of private funds that will build the Garrett Recreational Trails project is raised from business and individual donations and will create a comprehensive network of trails, second only to the Appalachian Trail for a project of this kind," Ross said.

Next week will begin a series of meetings staged by Terrell Ellis of the Community Legacy project, featuring a one-half hour segment for the Chamber's "Something to Crow About" (STCA) effort. "Another $100,000 in reserve funds from the chamber's coffers, the result of prudent management, has gone to training for jobholders, a makeover of the Web site and additional promotional materials for the county," Ross said. "STCA will help us to find where we should be directing resources. Terrell's project is strategic planning for tomorrow; ours is delivering CHAMBER TAKES TO THE ROAD – A shiny red truck sporting this banner, shown above, reminds residents that the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce wants to know what each community would like to "crow" about. "Anyone who sees this truck in the neighborhood should come over and say hello," said Charlie Ross, chamber president, adding that the first five people in each community to approach the truck will receive prizes. In the photo, Regina Sweitzer, chamber office manager, helps Ross hold the banner that will be mounted on the truck. See story for more details about the "Something to Crow About" efforts of the chamber.

Deputies Make Drunk Driving Weekend Arrests

Garrett County sheriff's deputies made numerous drunk driving arrests this past weekend.

Deputies responded to Sang Run Road around midnight on Sunday in reference to a suspicious vehicle stuck in a creek. They determined that a 2001 Ford truck attempted to drive off the road and cross a creek when the vehicle "bottomed out."

Richard Michael Weibley, 32, and Derrick Ashley Elseth, 33, both of Edgewater, both denied they were driving the vehicle, police said. Weibley confessed to being the driver then, and both failed field sobriety tests, police said.

Weibley was charged with driving under the influence (DUI), driving while impaired (DWI), driving revoked, giving a police officer a false name, drinking an alcoholic beverage in the passenger compartment of a vehicle, reckless driving, and negligent driving.

Elseth, who deputies observed sitting in the driver's seat then they arrived, was charged with DUI, DWI, driving suspended and revoked, drinking an alcoholic beverage in the passenger compartment of the vehicle, negligent driving, and reckless driving.

Both were released from the Garrett County Detention Center after posting $2,500 bond, police said.

In another incident, deputies stopped a 1997 Chevy truck on Maryland Highway at Ollie North Road afrter it was observed traveling into the oncoming traffic lane and then onto the shoulder of the road numerous times, police said.

Roger Lathan, 33, Keedysville, failed sobriety tests, and was charged with DUI, DWI, DUI per se, and failure to drive right of center.

At 2 a.m. on Sunday, Edward Holloway, Oakland, was arrested and charged with DUI, DWI, failure to give required signal of intention to turn, and speed greater than reasonable.

Also arrested over the weekend was Roy Cheshire Jr. of Oakland. He was charged with DWI and exceeding the maximum speed after a traffic stop was made along Route 560 near Chisolm Road.

Table Is Set For House Of Hope's Second Annual Victorian Tea Party

The second annual Victorian Tea Party benefiting the House of Hope will be held on Sunday, April 27, from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Sitzmark Room at Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake.

The event will feature a variety of teas and other soft beverages, light fare, piano music by Martin Heise, and other events. Organizers are also planning a silent auction featuring antiques and tea-related items donated by local sponsors. The auction, titled "Tea-Bay," will allow participants to bid on an item or purchase the item outright at the "Buy It Now" price.

"We want this event to hold something for everybody," said fund-raising chairperson Carol Smith. "This will be a great opportunity to get together with friends or to share an afternoon with someone you love."

Buffalo Trio Jailed For CDS Possession

Three Buffalo, N.Y., residents were arrested Friday afternoon on drug charges after being stopped for a traffic violation on Interstate 68 near Friendsville, according to the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police.

Jailed after the 1:10 p.m. traffic stop were Kyle Lee Ward, 19; James Bo Hunt, 23; and Michael M. Anderson, 20. When a trooper initially approached their vehicle, he noted the odor of suspected burnt marijuana and initiated a search that revealed two large bags containing 19 suspected marijuana cigars.

Each suspect was charged with possession with intent to distribute marijuana, possession of marijuana and possession of controlled dangerous paraphernalia, while Ward faces an additional charge for speeding. The men were released from the Garrett County Jail after each posted a $5,000 bond as set by a District Court commissioner.

Jobless Rates Take Usual Rise During January

Unemployment rose in Maryland from 4.0 percent in December to 4.5 percent in January, holding the state's unemployment rate two full percentage points lower than the national level of 6.5 percent. Additionally, unemployment in Maryland during January is noticeably improved from last year's level of 4.9 percent.

"Even during a time when it's normal for unemployment to rise, Maryland continues its stable economic trend with unemployment levels dropping over the year and remaining significantly lower than the nation's unemployment rate," said James D. Fielder Jr., Ph. D., secretary of Labor, Licensing, and Regulation (DLLR). "We are optimistic that more job growth and hiring will take place as we move toward more favorable weather and seasonal hiring in spring."

Unemployment increases are typical in January, a month that is highly sensitive to seasonal conditions. This year's upturn is, however, modest when compared to the economic expansionary years of the late '90s when over-the-month increases as high as 1.3 percentage points were reported.

In Garrett County the jobless rate rose from 8.0 percent in December to 8.8 percent in January, but was well below the 11.1 percent for January of last year.

The number of jobs reported by Maryland employers was fewer in January, declining by about 2.5 percent over the month. Declines were, for the most part, seasonal in nature. Reductions in retail trade, which includes general merchandise/apparel stores, and in leisure and hospitality where food services and drinking places are found, outpaced all others as employers began to downsize following the holiday season. Cutbacks also occurred in construction as activities slowed with colder temperatures; in business support services as fewer employers turned to temporary help services following the holidays and; in education where staffing levels were temporarily diminished due to semester break activity.

Two Arrested After Caught Drag Racing

Two Swanton men were arrested Tuesday night for allegedly racing their Ford Mustangs at speeds in excess of 100 mph along Maryland Highway near Broadford Road, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Ray Hefner, 25, operating a 1986 Mustang, and Bradley Roderick, 18, who was operating a 1997 Mustang, were stopped by deputies near Turkey Neck Road after one of the vehicles lost control and skidded to a stop, police said.

Both were charged with reckless driving, negligent driving, driving a vehicle in a race or speed contest on a public highway, exceeding the maximum speed, driving at a speed greater than reasonable.

In other police news, Alden Randolf Perando Sr., 60, Oakland, was arrested after deputies observed his 1973 Chevy van speeding and crossing the center and white lines on Hutton Road near Gank Road Tuesday evening.

After failing sobriety tests, he was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI), driving while impaired by alcohol (DWI), driving on a suspended Maryland license, failure to drive right of center, consuming an alcoholic beverage in the passenger compartment of the vehicle on the highway, and exceeding the speed limit.

Also charged with drunk driving charges by deputies was Toni Callis, 34, Loch Lynn.

Deputies stopped his 2001 Dodge passenger car after it was observed crossing the center line several times on Sand Flat Road near Spring Glade Road.

Callis was charged with DUI, DUI per se, DWI, and failure to drive right of center.

In other police news, John Ervin Paugh, 53, Swanton, was charged with DUI, DWI, failure to drive right of center, and driving on a revoked license, after his vehicle was stopped on Maryland Highway near King Reis Lane.

Paugh failed field sobriety tests, and was later released on his personal recognizance after seeing a District Court commissioner.

Renewed Focus On Safety Belts Slated By Police

Maryland State Police troopers stationed at the McHenry barrack will be participating in the Maryland Chiefs' Challenge, slated to take place from the beginning of April through the end of May. The joint effort with other law enforcement agencies throughout the state is directed at increasing seatbelt and safety seat usage. The program will also be educating automobile drivers and occupants of the benefits of using occupant restraints.

"The Maryland Chiefs' Challenge will focus on enforcement of Maryland's primary enforcement safety belt and child safety seat laws," explained McHenry barrack commander Lt. Randy Resh. "The program is designed to reduce the loss of life and injuries, as well as the health care cost associated with motor vehicle collisions.

"Troopers of the McHenry barrack will utilize various types of patrols in order to enforce the occupant restraint laws of Maryland. Troopers will be paying close attention to drivers traveling in Garrett County to ensure that seatbelts and child safety seats are being utilized. Those drivers found to be in violation of occupant restraint laws will be stopped and issued a citation for failure to comply with those laws."

Under Maryland law, the operator of a motor vehicle must be restrained by a seatbelt at all times while the vehicle is in motion. All front seat passengers of a motor vehicle must also be restrained by a seatbelt. In addition, all persons under the age of 16, no matter what their seating position in the vehicle, must be restrained by a seatbelt. Failure to comply could result in a fine of $25.

Also under Maryland law, a child under the age of 4 regardless of the child's weight, or who weighs 40 pounds or less regardless of age, must be restrained by a child safety seat. Failure to comply could result in a fine of $48.

"The Maryland State Police of the McHenry barrack have committed extensive resources in an effort to provide a safe highway and travel environment for use by the citizens. The barrack asks the public's help in this effort by utilizing seatbelts and child-safety seats each and every time, and exercising cautious and courteous driving habits," Resh stated.

"Please remember that you can prevent a tragedy within your family and to loved ones by simply buckling your seatbelt and securing your child in a safety seat."

The Maryland Chiefs' Challenge is a joint effort of the Maryland Chiefs of Police Association, the Maryland Committee for Safety Belt Use, and the Maryland Highway Safety Office.

Outdoor Writers To Tour Garrett Adventure Sites

Editors and writers from national outdoor magazines have been invited to a familiarization tour of Garrett County and the surrounding area Wednesday through Friday, April 9-11. The three-day tour is being sponsored by Garrett College and the Adventure Sports Institute as a marketing effort for the Adventure Sports academic program, according to GC Enrollment Development director Crystal Roberson.

The event will begin Wednesday evening with a dinner and overview presentation of the Adventure Sports program, presented by Garrett College president Dr. Steve Herman, ASI director Mike Logsdon, and Eric Urfer from the Adventure Sports Center International. On Thursday the writers will have the option to attend a full-day field course in either Intro to Mountain Biking (AVS 136) or Rafting and River Guiding (AVS 165). That evening they will meet with a cross-section of adventure sports students. On Friday morning they will have the choice of attending an introductory session in sea kayaking with Steve Storck or a climbing outing at Cooper's Rock with Terry Peterson, who will be assisted by students from the Adventure Education Guide Service.

Writers from at least three national magazines are expected to attend the event. Roberson has received affirmative response from Paddler, Weekend Adventure, and Blue Ridge Outdoors.

Senate Panel Redrafts House Budget; Taxes Corporate Income, Tobacco

by Dan Genz
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — A Senate committee overhauled the House's budget Tuesday, substituting slots, a tobacco tax hike, and a one-year corporate income tax surcharge for the lower chamber's raid on the Rainy Day Fund, and business taxes and fees. The new plan also restores $40 million in House cuts from higher education, but fails to leave any surplus funds to cover expected revenue shortages, as the House did.

Two controversial provisions — mandatory slot machine revenues and a 5-cent property tax hike — may keep the budget from getting through even its own chamber.

"I'm worried about the votes," said Senate president Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert. "We have 11 senators who pledged not to support taxes, and the Republicans don't want this.... I have to get 24 votes out of 29. That is not going to be easy."

Each revenue measure will have to be split from the package and approved separately in order to pass, Miller said, but he'll wait until he has the votes for the entire budget before bringing the plan to the whole Senate later this week.

Once the Senate approves its budget, a committee of House and Senate leaders will smooth the differences and present a final budget to both their bodies for approval, then pass it on to Gov. Robert Ehrlich for authorization.

"Don't make any plans for April 8 or April 9 or ...," said Sen. Patrick J. Hogan, D-Montgomery, warning the budget sets up a stalemate with House leaders already committed to fighting slots.

Even with slot machine revenue — expected to raise about $15 million next year — the budget didn't go far enough to please many lawmakers fearing billions in deficits over the next three years.

"I don't think we made the necessary provisions for our financial situation," said Sen. Edward Kasemeyer, D-Howard.

The Senate Budget and Taxation Committee did follow much of the House's plan, including a proposal to tax health maintenance organization plan premiums at the same 2 percent rate other insurance agencies are charged.

Lowering the House-approved corporate filing fees and throwing out the loopholes required the committee to pass new revenue plans many consider unwise, including eliminating the commercial Heritage Tax Credit, tripling the tax on non-cigarette tobacco products, and hiking the corporate income tax 10 percent for one year.

Many legislators said they believe the budget is insufficient and that greater tax hikes are necessary, especially if the state wants to avoid ruining a promise to greatly increase funding to public schools.

"It's closer to a 0 percent chance of funding [the mandated education increase]," Miller said, than the possibility of delaying or limiting the state's contribution to education.

"We're going to need something else," said Budget and Taxation Committee chairman Ulysses Currie, D-Prince George's.

Other revenue ideas — adding a penny to the state's 5-cent sales tax and increasing income taxes on residents who make more than $200,000 a year — will be held in committee, Currie said. The move will provide other options to fund education reforms if they're needed, he said.

He praised the committee's effort to restore $100 million to the Rainy Day Fund and $40 million to the higher education budget.

Everyone has something they don't like in the budget, Miller said, pointing to his own disapproval of the $16 million from higher levies on cigars, chewing tobacco, and other non-cigarette tobacco products.

It didn't take long for word of the tobacco levy to waft down Maryland Avenue from the State House to the Smoke Shop, where manager Chris Simmons harped against the measure that would triple the tax from 15 percent to 45 percent.

"It would basically put small tobacco out of business across the state," he said.

Earlier in the day, House Republicans gathered on Lawyer's Mall to express their hatred of proposed corporate tax hikes, saying the fee increases and tax on HMOs showed "absolute disregard," for the importance of business during a recession, said Minority Leader Al Redmer Jr., R-Baltimore County.

After hearing of the Republicans' protest, Miller said, "There's a different breed of cat in Annapolis this year."

Key Revenue Elements Of House, Senate Budget Plans

ANNAPOLIS — The Senate has begun retooling the House budget plan it received last week. The two chambers have very different ideas of how to arrive at a balanced budget. Here's a look at some of the revenue components of each plan.

HOUSE

- •Increase annual corporate filing fees from flat $100 per business to $400 for small business and up to $20,000 for companies with more than 500 employees; expected to raise $125 million.
- •Use $106 million in Rainy Day Funds.
- •Close various business tax loopholes worth $50 million.
- •Streamline tax practices for $35 million.
- •Produce $80 million surplus to cover expected shortages.
- •Impose 2 percent tax on premiums for HMO insurance plans for $45 million.
- •No revenue from slot machines.
- •No new levies on tobacco products, no cuts from Heritage Tax Credit.

SENATE

- •Include $15 million for slot machine application fees.
- •Increase corporate filing fees from flat $100 annual payment per business to flat $250 fee to raise $47.1 million.
- •Use $6 million in Rainy Day Funds.
- •Eliminate Heritage Tax Credit for commercial purposes to earn $22 million.
- •Streamline tax practices and withholding measures to earn $50 million.
- •No surplus.
- •Increase tobacco tax on non-cigarette products from 15 percent to 45 percent to raise $16.2 million.
- •Impose 2 percent tax on premiums for HMO insurance plans for 47.6 million.

Dove Center

ing at the proposed site was recently torn down and the lot cleared.

Gregg, who is also the co-chair of the Dove Center's board of directors, said the new facility would be constructed to blend in with the community. There would also be plenty of parking in the lot so staff would not have to park along the streets, and there would be no noise problem for the community.

He added that the center is required by law to document all safety infractions. Only one minor incident has been documented since the shelter opened in 1997. A husband attempted to contact his wife who was at the shelter. The authorities were notified, and the man left without incident, Gregg said.

Last month, the center helped 21 new and 62 continuing victims of domestic violence and 2 new and 6 previous rape victims, according to its executive director, Heather Hanline. The facility also shelters homeless women and their children and counsels domestic violence perpetrators.

In FY 2002, the shelter helped nearly 500 persons and housed 84 adults and children for a total of 872 bed nights, according to the center's annual report.

In Loving Memory of
Martha Jane Shaffer

When I come to the end of the road,
And the sun has set for me;
I want no rites in a gloom filled room,
Why cry for a soul set free?
Miss me a little–but not too long,
And not with your head bowed low;
Remember the love that was once shared,
Miss me–but then let me go.
For there is a journey we all must take,
And each must go alone.
It's all a part of the Master's plan,
A step on the road to home.
When you are lonely and sick of heart,
Go to the Friend we know;
and bury your sorrows in doing good deeds,
Miss me–but let me go.

"Lights, Camera, Action!"...

The consumption of just about anything in excess tends to be unhealthy, including electronic news coverage of the war in Iraq. One may, if desired, watch such coverage literally 24 hours a day on one or several major news networks. Doing so, though, simply cannot be good for one's continued mental and emotional well-being.

There are some of us in the news business who object to the television media's handling of war coverage. Technology, competition, and the never ending pursuit of the almighty ratings (which translates to dollars) serve as the primary impetus for this deluge. It's reality TV at its "finest," and regular readers of this column know how we feel about reality TV.

Each news network is working at a feverish pace trying to out-do its competitors, each having its own group of military experts, usually retired generals, who are anxious to give us their analyses. (Which one is right?) The continual quest for one-upmanship leads to presumptuous, premature, and often erroneous reports. "There is an unconfirmed report that..." "One source claims that..." "It is believed that... but so far that is unconfirmed." It amounts to little more than the reporting of rumors, which is a dangerous thing, and certainly in violation of the rules of good journalism. It is done, though, in an attempt to scoop the competitor.

The reporting also becomes so incredibly repetitive. When there is nothing else to report, instead of returning to the "regularly scheduled programming," the newscasters simply stay on the air and tell us the same thing over and over and over. Surely an hourly update of, say, five or 10 minutes would be adequate unless there is a major development to report. We do recognize, though, that some parents who have children in the midst of battle may get a degree of comfort out of the constant, detailed coverage.

Finally (and we've noted this concern before, as well), doesn't it seem like there is a lot of information about specific U.S. military maneuvers and plans being shared with the entire world, and particularly with the Iraqi military? There is no doubt in our minds that Saddam Hussein, if he is still alive, and his generals are tuned in to CNN non-stop to help them monitor the actions of our armed forces. We can only hope that our own military leaders are utilizing this reality as an opportunity to mislead the enemy with some false information.

"Lights...camera...action! It's wartime! Brought to you by..." There's just something wrong with this picture.

STICKER SHOCK AND AWE

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Many thanks to Mary Sincell McEwen for her thoughtful and heartfelt commentary on the war in Iraq. Her lack of certainty reflects the feelings of many of us. I can only add my hope that all our military people behave well and come through this experience unharmed, and that the innocent civilians of Iraq, women and children in particular, do not suffer gravely. If you, too, are in doubt about the wisdom of this war and yet strongly support our troops, put a candle in your window for peace and to guide them safely home, and pray for a rapid conclusion to this horror.

Marilyn Moors
Friendsville

To the Editor:

I would like to express my concern for the county roads that are not kept treated with salt in the winter. The cinders do not take care of the roads like salt does. On some of the county roads you never see a plow truck but maybe once a day. The county roads that have businesses on them are in worse shape than other roads that are maintained by the county. When the state maintained the roads you never had this problem. It's a shame when private driveways are in better shape than county maintained roads. It is about time the county starts taking care of the roads better. You always hear how hard the county works, but seeing their roads in the winter doesn't prove anything.

What is it going to take for the county to start taking better care of our roads? Will it be a bus load of kids on their way to school that has slid off the road and maybe a kid gets hurt? Will it be a tractor trailer that has slid off the road and over an embankment? I think the county should pay a lot more attention to the roads before someone is seriously hurt.

Lori Bender

To the Editor:

Thank you, Mary Sincell McEwen, for speaking so eloquently for me and millions of other patriotic Americans who are heartsick over the terrible war "we" are so successfully conducting against the people of Iraq. The military management is calling it "Operation Iraqi Freedom," which sounds ever so much nobler than "Operation Get Saddam" – the real objective, as I understand it.

Yes, Mary like you, I am a patriotic American. I believe that we are not required to sign on to whatever the president (whoever he or she may be, now or in the future) espouses in order to demonstrate our patriotism.

I have read, listened to, and watched as much as most people have concerning the endless preparation to go to war again (Will we never evolve to the point where we can discover a better way to solve political differences?), and I am scared to death of all the horrifying possibilities that may follow in the time after the killing stops. America's new image as an arrogant runaway superpower (who needs allies ?); the new tactic of preemption, whereby if a threat appears to be developing, the United States declares a massive war before the threat develops fully. (Who gets to decide how serious the threat is, and at what point we begin the "shock and awe" procedure?)

Already, as of Sunday, 3/23, we have discovered that, in spite of all of the meticulous planning by our military leaders, the unexpected happens; war cannot be choreographed. The Turks mobilize against the Kurds on the perimeter of our northern front; one of our soldiers makes a wrong turn in the desert darkness, and runs into enemy troops hungry for a kill; a Muslim American soldier turns on his own buddies; and there are deaths and woundings far from the battle lines. The terrible price escalates – our brave young soldiers die in the dust, far away from home.

On our local radio talk show, the host says, "You can't say you support our troops if you don't support their mission." Wrong! I support our troops with constant passionate prayers for the safety of every one of them. They all look like my children, and my grandchildren, and I weep for every one of them who is lost. It hurts me personally. I admire their skill, their courage, and their confidence. But I want them all to come home, now!

You and I, Mary, are not alone. All over this country and the world there millions of people who feel as we do, and can only agonize as the death toll and the debt rises daily, while the future looks so ominous. War is exciting! Peace is boring, and so hard to wage. I pray we will have people who are brilliant, imaginative, diplomatic, and respectful of the customs and beliefs of other countries who can create a lasting peace when this terrible show is over. I pray to God that will be soon.

To the Editor:

I applaud the recent letters by Eileen Schlosnagle and Mary Sincell McEwen. They say everything that I feel I my heart. There are, however, a few matters that I wish to address more specifically.

I wish to take issue with the notion that anti-war protesters are somehow anti-American. That sentiment could not be more false. There is nothing more uniquely patriotic in the USA than exercising the First Constitutional Amendment of free speech. It is the obligation of every patriotic American to make their voice heard, regardless of their stance on the war; and once every four years in November does not even come close to good enough anymore. I am a patriot. I love my country. But this campaign in Iraq is suffocating the proud history of the United Sates of America.

It is disheartening, to say the least, to hear the slogans "Anti-War" and "Support Our Troops" misused in opposition of one another. Let us ask ourselves — how can we best support our troops? Answer: by not putting them in a war! I protest this war because I care deeply about the young, brave lives we are offering up for no clear Good.

I wrote to President Bush today urging him to support our troops. Support them by bringing them home! Support them by sparing them the atrocities that our brothers, fathers, and uncles went through in Vietnam.

I am speaking out, and you should too. If you agree with me and other supporters of peace, if you disagree with me and want someone to know about it, go to www.senate.gov, www.house.gov or write Mr. Bush at president@whitehouse.com and tell someone who can make a difference today.

To the Editor:

Another Deep Creek treasure is gone from the lake, where friends have gathered since its opening and the people, both local and weekenders, have become family. My understanding is that the doors of the Boardwalk are closed and it will be torn down for yet another million dollar house, or should I say mini-hotel, as someone wrote in the letters to the editor a few weeks back.

I have been coming to the lake since the early '80s for the charm and the beauty of the area. I remember reading about the love of the area from local resident Ed King and how much he loved being here. I can remember the swan boat and how the head was moveable to enable it to get under the Glendale Bridge. Our pontoon was also too high to get under the bridge until late August when the water levels were lowered. There were also places to stop along the lake for a bite to eat or for a refreshing cocktail while boating. I know, I know, the only thing constant is change, but what has transpired here at Deep Creek is disheartening.

Over the last couple of years we have seen the closing of McClive's, Red Run, the Harbor, and now the Boardwalk. There are only two or three places left on the lake that a boater can stop and have a meal. There is only one explanation in my mind, and that is that the local real estate people are intent on making a quick buck. Homes are being built and the owners never even come to the lake. They are constantly being rented out, and as always, even this will come to an end. At present there are more houses than dock slips, as can be seen by the charge of upwards of a thousand dollars a season. I cannot blame the local owners for selling. The owners or renters pay such a high price to visit the lake they do not come out and support the local establishments. So when they get a reasonable offer, they really have no choice but to sell.

Since the Vacation Guide became available this past couple of weeks, I obtained a copy; it resembles one of the local real estate guides. It now lists on the second page eight homes that have their own swimming pool. On page 13 it states that there are six restaurants that you can get to by boat, but by my count there are only three, and maybe four if the Point reopens. The bait house has been sold and no one knows what will become of it. I don't know of anyone at the lake who will allow you to dock a boat at a public dock for three hours to watch a movie. Dock space is too valuable!

The people who helped make Deep Creek a nice, quaint, weekend retreat are being forced out, and I, for one, don't know how long I will be able to hold on. Deep Creek was a great place, but between the commissioners, zoning, etc., the place has all of a sudden started catering to big money. There is not enough sewage, public water, garbage collection, etc., to support all this new construction. God forbid one of the homes on top of the mountain catches on fire. There are no fire hydrants for a water supply to put it out.

The last thing I want to mention is the bear population. With all the construction their natural habitat has been taken away. They cannot find food and they will occasionally stray on people's property. They are cute, but eventually someone is going to get hurt. Some of the laws protecting the bears must be changed to protect the people and allow for control of the bear population since they are being forced from their homes.

I apologize for rambling on, but these are a few of the items I had to get off my chest.

Yours truly,
Jack Rhode

To the Editor:

It appears Clipper Windpower "windmills" are moving forward. Therefore, I can only embrace their reality and hope the economic benefit to Garrett County is as substantial as the numerous claims that Clipper has made.

As I watched this process unfold, I became astonished about how little thought our county political leadership gave to it, relying solely upon home-cooked information provided by the developer. Although the commissioners and Delegate George Edwards were kind enough to meet with me, as well as others who have similar concerns, none made any comments about their efforts to investigate the wind towers beforehand or, indeed, at any time. If this project has been sanctioned locally without proper checks and balances by those who are "in charge," I can only imagine how other decisions must be made here. It appears Clipper has been invited into our county with open arms, without guarantees it will stick to any of the claims it has made or suffer any sanctions if it does not.

The public should support responsibly sited windpower that ensures the safety of migrating birds, protects heritage views, and regards the reasonable concerns of property owners in the area. However, citizens should be aware of their size (400 feet tall and taller), scale (many dozens clustered on prominent ridge tops), and character (blinking lights by day and night). Such concerns will be especially important in light of the projected number of these windscrapers – more than a thousand – which Maryland's proposed Renewable Energy Portfolio bill may unleash around the state, unconstrained by mandated siting protocols. The potential for havoc unless these siting concerns are properly addressed is enormous. If the Renewable Energy proposal becomes law, the state will be required very soon to generate 7.5 percent of its electricity essentially via windpower, which translates into 1,700 windturbines all at the scale proposed by Clipper. Given that Garrett County has no comprehensive land use protections in place and given that the county commissioners regularly violate provisions of the county's Economic Development Plan, I anticipate that many, perhaps most, of these windmills will seek to be located here.

I realize that ultimately decisions must be made and that there will always be people aligned on all sides of an issue. However, I also believe that not much thought has been put into the wind project here; when it is up and running, the truth will shine through. As I have come to see this issue, I feel the project is more about tax credits for a few developers and very little about the generation of electricity. Moreover, I intend to demand a transparent annual accounting of how much Clipper actually contributes to the county budget.

Of all the places I have been, nothing matches the existing natural beauty of Garrett County. This beauty is itself an economic resource, and tampering with it puts that resource at considerable risk. Our political leadership should ensure Garrett County will endure as a living symbol of how people can thrive in harmony with the natural world, preserving the views symbolic of wilderness and creating jobs which honor our rural, agricultural, small-town character. We should not become a monument to industrial-scale growth, giving the green light to a few carpetbaggers to make a quick buck, trashing our mountains in the process.

We should not follow the path of people in other areas who realized all too late that things should have been done differently. We can establish a precedent. We can be a county that considers its beauty and growth on all levels, and insist that our leaders honor both.

Thank you,

in an effort to counteract some of the state's budget woes. "The state's broke this year," said Edwards. The governor, however, has set aside $15 million for local "pork" projects, he added.

But the Senate wants to use the funds for school construction, while the House wants to give it to local projects like the exhibit hall. "The House feels these are just as important to communities as the construction," Edwards said at the mid-legislative session earlier this month. "We're still at loggerheads about what to do about bond bills."

services to the community today. Both are needed."

Support and advocacy for small businesses and marketing and promotion of each community's top priorities is the goal of the STCA project, Ross explained. "It can be an event, an activity – planned or existing – or an attraction. Imagine each of us exploring a new corner of Garrett County because of something learned about from this project; or imagine visitors fanned out all over the county looking for family-owned businesses promoted through the chamber," Ross said.

The second series of the Community Legacy meetings, made possible with funding received by the Garrett County Community Action Committee, is slated for 6 until 8 p.m. at the following locations: the Grantsville Senior Center, Monday, March 31; the Loch Lynn Community Center, Tuesday, April 1; and the Friendsville Community Center, Thursday, April 3. the public is invited.

given to county businesses. The fixtures will be used in the new library.

The director also reported that the library may be forming a partnership with the Baltimore Zoo. Should it prove successful, the Zoo Mobile will travel to the library and feature live animals and theatrical presentations.

Board of Education

The Route 40 School renovation project should be finished by August, reported Dr. Wendell Teets, Garrett County superintendent of schools. The project is "behind somewhat," he said, because of the weather, but with workers putting in extra hours it should be back on schedule soon.

Chamber of Commerce

Chamber of Commerce president Charlie Ross reported that the 2003-2004 Vacation Guides were out. The chamber ordered 225,000 of the guides, as well as 100,000 brochures, he said. In past years, the chamber has ran out of Vacation Guides months before the new issues are released. As a result, the chamber has had to request funding from the county to print additional guides.

To prevent that from happening again this year, the chamber decided to print the less expensive brochures, in addition to the guides. The brochures will be distributed in lieu of the more expensive guides at certain venues.

The new president stressed that the chamber would not be making any requests to the commissioners for supplemental funding this year. With the additional brochures, Ross said the shortage problem had been "sufficiently handled."

Commissioner David Beard commented that the new guides were "very well done, very informative."

The newly formed restaurant association will also release a 40-page booklet within the next six to eight weeks, reported Ross. The association currently has 22 members. A $50 membership fee includes a full-page ad in the association's publication, he added.

Economic Development

Jim Hinebaugh, director of Garrett County Economic Development, reported a "highlight" and a "lowlight" in recent developments. The highlight was that director Jim Waters, USDA Rural Development, would be meeting with county officials to discuss infrastructure projects.

In particular, Phenix Technologies in the Central Industrial Park was getting ready to move into its new facility. Once that happens, Hinebaugh said, the county

West Virginia

News from Preston, Tucker, Grant and Mineral Counties.

Potomac State Integrated Into West Va. Univ.

Potomac State College, Keyser, was fully integrated as a division of West Virginia University last week after Governor Bob Wise signed a higher education reform bill, HB 2224. Potomac State College president Mary Rittling said that she and WVU president David C. Hardesty Jr., the WVU board of governors, and the Potomac State board of advisors support the move to strengthen the 100-year-old ties between the two institutions.

"While there were numerous changes proposed in this bill regarding higher education, such as a series of flexibility measures, tuition increases of up to 9.5 percent if certain conditions are made and a number of other reforms, the bill addresses Potomac State College becoming a fully integrated division of West Virginia University by July 2005," Rittling said. "Operational, auxiliary services and academic offerings were also addressed in this bill."

Hardesty welcomed Potomac State into WVU's statewide network of campuses. "We look forward to working with Potomac State College to ensure its integration as a division of WVU is a smooth process. And, in this extraordinary time of economic uncertainty, we appreciate that this legislation gives us the flexibility and tools we need to deal with the budget reductions we are facing—yet maintain providing a quality education," stated the WVU president.

During my time of illness and recovery from mid-January until today, my days have been made easier through the help and kindness of so many people. I would like to thank them all for being there. AGENT CODY BANKS

Rated PG - Running Time: 1:42 - Released 3/14/03

Agent Cody Banks is the latest fluffy and thoroughly inconsequential star vehicle for up-and-coming teenage actor Frankie Muniz, whose part in the phenomenally intelligent TV sitcom Malcolm In The Middle has launched him into the stratosphere of adolescent idolism and afforded him the opportunity to enhance good movies like My Dog Skip and at least partially redeem stupid ones like Big Fat Liar. Muniz's success at playing a clever, genial, self-effacing everykid (the only part he's ever asked to play) is not so much attributable to any amazing acting technique as to his ability to always look interested in what he's doing, no matter how questionable the material. Perhaps someday he'll receive a truly challenging part in a real movie, but for now he's back doing what he does best, delivering affable smiles and good-natured dialogue as an intelligent teenager surrounded by moronic adults. Helmed by Norwegian director Harald Zwart (One Night At McCool's), Agent Cody Banks is an innocuous teen James Bond movie along the lines of Spy Kids, but not nearly as inventive or inspired. It presents passable entertainment for most anyone under 12—but that's about it.

The script for this movie is credited to a pair of two-person writing teams: Ashley Miller and Zack Stentz (their feature film debut after collaborating on several episodes of TV's Andromeda) and Scott Alexander and Larry Karaszewski, whose previous projects have included such diverse films as Ed Wood, Screwed, Man On The Moon, and Problem Child. In their story, Cody Banks (Muniz) is a regular kid from Seattle who is forced to conceal from his rather dim-witted parents (Daniel Roebuck, Cynthia Stevenson) and kid brother (Connor Widdows) that he is actually an agent working for the CIA. After a fun action scene where he saves a baby who's trapped in a runaway car, Cody gets his assignment. It seems that an evil mastermind named Brinkman (Ian McShane) has acquired a new form of technology called nanobots, which are tiny robots designed by good-natured inventor Dr. Connors (Martin Donovan) to devour certain materials, like oil spilled in the ocean, while leaving other things intact. Of course, Connors intends them only for good purposes, but being a well-trained evil mastermind, Brinkman wants to use them to take over the world. In order for the CIA to stop him, Cody must become friends with Dr. Connors's teenage daughter Natalie (Hilary Duff), an extremely popular hottie who doesn't know he exists. The trouble is, while Cody is cool, intelligent, and fully capable of operating all of his Bond-style gadgets, he has a little problem concerning girls—he can't talk to them without stuttering.

This movie is just another example of the disposable kids' fare you see popping up at about this time every year. I mentioned Spy Kids, but this one really reminds me more of Clockstoppers, which was released last March. Though it has a few action-packed sequences featuring Muniz (or his stunt double) zooming around on jet-powered snowboards and one-man flying machines, it's not big enough to contend as a summer blockbuster, so it's relegated to a spring release when it will have the least competition and therefore the best chance of breaking even. Wow, what an admirable ambition. Muniz's charm is certainly among the film's strong points, but neither he nor grown-up hottie Angie Harmon (Law And Order), who plays his CIA "handler," can overcome the script's inadequacies enough to make it interesting to anyone old enough to have secondary sex characteristics. ★★½

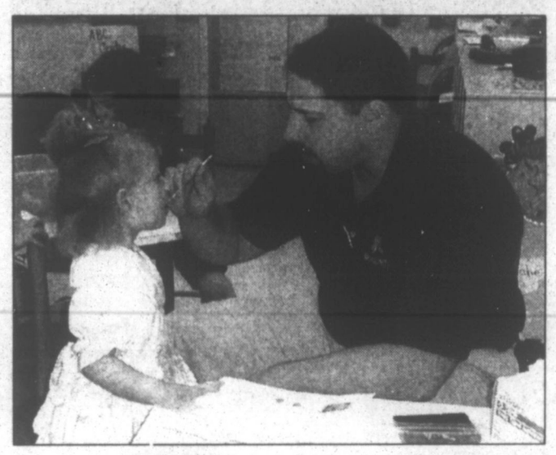
CRELLIN HEAD START STUDENTS GET FINGERPRINTED – Woodmen of the World insurance representative Walter Augustine donated his time and film to provide each Crellin Head Start child with his or her own identification card. These cards include each child's thumbprint and picture. A DNA swab was also taken from the inside cheek of each child, which will be sealed in plastic and kept with the card. Should the child become missing, the information included in the identification card could provide valuable information to help recover or rescue the child. Augustine was trained and certified to complete the DNA identification process through Woodmen of the World. "Having a child of his own enrolled in Head Start," said a Head Start spokesperson, "Mr. Augustine is well aware of the importance and safety concerns involving young children. The children enjoyed the presentation and were very eager and interested in completing their own cards to take home." For more information on this program, persons may call Augustine at 301-746-5220. For information on Community Action's Head Start/Early Head Start program, persons may call 301-334-9431 or 1-888-877-8403. Pictured above is Augustine getting a thumbprint from Samuel, while Bobby-Jo, Destiny, and Kacy look on. Augustine is also shown below collecting a DNA sample from Bobby-Jo.



4-H Club News

TRAILBLAZERS
By Candace Blamble, reporter

The March meeting of the Trailblazers 4-H Club was held at Yough Glades Elementary School on March 20. Jenna Rush reminded members that camp registrations are due May 1.

The Quality Assurance Program will be held on April 17 and June 20.

Club volunteers were sought for the fair booth. Those volunteering were Emily Cosner, Sarah Cosner, Jennifer Cosner, Emily Green, and Cody Ferguson.

We were reminded of the public speaking on March 29 and the beef workshop on March 23.

The achievement night is on April 5 at Northern High School. Emily Cosner volunteered to bring the door prize. Other members were reminded that each family is to bring finger-food.

Our service project was to send cards to the people overseas who are fighting for our country. Chad Harvey became a new member of the Trailblazers.

Carey Rush, Nick Rush, Travis Sines, and Candace Blamble read their prepared speeches. Emily Cosner, Jennifer Cosner, Melinda Smith, Emily Green, and Sarah Cosner read their radio spots. Cody Ferguson, Jenna Rush, Erica Green, Chad Harvey, Brad Lilly, and Holly Blamble read their extemporaneous writings.

The next meeting of the Trailblazers 4-H Club will be on April 17 at Yough Glades Elementary School.

Braddock Road History Group Slates Meeting

The Braddock Road Committee of the Garrett County Historical Society will meet at 10 a.m. this Saturday, March 29, at the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police. The group of local volunteers is dedicated to the preservation and maintenance of the old Braddock Road, which traverses northern Garrett County along the approximate route of today's Route 40.

"It's especially timely for us to focus on the history of the Braddock Road because the bicentennial of the Lewis and Clark Expedition is being marked with observances across the nation from 2003 to 2006," committee coordinator Paul Shogren said. "When Meriwether Lewis traveled on horseback from Harper's Ferry to Pittsburgh in the early stages of his journey, he passed through Garrett County on the old Braddock Road. We'd like to get people together to discuss, among other matters, how we can best mark that passage locally."

For further information, persons may call Shogren at 301-334-1386, or contact him via e-mail at shogren@gcnetmail.net.

Postal Service Offers Tips For Mail To Military

The U.S. Postal Service is offering tips to persons who wish to send mail to those individuals currently serving in the military overseas.

APO ZIP codes for units in Kuwait and nearby countries are available only to family members and close friends of deployed soldiers, officials said, because of anthrax and other terrorist threats. Programs that allowed the general public to send mail addressed to "Any Service Member" were canceled more than a year ago. While these programs were popular with the public during Desert Storm and other operations, officials said security concerns and transportation constraints with military mail led to their cancellation.

Family members and friends who send regular mail need to use the soldier's full name (without rank), unit, and APO address.

Letters to Kuwait will normally take seven to 10 days, according to the Military Postal Service Agency. Priority parcels will normally take 10 to 15 days, and Surface Air Mail, or SAM packages, will normally take about 24 days, according to MPSA officials.

Each country has customs regulations that apply to all incoming mail. These may include prohibitions on certain kinds of food or entertainment products.

Host countries mostly prohibit the entry of alcoholic beverages of any kind, narcotics, munitions, pork and pork by-products, pornography, and material contrary to the Islamic religion.

Letter mail is not being opened unless it appears unusually bulky, officials said, in which case it may be examined to see if it contains contraband, such as drugs. Parcel mail is being examined on a spot-check basis to determine conformity with host country customs regulations and for terrorist-type mailing.

Some military units may have additional restrictions imposed by the theater commander, such as size and weight restrictions, to ensure logistics support can handle the mail without delays. The maximum length of a package in any category is 48 inches.

Military ZIP code restrictions may change as military units move to different locations, officials said.

All applicable restrictions for about 3,000 overseas military ZIP codes are entered into the U.S. Postal Service computer terminals and published in the Postal Bulletin. The general public may review details of all applicable restrictions by going to any branch post office or the USPS public web page located at www.usps.com.

To access the file, the customer should click on the USPS web site, and then type "Postal Bulletin" in the search engine. This will bring up the page for the bulletins.

The customer should then click on Bulletin. On this screen the customer will see a link: VIEW ISSUES. On that link, persons should click "current issue" and this will open the PDF file, which will include the Postal Bulletin, which includes military ZIP code information.

Other tips the postal service advises to help ensure timely delivery of mail are as follows:

- Wrap packages securely.
- Liquid-filled containers tend to break.
- Powdered items can open during transit causing concern over what kind of substance it is. Substances should be packed in sealed plastic bags.
- Contraband items will be confiscated. These include alcohol, tobacco, and pornography.
- Label packages properly and list all contents. There is a space on the customs form to declare if a gift or other merchandise is enclosed.
- When family members send items Space Available Mail, the packages might take longer.
- Families should not put the country or the base camp's city on the mail, officials said, because it might get sent through the host country's mail system.

Most areas of the Middle East have been authorized "Free Mail" for personal correspondence being sent from the service member overseas back to the U.S. However, family members sending mail to service members in a Free Mail zone must still include postage. Soldiers are briefed on the Free Mail procedures, officials said.

DOING WHAT THEY CAN – Third-graders at Dennett Road Elementary School are extending their help to soldiers in the United States military now engaged in war. The youngsters are taking the time to write letters one day each week to the soldiers listed on this page. Their teachers, Mary Lynne Bosley (pictured) and Pat Foley, give the children some basic ideas of what to write, and then the students add their own thoughts and artwork. The teachers assist them in addressing the notes, which are then mailed by the children's parents. Chris Comfort, whose son Albert is currently serving in Kuwait, said the soldiers love to hear from their friends here at home, and the families of the soldiers appreciate the kids' and teachers' kind gesture. Shown below are letter-writers Erin Layton (in front) and Kylie Beckman. Photos by John McEwen.

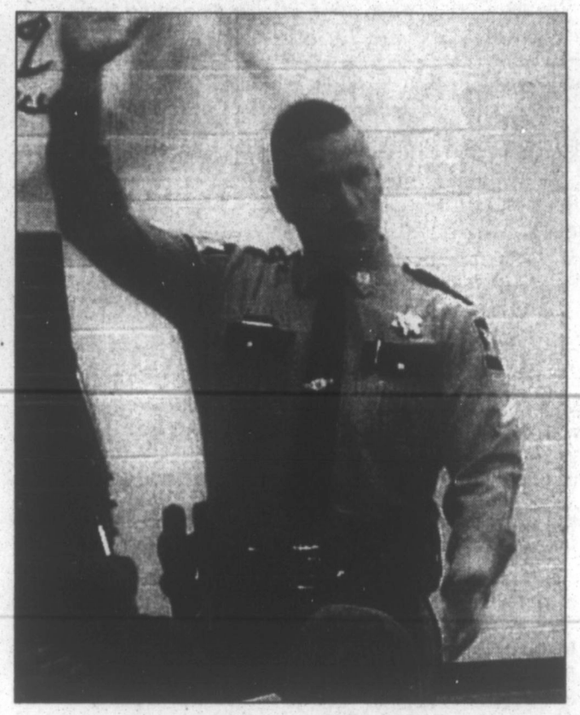
FIFTH GRADERS ENJOY DAY OF "FUN, EDUCATION" – Members of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, Division of Parole and Probation, and the Maryland State Police recently chaperoned a day of "fun and education" for fifth grade students from Grantsville Elementary School. The students, teachers, and chaperones enjoyed two hours at the snow tubing park at the Wisp Resort, before returning to the school for lunch and an educational talk by Cpl. Rob Corley on the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse. Cpl. Corley, pictured below, also addressed the issues of peer pressure and how to deal with low self-esteem. The students' parents were also invited to attend the educational program. The day's events were sponsored by the Grantsville Hot Spots Community Mobilization Grant.



Goodwill Notes Partnership With Wisp Mtn. Resort

The Wisp Ski Resort and Wisp Mountain Resort Hotel and Conference Center, operated by Richfield Hospitality, has been commended by Horizon Goodwill for its successful efforts in providing "real-world" work experience for people with disabilities and other needs, according to Miranda Fitzwater, job developer for Horizon Goodwill.

"All three of our program participants who were employed by the Wisp—Marcia Bodner, Wayne Fike, and Dorothy Burke—have gained valuable paid work experience to improve their career success there, or take to other potential employers," Fitzwater said. "The Wisp Ski Resort and Hotel, the respective supervisors Mr. Chang, Veronica Flanigan, and Linda Friend, along with Garrett College, deserve recognition for their receptiveness to such a partnership."

Fitzwater organized the partnership with Marty McGreal and Jerry Geisler of the ski resort, and Scott Hall of the hotel. Wisp human resources director Kelly Johnson finalized the plans to utilize seasonal positions, which she described as "the perfect opportunity for Horizon Goodwill participants to gain real work experience."

Participants were recruited from Maryland Division of Rehabilitation Services and Garrett County Department of Social Services. Goodwill staff conducted screenings, intakes, and attended the Wisp job fair in early November to offer assistance to the agency's participants. "Hiring was left explicitly to the discretion of Wisp personnel," stated Fitzwater. "Even those not hired gained experience from the application and interviewing processes."

A one-week job readiness class was conducted by Horizon Goodwill instructor Monica Deters at Garrett College prior to the new hires beginning their work experience. The class reinforced generic work skills, taught the importance of work ethics, and prepared the students for entering the world of work. Additional services were also made available to employers and employees through the work of Horizon Goodwill retention specialists Heather Raley and Stephanie Ritchie, both of whom worked closely with participants and supervisors, monitoring and addressing immediately any needs for assistance.

"Not all referrals were hired, and not all participants completed the training," observed Fitzwater. "Marcia Bodner, Wayne Fike, and Dorothy Burke demonstrated a strong desire to succeed. These people took the program seriously and received well-deserved certificates of completion. While Wayne and Dorothy have been hired permanently, Marcia has decided she would like to relocate and will not continue on in the food and beverage department at the McHenry House.

"We can't say enough about the efforts of the Wisp Ski Resort, the Wisp Mountain Resort Hotel and Conference Center, and Garrett College," Fitzwater commented. "All have demonstrated a strong sense of community and desire to give 'a hand up, not a hand out,' helping Horizon Goodwill accomplish its mission of helping people overcome barriers to employment and become independent, tax-paying members of their communities."

"A HAND UP, NOT A HAND OUT," is how the efforts of the Wisp were described by Horizon Goodwill job developer Miranda Fitzwater as she recognized a partnership that resulted in "real world" work experience for people with disabilities and other needs over the past winter. The Wisp Ski Resort, the Wisp Mountain Resort Hotel and Conference Center, and Garrett College each played a part in the partnership. Shown above, from the left, are Goodwill job retention specialist Stephanie Ritchie as she presents a certificate to Wisp Hotel housekeeper Dorothy Burke, and Goodwill job retention specialist Heather Raley as she presents a certificate to Wisp custodian Wayne Fike, recognizing the successful completion of the job training program by the two employees. A third Wisp worker, food and beverage server Marcia Bodner, was not available for the photo. See story.

Rebuilding Rams To Open Campaign Today At Keyser

If ever there were a rebuilding year in the highly successful Southern High School boys' varsity baseball team, this just might be the year for Coach Jim Bosley.

The Rams are scheduled to open their season at Keyser this afternoon.

The experienced, 21-1, area and Western Maryland Interscholastic League championship team of last year was decimated by the 2002 graduation, as Bosley lost nine of his starting 11 players, and coupled with injuries already sustained this year, the current squad has been reduced to just 11 players.

Among the first-team All-Area players lost to graduation are pitching ace Bryson Meyers, now playing for Potomac State College; pitcher Tobi Stoner, playing at Garrett College; Brad Palmer, now playing football at West Virginia University; Chad Panther, and Ricky Reams, plus second-team All-Area picks J.J. Bolyard and Joel Helbig.

If this weren't bad enough, Bosley lost for the season his own son Cory, who sustained a broken knee cap during basketball season; gone for six weeks is Travis Friend, who had an emergency appendectomy; and out for four weeks is Rodney Baker with a broken wrist.

"Obviously, we have a small, young, and inexperienced team this year, but we won't use this as an excuse," Coach Bosley said. "We also have some pluses in that we do have some seniors who got some valuable experience last season and over the summer, and we also had an undefeated junior varsity team. We just have to stay healthy."

The tentative starting line-up will have either Dennis Tressler or Curt Taylor at first base, Scott Wildesen at second, A.J. Bender at shortstop, Jay Tressler at third, Billy Reams in the catching spot, and in the outfield, Chad Everd, Jason Weeks, Nathan Fitzwater, and/or Corey Burrell.

Heading the pitching staff will be Chris Smith, a transfer from Frankfort, with Billy Reams, Corey Burrell, Scott Wildesen, Dennis Tressler, and A.J. Bender all potentially seeing time on the mound.

"Pitching and defense should be the strength of this team," Bosley said. "Hitting remains a question, but mainly because we've only been able to be on the field three times so far this year, so that's understandable."

As to what to expect from opponents this season, Bosley said that all of the WMIL teams will be competitive, with Allegany probably being the biggest league challenge, while Keyser looms as the strongest non-league opponent.

Under Bosley's leadership, the Rams have won eight area championships in the past 16 years and have been the WMIL champs five out of the six seasons that they were a member of the league. They also have several regional titles and state semi-final and final appearances.

Bosley is being assisted by Danny Holler, Steve Weaver, and Charlie Plauger. Coaching the junior varsity are Tom Bosley, Greg Tressler, and Barry Louden.

The game today at Keyser is the first of seven straight road games for the Rams, who will travel to Hampshire on Saturday, play at Allegany next Tuesday, and be at Preston next Wednesday.

YOUNG RAM TEAM OPENING TODAY — The Southern High School varsity baseball team will open its 2003 campaign this afternoon against a talented Keyser team on the Golden Tornados' diamond. Coach Jim Bosley, the area's most successful active high school baseball coach, faces the challenge of replacing nine starters lost to graduation from last season's 21-1 team. Team members include, pictured from left above, kneeling: Corey Burrell, A.J. Bender, Rodney Baker, Scott Wildesen, Jay Tressler, Chad Everd, and Travis Friend; and standing: Chris Smith, Jason Weeks, Dennis Tressler, Nathan Fitzwater, Billy Reams, Cory Bosley, and Curt Taylor.

Huskies Fall To Westmar; Split Mapletown Twinbill

Spring has finally sprung, and on the Northern end of the county no surer proof can be found than the kick-off of the baseball campaign for the Northern High School Huskies. The NHS squad holds a 1-3 record after the first week of play, which opened with a 9-0 loss at Westmar Friday, followed the next day by a doubleheader split at Mapletown. Saturday's twinbill went down to the final inning in both outings, the first a 6-5 Husky loss, and the capper a 5-4 Northern victory.

The Husky bats were held to five hits—one a double by Torrey Poholsky—in Lonaconing Friday, as Wildcat hurlers Trent Morris and Dave Cavey combined for seven strikeouts. Morris, just a sophomore, whiffed six Huskies on his way to picking up the win, and Cavey came to the mound in the seventh for the save.

Things were fairly quiet until the third inning, when Westmar exploded for five runs. The 'Cats followed that flurry with two runs apiece over the next two successive innings. Dan Vagnetti, who was tagged with the loss, started for NHS. He was lifted in the fourth inning when Danny Ellis was summoned to the mound for relief duty.

Saturday's visit to Mapletown was filled with thrills from start to finish. The hosts got the ball rolling by taking a one-run lead in the first inning of the opener, then added a second run in the fourth before NHS knotted the score at 2-all in the sixth after Danny Ellis belted an RBI double and then scored on a passed ball.

The Maples answered with two runs in the bottom of that stanza to go up 4-2, but NHS came right back with three runs in the top of the seventh to grab a 5-4 advantage. The victory slipped through the Huskies' grasp in the bottom of the stanza, however, when Mapletown's Jay Corso whacked a two-run line drive up the middle to score the tying and winning runs.

Northern had a total of nine hits in their effort as, among others, Landon Southerly contributed a pair of singles and one RBI and Chad Carr added a pair of singles to Ellis's run-scoring double. Poholsky started for NHS, and was relieved in the sixth by Preston Sisler, who drew the loss.

The tide turned in the nightcap, as Northern rallied with three scores in the final inning to take its own one-run victory. The game-winning rally was a long time in coming, as a one-run NHS lead was quickly negated in the bottom of the opening stanza by three Maple runs. The Huskies trimmed the hosts' lead to one run by scoring once in the second, and the score remained that way until the top of the seventh.

With their backs against the wall, the Huskies began their comeback hunt when a Carr single tied the contest at 3-all. Ellis then came to the plate to uncork a two-run single that put NHS up 5-3.

Victory was far from assured, however, as the Maples loaded up the bases in the bottom half of the stanza with just one out showing. Cool-headed reliever Billy Jones, who had been called to the mound in the fifth when starter Cliff Everett tired, turned near-disaster into a triumph by pitching his way out of the jam.

Ellis finished the contest with two singles, and drove in four of his squad's five runs. Southerly added a pair of singles to NHS's nine-hit total.

The Huskies are slated to visit Fort Hill on Wednesday, and host Beall the following afternoon.

A Message from Heaven

I am not so far from you
Just a little way beyond
Past the cares and past the pain
Far past my earthly bonds

When you feel you miss me most
As years go drifting by Each memory will prove to you
That our love will never die.

For memories are but a touch
From the Father's gentle hand
To heal your pain and mend your hearts
To help you understand

That while I left you far too soon
I did not leave alone
For the Father sent His angels
To gently take me home.

Take comfort when you think of me
Keep my love alive in your heart
And with the warmth of each memory
We will never be apart.

Sadly missed and greatly loved,
Mom, Dad, Brothers and Sissy

NHS Softball Team Looking To Rebound From Opener Defeat

The Northern High School girls' varsity softball team took it on the chin in its season debut Friday, as the Huskies were held hitless by an Allegany pitching duo in a 10-0 defeat. The campaign opener for both squads was shortened to five innings by the 10-run mercy rule.

NHS gave up 11 hits as the Campers scored two runs in the second inning, five in the third, and three in the fourth. Alco's third-inning flurry was sparked by a three-run double belted by Shannae Proud.

Only two Husky base runners made it to first in the no-hitter, one via an error and the other on a walk. The Campers rotated three pitchers on the mound, starter Lacey Smith, who picked up the win, and relievers Lindsey Twigg, who came on in the third, and Heather Proud, who took over in the fifth. Despite getting tagged with the loss, Northern's Valene Snyder went the distance in a game pitching effort.

The Husky junior varsity dropped its season opener to Calvary, 16-4, on Tuesday in Cumberland. NHS fell prey to a two-hitter as only Alena Lamatus and Brandy Custer recorded one hit apiece. Northern's four runs were unearned.

NHS's varsity is slated to host Southern this afternoon and Turkeyfoot tomorrow, before hitting the road to visit Fort Hill on Wednesday.

SEASON PREVIEW

Despite the opening-game defeat, and the loss of Husky stalwarts Jolene Brenneman and Bridget Frazee to graduation, NHS head coach April Slagle thinks her team can improve markedly on last year's 8-11 mark. "Our starters are all returning varsity players, and we have five new additions to the varsity roster. We'll be trying to balance our experienced players with our inexperienced players to find just the right mix."

NHS SOFTBALL TEAM READY TO ROLL – The 2003 Northern High School varsity softball team has already taken to field for one game, and is slated to host cross-county rival Southern High tomorrow. Seated from the left are Sarah Masters, Jayme Miller, Elaine Cosner, Dani Glotfelty, Autumn Kitchen, Amanda Knox, and Lindsay Wilhelm. Standing are Tiffany Swiger, Lyndsi Butler, Amanda Frantz, Valene Snyder, Trish Beitzel, Brandi Perez, and Brandy Custer.

The probable starting line-up listed by the coach is Valene Snyder on the mound, Amanda Frantz at catcher, Sarah Masters at first base, Brandi Perez at second, Jayme Miller at shortshop, and Autumn Kitchen at third. Rounding out the outfield, from left to right, will be Dani Glotfelty, Lyndsi Butler, and Tiffany Swiger. Slagle said that Frantz, Butler, Masters, Miller, and Snyder will be counted on to provide leadership on the field.

"We're strong in the infield, as those girls have good, strong throwing arms, and we have an excellent rapport between our pitcher and catcher," stated Slagle. "It will be a challenge to bring the new varsity players into the mix, because we didn't have a junior varsity team last year and they'll be learning on the go; however, I think that three of our talented sophomores—Masters, Miller, and Glotfelty—have the potential to become great team leaders in the future.

"There's some very tough competition out there, especially with Fort Hill, Allegany, and Southern in our league," Slagle observed. "We're going to have work as a 'whole team' to get the job done."

The SHS coach ticked off a starting line-up that he said was anchored by top returning players Amber Bernard at shortstop, Melissa Flanagan in center field, Samantha Skeweris in left, and Rachel Friend, who will spend time at first base and on the mound. Rounding out the starters' roster is Brandi Arnett at second base, Sharon Harvey at third base, Becca Flanagan at first base, Jess Sharon in the outfield, and Kayla Nazelrod behind the plate. Mound duties will be divided between Friend, Julia Bosley, Ashley Metcalfe, and Sarah Mullenax.

"We may be lacking experience, but we are well-rounded in our abilities. That should enable us to make positive plays in many situations. This group of girls shows excellence and an unquenched desire to win. We're confident with our depth, because every player is capable of making an impact.

"We're aiming to play each game with passion, and let the cards fall where they may," concluded Pavelko.

Rams Fall Prey To Sentinel Two-Hitter In Season Debut

The Southern High School varsity softball squad stumbled out of the box in its season opener Monday, as Fort Hill blanked the Rams with a two-hit, 16-0 runaway shutout win in Cumberland. The loss was the Rams' first WMIL defeat after 32 straight league wins.

Sentinel hurler Becky Vance gave up just a pair of SHS singles as her squad cruised to its second win of the year on the heels of FH's 17-0 debut thrashing of Westmar Friday. Vance got more than enough offense with a nine-run first inning, which her team followed by scoring five runs in the second and two runs in the third. The 10-run mercy rule was invoked after Southern's fifth-inning turn at the plate.

Despite the scoring flurry, Fort Hill managed to get only six hits off the Southern pitching staff. SHS starter Julia Bosley was lifted in the second inning when Ashely Metcalfe was summoned to the mound in relief, and Metcalfe worked the rest of the game. The only Rams to knock out basehits were Melissa Flanagan and Amber Bernard.

Southern will try to get on the winning track this afternoon at Northern in a 4 p.m. cross-county showdown. The Rams will round out the week's action by visiting Allegany Monday and Hampshire Wednesday.

SEASON PREVIEW

After a two-year run that netted a pair of state titles, the Rams may be in a position to realize how heavy lies the head that wears the crown. Topping the list of missing faces that have departed are field phenomenons Jennifer Bosley and Ashley Liller, and longtime Ram skipper Dave Bosley has retired from his spot on the coach's bench.

New head coach Eric Pavelko and his assistant, John Coffman, know in no uncertain terms they are facing an uphill battle—but they say their team is game to take on the challenge.

"It's going to be difficult to replace who we've lost, but we're going to make the most of what we have," Pavelko said. "We want to play each game with passion and let the cards fall where they may. Each opponent we face poses a challenge, but every team is capable of winning—including ours."

BOW Classes Scheduled At 4-H Center

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources is accepting registration for three Becoming an Outdoors Woman (BOW) workshops slated for Friday through Sunday, April 4-6, at the Western Maryland 4-H Center near Bittinger. The classes will cover fly-fishing and fly-tying basics, outdoor survival, and intermediate map and compass reading.

The fly-fishing and fly-tying basics course will cover all aspects of fly-fishing for the beginner to intermediate fly-fisher. Students will learn casting, equipment, knot-tying, flies, and will discuss entomology and techniques needed to tie almost any fly. Participants must possess a valid Maryland fishing license.

The outdoor survival course will provide participants with the fundamental physical and mental skills necessary to survive in a wilderness situation. Students will take techniques learned in the classroom into the field to build fires using various methods, build several types of shelters, and assemble a personal survival kit. These skills and techniques will be tested in an overnight survival experience.

The intermediate map and compass course will begin Friday with a refresher course covering basic map and compass skills. There will be an opportunity to look at some affordable computer mapping programs and see first hand how far technology has come. On Saturday, after more advanced class work and practice, students will head outdoors to put their skills to practical use on a 1½-mile orienteering course. Participants will learn the basics of navigating with GPS units on Sunday.

While all women 18 and older are eligible to participate, these courses are designed primarily for those with minimal experience who want improve specific outdoor skills in a comfortable atmosphere. Enrollment is limited to provide smaller class sizes. Room, board, equipment, instruction, and evening entertainment are all included in the course fee.

These workshops always fill up quickly; since registration is limited, interested participants should register as soon as possible. For tuition and registration information, persons may contact Karina Blizzard at 410-260-8559 or consult the web site www.dnr.state.md.us.

Coach Cosner Optimistic About Southern Girls' Track Season

With a number of experienced athletes back on the roster this year, Southern High School girls' track and field coach Steve Cosner is anticipating a successful season for the Rams, who will open their campaign next Thursday at Keyser.

Sprinter and jumper Miriam Sincell and hurdler Jennifer Hickman were the most significant graduation losses from last season's team, which recorded a state title in the 400 relay.

The only one missing from that 400 relay quartet is Miriam Sincell, as senior Brittney Friend and juniors Robbin Gregg and Eileen Mouyard are all back.

"We have some very promising freshmen who are competing for Miriam's spot," Cosner said.

"We look to be as strong throughout the 18 events as we have for many years," he continued. "Right now we have at least three persons per event. Of course, that list will change throughout the season.

"Our two sprint relay teams look strong, as do our distance relay teams, and our hurdle team looks much improved under the leadership of Shannon Browning. Our individual running and field events should also be improved. With the addition of a new pole vault pit, I expect that event to become a strong one for our team, with Laura Preston having qualified for the state meet last year and Missy Durst just missing qualification."

Cosner will be looking to returning seniors Emily Cosner, Melissa Durst, Brittany Naylor, Chelsea Remley, Shannon Browning, and Brittney Friend for team leadership.

Cosner's biggest concerns center around the throwing events, an area in which the Rams have rarely been strong.

"Our throwers are quite young and have little experience," he said. "We hope to move some of our older team members into these events to try to help out."

The team has also been hit with injuries in recent weeks. "Even though we have a relatively large team (42), injuries are already playing a factor and could change who runs what events," he said.

Cosner expects Fort Hill and Beall to be among the area's most competitive, with Williamsport and Smithsburg expected to be strong regional foes.

"Our goals for the season are to improve our place positions over last year in all of our major meets, with the ultimate goal of winning at the regional meet and advancing as many athletes as possible to the state meet," Cosner said.

"We also look forward to hosting the WMIL (Western Maryland Interscholastic League) championships on April 22," he added.

Cosner is being assisted by Angie Teagarden.

The Rams' first four competitions will be away, and their first home meet will be the Garrett County Championships, slated for April 14.

Larger Northern Track, Field Teams To Open At Meyersdale

More student athletes at Northern High School have decided to give track and field a try this year, which is good news for Husky fans and coaches Kelly Stewart and Ron Opel.

The Huskies are scheduled to open their 2003 season next Tuesday at Meyersdale against the Red Raiders and Shade High School.

"Our team size has doubled from last year," stated Coach Stewart, who heads up the girls' program, "which means we have a lot of potential. But we have only six returning starters back from last season."

Those returning starters are Molly Wolf, Megan Zimmerman, Tiffany Yoder, Laura Costa, Britta Lais, and Ruthann Ketner. The top performer lost to graduation from last year's squad was Amanda Bowser.

"With training and gaining some experience, I believe we will be successful in the future, and I think we can also be successful this season if we work hard and get good leadership from our six returnees."

Coach Opel (boys') said that he is looking forward to the flexibility that greater numbers will afford. "I'll definitely have more options than last year," he said, "since I have more guys to work with. There are a lot of new faces, and it will take a little while for everyone to find their strongest events."

Among the top athletes on the boys' team who were lost to graduation are Ethan Devore, Josh Swandol, Mark Bergstrom, and Adam Brenneman. Top returning prospects are Michael Guard, Derrell Smith, Remington Friend, Nick Maxim, Shawn Fike, Tom Menges, and Chris Speicher.

As to the quality of the opposition this season, Opel said, "Everyone in our league (Western Maryland Interscholastic) is tough. Beall, Fort Hill, Allegany, and Southern are who we always try to gauge ourselves against.

"I'm looking forward to seeing everyone improve from now to states, and am expecting to take a good number of guys to UMBC this year," he said.

Assisting Opel is Steve Dyche.

The Huskies' first home meet will be April 8 against Berlin.

Lakers Wallop Orange County, But Then Drop Three Straight

After walloping visiting Orange County Community College of New Jersey, 20-7, on Saturday, the Garrett College Lakers fell back into the loss column, dropping three close games and seeing their record dip to 2-7.

The Lakers lost both ends of a doubleheader to host Germantown on Sunday, 4-1 and 7-6, and were edged by Potomac State yesterday afternoon, 10-8.

The Garrett bats really came alive on Saturday at the expense of Orange County, tagging a pair of visiting pitchers for 17 hits.

Meanwhile, former Southern Ram Tobi Stoner pitched the first six innings and combined with Nick Morris to record a six-hitter.

The Lakers trailed 2-0 after the top of the first, but rallied for four runs in the bottom of that inning behind a two-run homer by Rob Woods. Kim Kucke added a three-run blast in the fourth to make it 7-2, but Orange then rallied with five runs in the top of the fourth to knot the score at 7-7.

The Lakers took the lead for good with five runs in the bottom of the fourth, and then really put the game on ice with eight runs in the sixth frame. The contest was called after seven innings because of the 10-run rule.

Laker Jason Savage finished with four hits, two doubles and two singles, with three RBI and three runs scored. Jarod Bennis sent home three runs with a pair of doubles, while Kyle Moore stroked a double and two singles for one RBI and three runs scored. Stoner aided his own cause on the mound by smacking a double and a single.

Woods, who hit the first-inning round-tripper, was the only Orange player with multiple hits, as he also had a single.

In the first game against Germantown on Sunday, the Lakers took a 1-0 lead after three scoreless innings, but Germantown responded with three runs in the bottom of the fourth to take the lead for good.

Each team was held to six hits, with former Northern High standout Greg Whittemore and Brian Rockwell each recording a pair of singles.

The second game, which was also supposed to be a seven-inning contest, had to be stretched to nine because the score was tied at 6-6. A home run by Krantz in the bottom of the ninth gave Germantown the win.

With the score knotted at 2-2 after three innings, Rockwell gave the Lakers a 6-2 lead by wrapping a grand slam in the top of the fourth. But the host players responded with four runs of their own in the bottom of that frame to ultimately send the contest into extra innings.

The Lakers finished with a 14-13 edge in hits, with Jason Savage recording three singles, Kyle Moore adding a double and a solo homer in the third inning, and Giancarlo Silvestri, Whittemore, and Aaron Louden each providing two singles.

Tobi Stoner also started on the mound yesterday against Potomac State, and for one inning was against former high school teammate Bryson Meyers. That game was also tied at 8-8 after 7⅓ innings, but the Catamounts put two runs on the board in the bottom of the eighth and held on for the win.

It was a solo homer by PSC's Justin Jenkins that broke the 8-8 tie in the eighth, and Nicky Brown followed with an RBI single to add an insurance run. Brown finished with three singles, Kyle Jones recorded two doubles and a single, Jenkins had an RBI single to go with his solo shot, and Chad McKown and Anthony Gagliardo each hit a home run.

Pacing Garrett's nine-hit attack was Jarod Bennis, who hit a solo homer and two doubles. Stoner had a home run, and Kyle Moore provided a double and a single for one RBI.

It was the eighth win in 13 starts for the Catamounts.

The Lakers are scheduled to play a doubleheader this Saturday at CCBC-Essex, play a single game at Hagerstown CC on Sunday, play another single game against Potomac State in Keyser on Monday, and host the Catamounts for yet another single game next Thursday.

Irregularity: Drug and Nondrug Approaches

Intestinal irregularity or constipation refers to the difficult elimination of hard stools from the bowels. There are several causes for constipation including poor eating habits, lack of exercise, and taking certain medicines. A nondrug approach to correcting or avoiding constipation includes eating high-fiber foods such as whole grain cereals, fruits, and vegetables. Other approaches that do not involve drugs include drinking plenty of water, avoiding foods that harden stools, such as processed cheese, and exercising regularly. Drug approaches to this common problem include use of:

1. Bulk forming products such as those containing psyllium and methylcellulose.
2. Hyperosmotic laxatives such as those containing glycerin and sorbitol or stool softeners such as docusate.
3. Lubricants such as mineral oil.
4. Saline-type products which include magnesium citrate and sodium phosphate.
5. Stimulants such as aloe, phenolphthalein, and bisacodyl.

Sometimes chronic constipation can be a sign of other problems. If it lasts longer than 5 to 7 days or if rectal bleeding occurs, contact your doctor.

Mt. Top Hoops League Heads Into Playoffs

The Mt. Top Basketball League brought the curtain down on its regular season over the weekend, with some exciting basketball that matched the thrills of the NCAA's "March Madness" battles that took place the same day.

In the first thriller, Automated Packing's Greg Harvey lifted his squad to an 83-82 win over ConDoerr when he nailed a clutch three-pointer at the buzzer. The game-winning trey capped an Automated Packing comeback that had whittled a fourth-quarter, 10-point ConDoerr lead down two points when Harvey launched his salvo. The victors were helped along the way when ConDoerr lost its touch from the foul line and missed three of four free throws in the final minute. Automated Packing's Matt Davis took league-high scoring honors for the day as he bagged seven three-pointers on his way to 32 points, while teammate Chuck Evans poured in 22 points. Ronald Rhodes and Brett Coleman led ConDoerr with 20 and 17 points, respectively.

Plaza Hobby hung on for a tough 60-51 win over Midas in the second game. The lead changed hands throughout the nip-and-tuck outing, but Brett Rice hit some crucial shots down the stretch and Jason Finch canned two free throws to cap the contest. Plaza Hobby's top scorers were Brett Rice with 16 points and Ryan White with 15 points. Midas, playing without the league's leading scorer, Adam Daskivich, was paced by Joe DiSimone's 29 points while Greg Inglese added 16.

A lone bucket decided the third contest, which ended with Skiles taking a 59-57 decision over 84 Lumber. After suiting up just five players, 84 Lumber had to battle the entire game without a substitution, and was plagued by fatigue at the end. Skiles's Bryan Panther and Jimmy Yoder scored 19 and 16, respectively. 84 Lumber was paced by 16 points apiece from Travis Bohrer and Jerry Merrick.

The playoff slate for this Sunday is as follows (including final regular season records):

•Noon — #8 seed Automated Packing (6-9) vs. #9 Scott Ford (4-11), with ConDoerr keeping score.

•1 p.m. — #3 seed Plaza Hobby (9-6) vs. #6 Midas (8-7), with winner of #8 vs. #9 scoring.

•2 p.m. — #1 seed ConDoerr (13-2) vs. winner of Automated Packing vs. ConDoerr, with winner of #3 vs. #6 scoring.

•3 p.m. — #4 seed 84 Lumber (9-6) vs. #5 Smiley's (8-7), with winner of #1 vs. #8/#9 scoring.

•4 p.m. — #2 seed Skiles (10-6) vs. #7 Automotive Machine (6-9), with winner of #4 vs. #5 scoring.

GARRETT SKIERS CARVE NAMES FOR THEMSELVES — This trio of Garrett County natives—Beau Gibson, above right, and Todd Gibson and Kristen Heslop—have distinguished themselves with some fine skiing performances this winter. Beau Gibson was crowned Eastern Regional champion after pacing his University of Massachusetts men's ski team to second place overall at the U.S. Collegiate Skiing Association (USCSA) championship in Waterville Valley, N.H., where he won the giant slalom and placed third in the slalom. From there the junior captain and his teammates went on to the USCSA National Championship on the Tahoe Mountain slopes in Truckee, Calif., where he led the Minutemen to a fifth-place finish. Gibson took fourth overall in the national finals, skiing to fifth place in the giant slalom and seventh place in the slalom. Todd Gibson and Kristen Heslop took respective overall first-place honors in the men's and women's divisions at the annual Wisp Cup competition, held during the recent WinterBlast festivities in McHenry. The Gibson brothers both graduated from Southern High School, and are the sons of Jim and Kathy Gibson of the Oakland area. Heslop, an alumna of Northern High, is the daughter of Janet and Bill Cox of McHenry.

Junior Turkey Hunt Day Set For April 12

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources has set its statewide Junior Turkey Hunt for Saturday, April 12, according to DNR Secretary C. Ronald Franks. This is the third consecutive year that DNR is offering the special turkey hunt, which allows youngsters up to age 16 to hunt wild turkeys when accompanied by an unarmed adult 21 years of age or old. Over 500 youth participated each of the first two years of the event.

"We are providing youth hunters a valuable opportunity to pursue wild turkeys during a time when gobbling activity should be optimal and hunting pressure is minimal," Franks stated. "High-quality experiences such as these will encourage Maryland's youth hunters to carry the hunting tradition into the next generation."

To participate in the one-day hunt, both the youth hunter and the supervising adult must be in possession of valid hunting licenses or be exempt from Maryland hunting license requirements. Each eligible youth hunter can harvest one bearded turkey that day, which will count toward the spring season bag limit of two turkeys. Hunters are reminded to practice safe hunting techniques, and to always positively identify their target before firing their shotgun.

Youngsters who participate in the hunt can receive a Youth Hunter Turkey patch through the Maryland Chapter of the National Wild Turkey Federation. NWTF registration forms will be available at official turkey checking stations, and patches will be distributed to youth who register with the organization.

For more information concerning Maryland turkey hunting regulations and public land opportunities, persons may consult the DNR publication Hunting and Trapping in Maryland 2002-2003, issued to hunters when they purchase a hunting license. The publication is also available at all DNR service center and on the agency's web site at www.dnr.state.md.us.

Public Meeting Set To Discuss Fishing Regs.

A public meeting to discuss the Department of Natural Resources' proposed freshwater fishing regulation changes is slated for 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 15, at the Cordt Physical Education Center on the campus of Frostburg State University. The session is one of a series of public meetings DNR is hosting around the state.

"These meetings offer an opportunity for the department to discuss the state of our freshwater fisheries with the anglers who enjoy them, and to get their suggestions on proposed regulatory changes for 2004 and 2005," said Maryland DNR Secretary C. Ronald Franks.

The changes being proposed for Garrett County and other western Maryland freshwater fisheries follow below.

•Amended closure dates for put-and-take trout areas for 2005 (dates for 2004 have already been adopted):

Dates Set For 2003

Closure 0: No closure;
Closure 1: March 9-29.
Closure 2: March 23-29.
Closure 3: April 13-19.
Closure 4: April 20-26.

Adopted Dates For 2004

Closure 0: No closure;
Closure 1: March 7-27.
Closure 2: March 21-27.
Closure 3: April 11-17.
Closure 4: April 19-24.

Proposed Dates for 2005

Closure 0: No closure.
Closure 1: March 6-26.
Closure 2: March 20-26.
Closure 3: April 10-16.

•Change regulations on the Trophy Trout Fishing areas on the lower Savage River to prohibit the use of treble hooks and multiple hooks on artificial lures. Artificial lures used in the trophy areas will be restricted to a single hook with a single hook point.

•Add Cotton Cove Pond in Lion's Park Glendening Recreational Complex at Frostburg to the list of Put-and-Take Trout fishing areas.

•Establish trout regulations on the upper Savage River, affecting the main stem between Poplar Lick Run and the Merrill Bridge on Westernport Road. A portion of this area is property that previously had no public access, but has been acquired by the state and is available for additional public fishing opportunities. The following two options will be discussed:

1) Do nothing. The area would remain under statewide restrictions of two trout per day, with no stocking. The area remains in Natural Trout Water management;

2) Establish a Delayed Harvest Trout fishing area from Poplar Lick Run upstream to the Merrill Bridge at Westernport Road. This option converts the area from Natural Trout Water to a Delayed Harvest Area, which has tackle and seasonal creel limits. Tackle restrictions may include artificial lures only, artificial flies only, or the use of any fishing lure or bait, and seasonal creel limits may be amended.

•Change catfish species covered by daily and possession limits to channel catfish only.

For further information on the meeting, persons may call the Western Maryland Fisheries office at DNR's Mt. Nebo complex at 301-334-8218.

What's Happening Our Town Theatre

'The Play's The Thing'...Almost There

By Melodee Hill

This is the conclusion to a trilogy of articles detailing the evolution of a play from the playbook to fully realized production.

This is the final week of rehearsal before opening night. Every actor should know his lines without help from his script. The stage manager will follow the play with her script and only prompt the actors if they are really struggling to remember their lines. The stage manager for Unchanging Love is Dierdre Kildow, veteran actor and secretary of the board of Our Town Theatre. As stage manager, Dierdre is like the conductor of an orchestra, pulling all of the discrete pieces of the play into a coherent whole – a smoothly running symphony of theater.

During actual performances of the play, she will be connected on a headset with the technicians in the sound and light booth and the actors in the green room, and she will cue these individuals as to when to make their entrance, start a particular sound, or change the lighting.

The stage manager, along with the director and set designer, is largely responsible for gathering or making all the props (or properties), needed for the play. The props are all the extraneous pieces that make the play more real, or surreal, as the case may be. Usually, they are the objects of everyday life: dishes, a comb, a cake, a phone, whatever is called for in the play. Sometimes the actors enjoy gathering their own props, because it helps them to get more in touch with the character they are portraying, but if they cannot find a particular thing they need, they go to the stage manager for help.

When the actors need help with their costumes, they come to the costume designer. The job of a costume designer is fairly obvious and, yet, has subtleties much like lighting and set design. First, if the play takes place within a particular time period, the costumes should reflect that. Then, the director and lighting designer may want to project a particular mood or emotion through the colors or clothing styles of the cast. Social standing, character and personality, and aging up or down may also be considerations.

Finally, the actors should, as much as possible, be comfortable in their costumes. Whenever I assist with the costuming of a play, I try to help the actors develop their own costumes and let them use clothing that they are comfortable using. As a costumer, I am severely handicapped by the lack of sewing skills, so I rely on my hobby of collecting vintage clothes and my penchant for hunting and gathering in thrift shops and second-hand stores to come up with costume pieces.

Make-up also contributes to the illusion of theater, but for this particular production there is no designated make-up designer, so with guidance from the director, each actor will do his own make-up, and the stage veterans will help and coach the neophytes.

Dress rehearsal is the final rehearsal before opening night. All the elements should be in place and will be tested one final time and needed adjustments will be made, before the play is performed for a paying audience. For this play, the dress rehearsal will be a preview, with the cast and crew allowed to invite people to watch the performance. There is an old theater saying that a bad

What a Way...

New day...
New year...

Her words startled me,
over the phone,
that one year's eve.
What could be wrong?
Pain hidden behind the receiver.

Pass...Pass...
Red light...Green light...
Go, to heartache.

Walk, past the patients,
through the rain.
Walk,
out of happiness,
into darkness.

Words do hurt.
Those two words,
"It's...
Why?
What cosmic joke be this?
To take joy,
and inflict pain,
like evil,
with radiation.
Damn those years,
working to his death.
...Cancer."

The dark clouds of pain, rose over me,
spilling the salty rain,
upon my cheeks.
Lightning struck his lung,
and my heart.

Long days...
"It will be alright"
Hopes ascended,
but the great staircase, crashes down,
crashing in on us.
Buried in mud,
caused by the rain.

Unable to work.
True love revealed.
Love is evil,
when finally shown during something so, tragic,
unfair,
wrong.

A father's love,
hidden my father's whole life, ate his chest,
like my father's pain,
making his heart pound,
pound out of his chest,
beating him awake.

Grasp the love,
and find family's umbrella,
to shield away the rain.
One day, two days, three...
Each day a new day,
never wasted.

But still no answer...
Why?

THE COUNTY'S FIRST CLOGGING COMMENCEMENT took place recently in Oakland as the "Still Kickin' Cloggers" completed their seven-week basic clogging course at the Renaissance Center. Influenced by many European folk dance forms, clogging is traditionally done to the accompaniment of country and bluegrass music, although it can be done to almost any upbeat music. The dancers have steel taps on their shoes, sometimes called "jingle taps." Each tap is actually a loosely joined sandwich of two metal plates that give a unique sound on each step. Pictured are, from the left in Row One: Nancy Garlitz, Judy Simpson, Donna Lee Shogren, Madonna Pool, Eileen Schlosnagle, and Vicki Teets. Row Two: Julie Fike, Wendy Friend, Sam Deckman, Norma Rickman, Pat Mott, and Dan Donley. Row Three: Instructor Sara Donley, Joe Fike, Kathy Newman, Kay Carlson, Kathy Elswert, and Dale Sweitzer. Row Four: Paul Shogren, Jane Nolan, Polly English-Ramsay, Carole Gregg, and Alma Hebden. This group now advances to the plus and intermediate phase of clogging, while a new beginner's class will get under way at 6 p.m. on Thursday, May 1. The first night is free, and participants are asked to wear comfortable shoes. Persons interested in more information may call Donley at 301-387-0035.

CHAMBER HELPS STUDENT WITH PROJECT – Jordan Jacob, a fourth grade student at Boonsboro Elementary School, recently sent a letter to president Charlie Ross of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce. Jordan said he had chosen Garrett County as the topic for his class project and requested materials such as maps, places of interest, and historical and economic information. Ross not only provided the requested materials, he made a personal visit to the school. Boonsboro is located in Washington County. Pictured is Ross with Jordan and his fellow class mates.

dress rehearsal signifies a good opening night, but that is just one of many theater superstitions.

Before the dress rehearsal, I spoke with some of the actors about their reasons for being in a play. One of the women said that she had been in some productions in high school and then she got too busy with her career and children to do much theater. Now that her children are older, she plans to get back into acting because, she commented, "It's fun and a challenge to be involved in a project with right-brained, creative people." Another of the actors, who was familiar with the play before auditioning, said that in his previous acting experiences he portrayed mild-mannered, nice guys (and a lizard!) and that he purposely tried out for a character "who was definitely not nice" in order to stretch his skills as an actor. "Besides," he added, "It's community theater – anything can happen!" And it probably will.

I would like to thank the cast and technical crew of Unchanging Love, and especially Jane Avery and Ben Sincell for sharing their knowledge with me and for putting up with me like a little puppy that is always underfoot.

would then purchase Phenix's old site, with Rural Development funds, and market it for new tenants.

A recent lowlight, however, was the Garrett County Fair Board's recent decision not to move forward with the proposed exhibit hall, said Hinebaugh. The $2.5 million multi-purpose facility would have been located at the Garrett County Fairgrounds in McHenry.

"It's still a very good project and will bring a lot of good to the county," said Hinebaugh about the county's commitment to continue with the proposed hall.

Director Gary Mullich, General Services, and Economic Development staff are forming a committee to look for new sites for the exhibit hall. They will be looking for places along the Rt. 219 corridor.

Health Department

Phase I of the smallpox vaccination plan continues, said county health officer Rodney Glotfelty. More Health Department and Garett County Memorial Hospital volunteers will be vaccinated in early April.

The governor has also given the go-ahead for Phase II to begin, said Glotfelty. In this phase, firefighters, rescue workers, nursing home workers, and others will be vaccinated.

The health officer said Health Department staff members have already met with local fire department chiefs and handed out information to the various involved groups. General meetings will also be held for those groups.

Western Md. Consortium

Director John Wynn, Western Maryland Consortium, said because of federal funding changes, his agency was anticipating cuts to its youth programs. "We're going under the assumption for now that it will be 10 percent," he said, adding that they hoped it would not be more than that.

Last year, 72 youth participated in the Consortium's Summer Youth Program. Only 65 youth may be able to participate this summer, Wynn said.

Crews' thoughts, prayers with military units in Iraq

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Bristol, Tenn.

Throughout the pit area at Bristol Motor Speedway, TV sets on pit boxes were tuned to coverage of the war in Iraq.

With several race teams sponsored by branches of the U.S. military, teams are tuning out the normal race coverage in favor of news from their friends in the Middle East.

The Army sponsors the No. 01 Pontiac of Jerry Nadeau, the National Guard backs the No. 54 Ford of Todd Bodine, the Navy sponsors Jon Wood's entry in the Craftsman Truck Series, and the Air Force is an associate sponsor of the Wood Brothers' No. 21 Ford driven by Ricky Rudd.

Eddie Wood, co-owner of the No. 21, said that even as he helped prepare his car for the weekend racing, he also kept up with the war.

"I know all those people that everyone's watching on TV — Gen. [John] Jumper and Gen. [Richard] Myers," Wood said. "It's like it's a part of you because you know the people. They're real people.

"They've got the same interests and all that you and I do, and they've got families. I'm just proud to know them."

Bumpin', bangin' at Bristol

STEWART

The Food City 500 featured the typical hot-tempered, fender-crunching duels that entice an estimated 160,000 fans to jam into the huge grandstands around the high-banked, half-mile oval. Those who came expecting metal-to-metal encounters weren't disappointed.

"I've never been hit so much in one day," said Tony Stewart, who was involved in at least three incidents but still finished 26th.

There were 17 caution periods which consumed 120 of the race's 500 laps.

Bristol adds truck race

Bristol Motor Speedway officials announced Sunday that a 200-lap Craftsman Truck Series race has been added to the schedule for the Sharpie 500 weekend in August.

The truck event will be run on Wednesday night, Aug. 20, and will be followed by a 250-lap Busch Series race on Friday night and the Sharpie 500 on Saturday night.

Kenseth still No. 1

Winston Cup points leader Matt Kenseth retained his top spot in the points standings after placing second in Sunday's Food City 500.

Kenseth's strong run at Bristol was all the more impressive considering he started the race in the 37th position after having to take a provisional starting spot.

Gamble pays off

Busch finally earns victory at Bristol following gutsy call

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Bristol, Tenn.

After playing the bridesmaid in the last-lap thriller at Darlington a week ago and finishing second two other times in the first five races of the season, Kurt Busch finally captured the big trophy.

The hottest driver in Winston Cup escaped a mid-race crash with only minor damage, dodged several other wrecks, then made a brilliant pit strategy call that put him in position to win Sunday's Food City 500 at Bristol Motor Speedway.

His decision to wait for a caution flag rather than making a pit stop under green-flag conditions allowed him to be one of six drivers who ran the final 100 circuits on the lead lap.

"I took it upon myself to stay out on the race track," Busch said. "Sometimes it just takes that gut instinct behind the wheel to know when to stay out."

When the race restarted on lap 404, Busch immediately sped past Bobby Labonte and led the rest of the way to get his second consecutive victory in the spring race at Bristol and the fifth overall of his 84-race Cup career.

Busch's Roush Racing teammate Matt Kenseth finished second, ahead of Labonte, Ricky Rudd, Greg Biffle and Sterling Marlin. The remaining drivers were at least one lap down at the end.

BUSCH

No caution period had more influence on the outcome of the race than the one that flew on lap 390 for a spin by Dale Jarrett.

At that point, there were only five drivers — Labonte, Busch, Marlin, Rudd and Biffle — who hadn't just made a green-flag pit stop. Because the other leaders had stopped late in the 130-lap, green-flag run, they wound up one or two laps down.

That's because caution laps are run at 35 miles per hour, so the five lead teams easily serviced their car without losing laps, which is impossible when the cars are circling the track at 120 mph.

Busch said his crew told him to pit two laps before the momentous caution flag flew but, seeing debris on the track, he made the decision to wait and see if he could hang on until race officials displayed the caution flag.

But he said it was more than instincts and luck that gave him that chance to win.

"We got lucky that yellow came out, but yet we were good enough to be in that position," he said.

Kenseth was one of the drivers who stopped early, but he lost only one lap, which he made up 17 laps later. He then moved from sixth to second and finished 10 car-lengths behind Busch.

Jimmy Spencer, who had one of the fastest cars, led twice for 130 laps but made a pit stop just before the fateful caution. He couldn't recover and finished 12th.

"We had a big lead and were really just on cruise control," Spencer said.

The same was true for Rusty Wallace, who suffered a similar fate last week at Darlington.

"We've just got bad pit luck right now," Wallace said.

It was just a year ago at Bristol that Busch got his first Winston Cup win, and only two full years have passed since Busch, now 24, joined NASCAR's elite circuit in an unsponsored car.

"It's a unique thing that has happened," Busch said.

With the win, Busch moved from sixth to second in the points standing, 138 points behind Kenseth.

POST-RACE NOTES

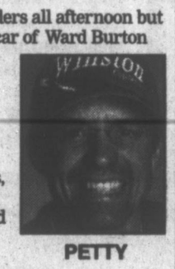
Hard hit sends Petty to hospital for tests

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Bristol, Tenn.

Kyle Petty was on track for a top-10 finish in the Food City 500, but instead left Bristol Motor Speedway in a helicopter en route to a local hospital.

Petty had run with the leaders all afternoon but was clipped by the spinning car of Ward Burton on lap 424. His No. 45 Dodge spun around and slammed driver's side first into the Turn 1 wall.



PETTY

Petty apparently was briefly knocked unconscious. After a few anxious moments, rescue workers helped him from his car, and he staggered to an ambulance.

He was flown to Bristol Regional Medical Center for precautionary tests and was released late Sunday.

Steven Lane, Petty's crew chief, said his driver didn't appear to be seriously injured.

"Kyle just said he was hurting all over," Lane said. "He's pretty tough. I think he must have a high pain tolerance to take a lick like that."

Burton blamed Robby Gordon for starting that wreck and for initiating several others.

"It's not the first run-in I've had with him," Burton said. "He caused the accident I got involved with today.

"He was just holding me down, and we came off [Turn] 3, and he got up into me."

Like Gordon, Brett Bodine found himself the object of criticism from drivers who blamed him for causing crashes after falling off the lead lap.

Terry Labonte, who was having his best run in months and had been as high as second place in the 500, tangled with Bodine on the backstretch on lap 243.

"Any time you're in a race with a Bodine, you're liable to get in a wreck, and I did," said Labonte, who finished 39th in his crumpled Chevy.

Bristol blues for Newman

Ryan Newman, who set a track record in qualifying on Friday, never really got going Sunday.

NEWMAN

As the leaders started down the backstretch for the first time, Newman's No. 12 Dodge wiggled just enough to allow Jeff Gordon to take the lead.

Newman made an unscheduled pit stop on Lap 24 so his crew could make adjustments to his car, but he wound up spinning several times and dropped to 22nd at the finish.

Rudd moves to top 10

Ricky Rudd, who has struggled in his first five races behind the wheel of the Wood Brothers' No. 21 Ford, bounced back with a strong run in the Food City 500.

He squeaked past several wrecks and finished fourth, moving from 17th to ninth in the points standings.

Bumping irks Spencer

While many top drivers say knocking a competitor from the lead in the closing laps is acceptable on a short track like Bristol, Jimmy Spencer disagrees.

Spencer's comments aren't surprising, considering he lost a late-race fender-smacking duel with Kurt Busch a year ago in the Food City 500 at Bristol.

"I'm shocked at the way the races have been handled lately at this track," Spencer said. "[Gordon] bumped Rusty [Wallace] and cost him the win. They bumped me and cost me the win," Spencer said. "It's exciting, but on the other side of it, what goes around comes around.

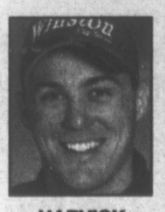
Harvick gets Busch win

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Bristol, Tenn.

The new Kevin Harvick showed up in victory lane after Saturday's Busch Series race. The old Kevin Harvick, who just a year ago lost his cool after an on-track incident in a Busch race at Bristol and let a resulting spat with NASCAR officials escalate to the point where he was forced to sit out a Winston Cup race, was nowhere to be found.



HARVICK

The new Harvick showed patience and maturity in dodging 13 wrecks and the erratic driving of some lapped drivers to grab his third Busch win at Bristol and the ninth career Busch win.

Tony Raines, who like Harvick is a Winston Cup regular running a limited Busch schedule, tried to take the lead several times in the closing laps but wound up second, four car lengths behind. Jason Keller was third, ahead of David Green and Mike Bliss.

Harvick said the lessons he learned in his run-in last year made him a better driver.

"Treating people with respect can help you in the race car," he said. "It's made me a smarter race driver. I can still be aggressive, but when the time is right."

Harvick started 11th and took the lead on lap 153 and led the remainder of the 250-lap race.

DEPLETED URANIUM

Why do so many people keep talking about U.S. use of depleted uranium in the first Gulf War and now? Are we using nuclear weapons against Iraq?

There is considerable confusion among the public, where most people hear the word "uranium" and immediately think "nuclear bombs." In terms of metals used in weapons against Iraq in the past, what is actually being talked about is depleted uranium, which is not dangerous. It's important to understand the difference between two types of uranium used in nuclear power plants and in shell casings.

Natural uranium has been in the ground since the planet was formed. Radioactive decay has turned a lot of it to lead by this time. What remains is overwhelmingly (99.27%) U-238, a type of uranium with a half-life of 4½ billion years. The remaining 0.72% is U-235, which contains 92 protons and 143 neutrons, and is more radioactive.

This rare type of uranium, U-235, is valuable because it will fission (break apart) when struck by a neutron. That action releases a great deal of energy, and so fissionable uranium can be used in either a nuclear reactor (to make electricity) or in an atomic bomb. However, even when U-235 is found in ore, there is so much U-238 in the natural mixture that uranium isn't very useful.

The technology of enriching uranium means separating the two kinds, concentrating the U-235 and discarding the U-238. The U-238 has no further use and just goes to waste; it's known as depleted uranium, because the valuable U-235 is missing. For every ton of U-235 fuel rods produced by the enrichment process, 15 tons of U-238 is discarded.

Even in fuel rods, the level of U-235 is only 4% (this is called low-enriched uranium). It cannot possibly explode. To make bomb-grade uranium, enrichment has to reach 50-90%. Fortunately, that is extremely hard to do, and various rogue states have struggled for years to develop an enrichment capability, without very much success.

What to do with the useless leftover depleted uranium? Well, it's very heavy (dense) and very cheap (because nobody wants it). So it becomes the material of choice to place a heavy weight in the front tip of a shell intended to penetrate steel or concrete. That is how it is used in some American weapons.

As a measure of how useless and non-radioactive the depleted uranium is, keep in mind that the U.S. lobbed a lot of it into Iraq in 1991, and it was left lying around on the ground where the shells hit. In all the years since, Saddam has not bothered to pick any of this uranium up and try to turn it into bombs, because it doesn't contain the kind of uranium he would need — fissionable isotopes.

Meanwhile, misinformed people have blamed depleted uranium for ills ranging from birth defects to leukemia. They believe "uranium" means "radioactive," which means "cancer." This shows they don't understand the process of radioactive decay. Uranium gives off an alpha-particle (a helium nucleus), which can be stopped by a stack of newspapers. Moreover, depleted uranium gives off a lot fewer particles than natural uranium. It is not a hazardous material at all. Plenty of other things in life, such as chest X-rays or a summer suntan, involve much more damaging radiation.

While past military action in Iraq may have caused different types of civilian collateral damage, it's scientifically impossible for the depleted uranium left there to have caused illnesses in the population.

Garrett County SKIES

By Dr. Bob Doyle
Frostburg State Planetarium

THE SUN — In April, the duration of sunlight grows by more than two minutes each day. April 1 will have 12 hours 39 minutes of sunlight, while April 30 will have 13 hours 51 minutes of sunlight. April opens with 6:03 a.m. sunrises; the last day of April will have a 6:20 a.m. sunrise. Early April sunsets are about 6:42 p.m., which slide to 8:11 p.m. sunsets as the month ends. The reason for the great advance in sunsets in April is our shift to Daylight Time on April's first weekend. Sunrises don't change much in April; the sun's northward advance causes sunrises to fall back 3/4 of an hour but we add an hour to our clocks, more than offsetting this change. In April both dawn and dusk last a little more than an hour. In mid April, one can view the fainter stars as late as 5:40 a.m. and as early as 8:55 p.m.

THE MOON — April opens with the moon nearly in line with the sun (called the new moon). By April 3 the moon will again be easily visible in the western dusk. Each following evening the moon appears higher and grows in lighted width, becoming half full on April 9. For a few days before and after this date, the moon (then resembling a letter "D") is at its best for crater and mountain spotting with binoculars and telescope. The moon will be fullest on the night of April 16 then appearing in eastern Virgo, near the bright star Spica. This first full moon of spring will trigger Easter to fall on the next Sunday, April 20. By Easter the moon will have left the evening sky, affording great views of the evening stars. As April comes to an end, the moon appears as a crescent low in the eastern dawn.

THE BRIGHT PLANETS — Our nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine steady, unlike the bright night stars that twinkle. There are three bright planets in the evening sky. The brightest point of light is the planet Jupiter, shining in the southern evening sky. Farther to the right is the bright planet Saturn, near the star group Orion. Both Saturn and Jupiter are wonderful telescopic targets; Jupiter displays its large moons while Saturn has its great rings. The bashful planet Mercury can be seen low in the western dusk in April. We shouldn't forget the brilliant planet Venus in the eastern dawn, rising about an hour ahead of the sun. At dawn, the planet Mars can be seen low in the south as a bright yellow steady point several hours ahead of the sun. To the right and higher than Venus is the dull planet Mars. The evening moon will appear near Jupiter on the 10th; the moon at dawn will appear near Mars on the 23rd and near Venus on the 28th and 29th.

APRIL'S BEST SIGHTS — April is the last month to see Orion and the very bright stars close by. Look west in the early evening for Orion's three star belt. Take Orion's belt and go leftward to catch sight of Sirius, the night's brightest star. Above and to the right of Orion is the cream-colored planet Saturn. To the left of Saturn is the very bright planet Jupiter, the brightest point in view.

In the north, the Big Dipper is upside down, dumping its soup onto the North Star. The two leftmost stars of the Dipper point down to the North Star. The Dipper's handle can be extended outward to the bright golden star Arcturus, the first bright star of spring to appear. Late on April evenings, you can catch sight of the white-blue star Vega low in the northeast.

APRIL ASTRONOMY ACTIVITIES — Our free program at the Frostburg State Planetarium is "Mercury, Greek Skies, and Star Zoo." Also featured is an introductory tour of the April evening sky. Our presentations start at 4 and 7 p.m., and last a little less than an hour. Our showings are on April 6, 13, and 27. For directions on how to reach the planetarium, call 301-687-4270. The Cumberland Astronomy Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, April 18, at the LaVale Public Library. All sky gazers are welcome.

Dr. Doyle writes this column for beginners who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets and sights in their backyards. To ask questions or get a free brochure or sky charts, call the FSU Planetarium at 301-387-4270 and press 4. Doyle hosts Sky-Watch, a brief program on days of the week and sky sights that airs on weekday evenings just before 9 p.m. on WFWM at 91.9 FM in western Garrett County and 96.3 FM in the Oakland area. Doyle's e-mail address is rdoyle@frostburg.edu.

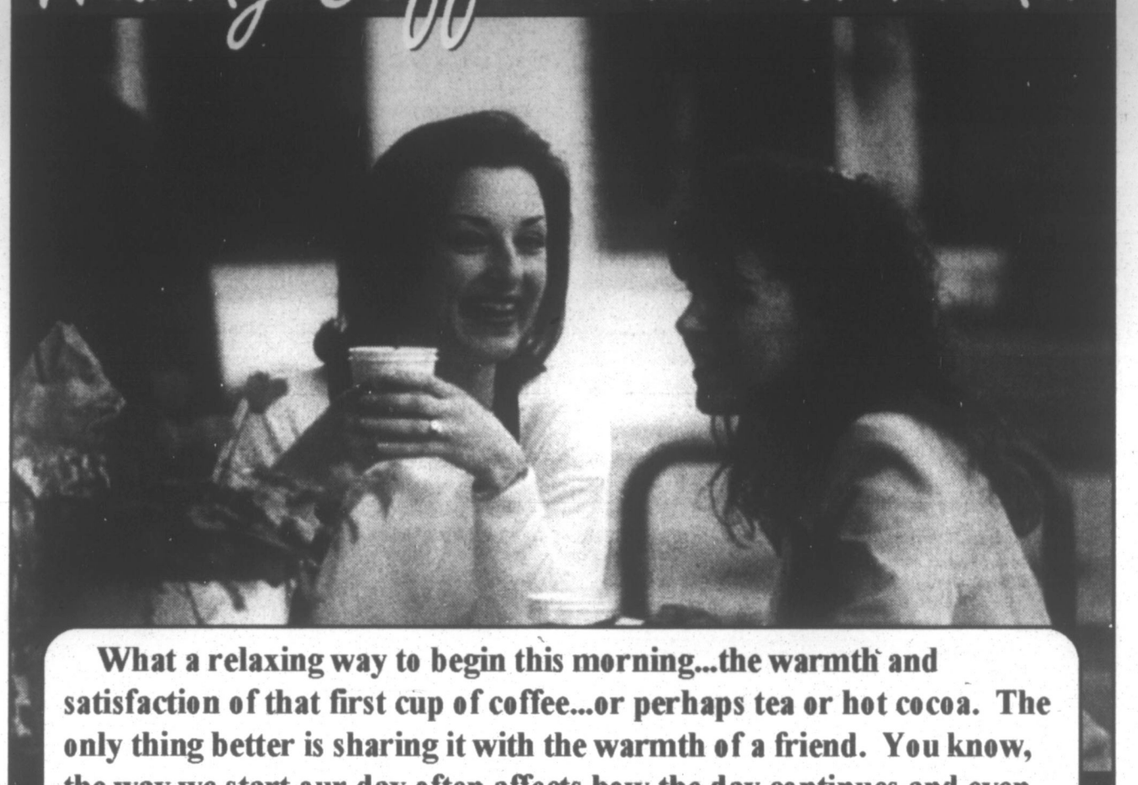
Having Coffee with a Friend



What a relaxing way to begin this morning...the warmth and satisfaction of that first cup of coffee...or perhaps tea or hot cocoa. The only thing better is sharing it with the warmth of a friend. You know, the way we start our day often affects how the day continues and even how it ends. Beginning our morning sharing thoughts with a friend, perhaps bouncing ideas back and forth, is a positive beginning.

God is our friend. He is always available to listen to our thoughts and our wishes. Prayer and meditation in the morning is a positive way to begin a day that is filled with the joy of the Holy Spirit, the peace of an unfailing faith, and the courage that comes from knowing that our Father always walks beside us.

Wouldn't you like to learn more about your best friend? Worship in God's House this week, and each morning upon rising, commune with your Creator as you read from His Holy Word. The warmth of His love will follow you throughout each day as it enriches your life.

"Take delight in the Lord and He will give you the desires of your heart." Psalm 37:4

Rheumatoid Arthritis: Alternative Therapies

Rheumatoid arthritis is a debilitating condition that can be very difficult to manage with conventional drugs. Alternative medicines including herbs are sometimes used to fill this gap.

Capsicum is effective when used topically for temporary arthritis pain relief. Capsicum is approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration as an over-the-counter product marketed under the names of Capsaicin and Zostrix. When repeatedly applied to the skin it causes the nerves to deplete their supply of substance P, a chemical needed to transmit pain.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHO WOULD JESUS BOMB?

March 30, 2003

Background Scripture:
Mark 7:1-23.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 51:19-17.

Valere and I have traveled around the world, visiting churches, synagogues, mosques, temples and other places of worship. Even among the Christian sites we have visited there is an amazing diversity of architecture, ritual and practice. It is difficult to imagine that all of these different beliefs, practices and styles are all part of the same faith. Usually, these divergent factors result from a blend of faith and culture.

There is nothing wrong with this great diversity of beliefs and practices—with two important exceptions. One of these is thinking that our brand of Christianity alone is the "real thing" and the second exception is to forget to distinguish what represents the will of God and what is devised by human mind. These are deadly viruses that can infect the Church, destroying it from within rather than from without.

In Mark 7, Jesus is opposed by the scribes over the washing of hands before eating. The Jews, of course, did not know about bacteria in those days and could not appreciate that this practice was also good physical health measure. In their day it was purely ceremonial and symbolic. The practice in itself was probably a good way of disciplining their Hebrew faith. The problem , however, was that they failed to realize that this practice was not the heart of their faith. So they challenged Jesus, "Why do your disciples not live according to the tradition of the elders, but eat with hands defiled?"

Human Precepts

Jesus' response was based upon a passage from Isaiah 29:13, "This people honors me with their lips, but their heart is far from me; in vain do they worship me, teaching as doctrines the precepts of men" (7:6,7). What can happen with any practice, belief or ritual is that we invest it with divine authority, when, at best, it represents precepts, human understanding of that authority. This legalistic approach makes it easier, because, by keeping the minutia of our faith, we can more easily ignore God's commandments.

The precepts of human beings can easily become a substitute for God's commandments. People are often rather dogmatic about "the right way to worship," giving their method more energy and concern than the reality behind that method. Another example was the Church's response to Galileo, the brilliant 16th century scientist, who demonstrated Copernicus' theory that the earth revolves around the sun, not the reverse. The Inquisition labeled this theory heresy and Galileo had to back down. How many other teachings, rules and concepts are regarded as orthodox truth, when in fact they are little more than human precepts?

Often we have a choice between the commandments of God and the traditions of men when they conflict with one another. Nowhere is this more prevalent than in how we respond to Jesus' summation of the commandments: "...you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart,... soul,...mind,...and strength." And, "you shall love your neighbor as yourself." (Mk 12:6,7).

Human Exceptions

Never are we more ingeniously creative than when we are busy working out exceptions to this commandment. We rule that neighbors must be worthy of our love, that foreigners cannot be neighbors, that this rule does not apply to enemies. We justify violence and preach an eye-for-an-eye justice, adulterating our Christian witness.

By the time this appears in your newspaper, we may well be at war again. Of all the justification that I see and hear regarding this war, I have heard virtually nothing about the relevance of Christian teaching. Authorities are quoted, but not Jesus Christ, although

Vieira has Emmy-winning pedigree

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Meredith Vieira

Q: I think Meredith Vieira of "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire" is a living doll. Has she done any other shows or movies? Is she married? Children? –Don in Ohio.

A: She's one of my favorite people as well, Don, although the 49-year-old Vieira comes to her "Millionaire" hosting chores from a background of journalism, not show business (purely on a lark, she has made a handful of TV series guest appearances).

The Providence, R.I., native with Portuguese family roots began her career as a news announcer for a radio station in Worcester, Mass., before moving into a TV career that included a decade at CBS News, where she earned four Emmys for her reporting on the "West 57th" series, contributed to the CBS Morning News and worked as a correspondent on "60 Minutes," which netted a fifth Emmy.

Vieira moved to ABC News in October 1993 as chief correspondent for "Turning Point," earning yet another Emmy Award for a report on white supremacy groups. In addition to hosting a number of ABC specials, she has been moderator of the daytime talk show "The View" since its 1997 premiere and was named official host of Lifetime Television's "Intimate Portrait" in 1999.

She has three children with New York journalist Richard Cohen, whom she married in 1986. In recent years, the couple has gone public with his multiple sclerosis, which Cohen contracted in his 20s. The illness has left him legally blind.

Vieira tells me she had no idea her future husband was ill when they began dating. "Hey, I thought he looked pretty good," she says, "yet I could sense a kind of sadness about him that I couldn't account for. I finally asked him over dinner and he told me he had M.S. – and that was back when it was 'M.S., the crippler of young adults.'

"It's tough some days, but, you know, now and then, it's just about playing the cards you draw."

Q: What has become of Jonathan Brandis ("Seaquest DSV")? –Hope S. via e-mail.

A: Brandis, now 26, actually has appeared in roughly one movie per year since leaving "Seaquest" in 1996, but those films have been such box office disappointments as "Ride With the Devil," "Outside Providence," "Hart's War" and "A Fate Totally Worse Than Death."

Look for Brandis next appearing with Scott Glenn and Harvey Keitel in the upcoming film adaptation of Robert James Waller's novel "Puerto Vallarta Squeeze."

Nelson Helps OJC's Dream Become Reality

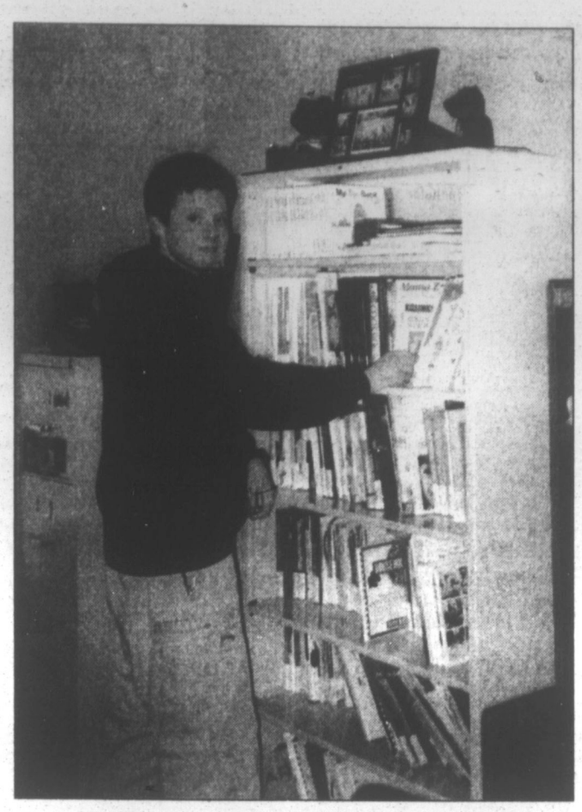
Several months ago providing a resource center for children and their families was merely a dream at the Overlook Judy Center in Oakland. But, with much hard work and dedication, 16-year-old Michael Nelson was able to turn that dream into a reality.

Initially, Nelson needed to complete 25 hours of community service as part of his graduation requirement and as a prerequisite for membership into the National Honor Society. But he actually ended up completing a total of 31 hours working at the Judy Center.

"Each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoon," said Julie Gower of the center, "Michael would arrive at the Overlook Judy Center eager to donate his time for a good cause."

His goal was similar to the center's: to expand educational opportunities for children and their families. So, he began working on the development and organization of a resource center, or Lending Library, not only for families but for professionals as well. Nelson eventually developed a system to track and monitor the available resources.

The OJC Lending Library contains more than 300 books and videos available for loan, according to Gower. Although the library is ready to use now, the OJC staff also plans to add "theme boxes" to the resource center.



STUDENT LENDS A HAND FOR LIBRARY – Michael Nelson, 16, recently completed 31 hours of community service helping the Overlook Judy Center expand educational opportunities for children and their families. Nelson developed and organized the OJC's Lending Library. He also developed a system to track and monitor its more than 300 books and video resources. See story for details.

"These boxes will provide children with materials and educational themes that will encourage hands-on learning and create educational activities that are enriching and stimulating," said Gower.

The Garrett County Community Action Overlook Judy Center is an Early Child Care and Family Education Center. "With local agency partnership and collaboration, OJC is able to empower children and their families with holistic universal services, emphasizing education and early learning," said Gower.

For more information about the Lending Library or OJC services, persons may call 301-334-4211.

Keefer is in the fourth year of apprenticeship training with ABC, and his graduation in August will make him eligible for the journeyman's test. Pictured above from the left are Cumberland Valley Chapter apprenticeship committee chairman Jim Rock, chapter president Joan Warner, Keefer, and ABC Education Trust president Will Seilhamer. There are currently two ABC classes taking place locally, a plumbing class and an electrical class, and persons interested in further information may contact the Cumberland Valley Chapter ABC at 301-739-1190.

Catholic Daughters Schedule Basket Bingo Fund-Raiser

The Catholic Daughters of the Americas, Court Oakland, through St. Peter the Apostle Church, will sponsor a Basket Bingo in the parish hall on Sunday, April 6. Doors open at 1 p.m. The event is a community fund-raiser.

In Basket Bingo, the winner of the game wins a brand-name basket. Tickets cost $20 each and may be purchased from any Catholic Daughter or at Gregg's Pharmacy in Oakland. Food, beverages, raffles, and door prizes will also be available for purchase at the event.

The Oakland Court has assisted community and parish projects for many years. "This financial support is made possible through many fund-raising events throughout the year," said spokesperson Patti Battista.

In the last two years, nearly $24,000 has been spent supporting scholarships, parish projects, and various community projects, including Northern and Southern High School After-Proms, the Ruth Enlow Library, Relay for Life, the House of Hope, Area Agency on Aging, and local fire departments and rescue squads, according to Battista.

The public is invited to attend the Basket Bingo. The parish hall beside St. Peter's at 208 South Fourth Street, Oakland.

ROTARY FRIES PAY OUT IN SPUDS, or spades, that is. The Oakland Rotary Club has been distributing proceeds raised through sales of its "world famous" french fries. Rotary volunteers fry up hundreds of pounds of potatoes for concession sales at the fair, the rodeo, and a number of other local events, and the money is donated back into the community. Rotarian Russell McConnell is shown in each of these three photos presenting donation checks to: Ken Perrin, above left, of the Little Yough Summer Music Festival; Lou DiCarlo, above right, of the MLP CrimeWatch citizens' group; and Joan Johnson, below, of the Garrett County chapter of Big Brothers Big Sisters, for BBBS's Bowl for Kids' Sake benefit. With a motto of "Service Above Self," the Oakland Rotary supports other community organizations, including the Oakland Little League, and has committed $5,000 to the $80 million goal set by the global Polio Eradication Fundraising Campaign. Basketball Cards

Q. I have a rather large collection of basketball cards. Most of them were issued by Topps, Upper Deck and SAGE. I would like to find an accurate price guide so that I have a better idea of what I have. — Carl, Amsterdam, N.Y.

A. There are dozens of price guides and reference books on the market about basketball cards. One of the better ones is the "2003 Standard Catalogue of Basketball Cards" (Krause Publications, $21.95). This excellent guide is compiled by the editors of Tuff Stuff magazine and is now in its sixth edition.

An astonishing 155,000 cards from some 3,600 sets are listed and priced. Not only are cards from the better-known companies such as Topps, Fleer, Upper Deck, SAGE and Press Pass featured, but also many from the more obscure companies, some no longer in business. Few guides, for instance, list the cards from Score Board, the Star Company or Collector's Edge. This one does.

Whether you collect NBA, WNBA, CBA or even regional sets, it's more than likely included in this collection. In addition to the cards, there's an autograph price guide that includes all the Hall of Famers and current athletes, and a special section for figures, including Starting Lineups and the scarcer McFarland pieces.

The book features hundreds of illustrations, a real plus for collectors. This is probably the only guide for basketball collectibles that you'll ever need. It can be ordered by calling the toll-free telephone number at Krause Publications, 1-800-258-0929.

Reduce Your Pet's Thunderstorm Phobia

Last week, I printed a letter from Sharon, whose 9-year-old spaniel was terrified whenever she was outside during a thunderstorm. This week, I'll handle the second part of Sharon's question, which concerned medical therapies that are available to help pets that suffer varying degrees of thunderstorm phobia, indoors or out.

Unfortunately, this type of fear reaction is difficult to control, despite the amount of research done to find exact causes. Medication — ranging from homeopathic (herbal) remedies to "sleeping pills" (such as Valium) has proven effective for many pets, but only in varying degrees.

Researchers have found that some drugs developed for humans also work well in pets. However, the dosages are very different, so you should never give your pet a pill prescribed for humans — the results could be fatal. As with any prescription drug, consult with your veterinarian and go with his or her recommendation.

Whatever medication is used, combine it with techniques to reduce your pet's anxiety. Create a "safe zone" for it to hide in (its kennel crate, for example, with nonconductive padding such as linoleum installed) and place your pet in it with treats and toys when a storm begins. Before the storm, rub your pet's coat with dryer sheets (sounds odd, but sometimes it helps reduce static electricity).

During drier seasons, try a "desensitization" therapy: Play an audio recording of a thunderstorm at low volume, and increase slowly. This type of therapy takes a few months to get results, and may not work at all, but it's worth a try.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

Lt. Col. Hinz Retires From Md. Guard

Lt. Col. Peter C. Hinz, commander of the 121st Engineer Battalion of the Maryland Army National Guard, ended his 25-year military service career when his retirement was marked in a recent change of command ceremony, attended by the Maryland Guard's adjutant general, Maj. Gen. Bruce Tuxill. The state's sole engineer asset with two armories located in Oakland and Cumberland, the 121st Engineer Battalion now operates under the leadership of Lt. Col. Keith Jarvis.

"I've missed western Maryland since I moved away to start my federal career," remarked Hinz, who has served almost 22 years as a federal employee, currently as an information technology specialist with the Department of Justice. "As [my wife Lynda] and I near retirement, our plans are to return to Garrett County." The Gaithersburg residents have three children, Ens. Brenton Helbig, who serves as a submariner in the U.S. Navy; Mathew, a student at West Virginia University in Morgantown; and Stephen, a student at Gaithersburg High School.

Hinz began his army career in 1972 with the Armed Forces Currier Service. He completed a 1-year deployment to Tan Son Nhut, Republic of Vietnam, in 1973 prior to commencing studies at Frostburg State University, where he was awarded a bachelor of science in English in 1978. He went on to earn a master's degree in management in 1981.

Hinz enlisted into the 121st Engineer Battalion at the Frostburg Detachment in 1978. When the Frostburg Armory was closed in 1979 he moved to Oakland, where he remained for the next four years. After graduating from Officer Candidate School in July 1979, Hinz served as a platoon leader in western Maryland. "My first mentors as an officer were members Company C [then, in Oakland]," said Hinz. "The lessons they taught me have helped me to succeed throughout my career."

In 1983 Hinz was transferred east to serve as company executive officer. Successively, he advanced to command the Battalion S4 (logistics) and Battalion S3 (operations), before being promoted to the posts of battalion executive officer and battalion commander, respectively.

Hinz has earned many accolades during his tenure as battalion commander. In addition to improving and maintaining the battalion's "C-rating" (level of readiness), he engineered the improvement plan that raised the battalion's standing from eighth to second when compared with similar engineering units across the army. Hinz also organized the establishment of two new engineering units in the Maryland Army National Guard, the 243rd Engineer Company (CSE), which has a detachment in Oakland, and the 253rd Engineering Detachment.

Hinz's responsibilities also included the successful completion of over a dozen civilian support projects. Among the long list of projects carried out under his command are many in western Maryland, including the Loch Lynn soccer field, the Beall High, Jefferson Valley, and Middletown baseball fields, the Frostburg Recreational Complex, and the Frostburg Rifle Range.

Despite these noteworthy accomplishments, Jarvis said that Hinz's greatest accomplishment as battalion commander was having saved the battalion. "About three years previously, the battalion was slated for de-commissioning by the Department of the Army," the unit's new commander explained. "As the state's sole engineer asset, this would have been a major blow to the state's ability to respond to emergencies. Hinz implemented measures to improve the readiness of the battalion in order to make de-activation appear senseless.

"But," Jarvis continued, "the battle to save the battalion was primarily dependent on political factors, which are not within the purview of serving members of the military—so Hinz instigated the creation of the 121st Engineer Battalion Association that would be led by former members of the battalion and primarily focus on saving the battalion from de-activation. The Association succeeded, and continues to serve as the battalion's advocate, especially in arenas closed to current members."

Hinz is a graduate of the Army Command and General Staff College, the Federal Executive Institute, and the Army War College. Among his decorations are the Bronze Star Medal, Meritorious Service Medal, Joint Services Commendation Medal, Army Commendation Medal, Army Meritorious Unit Citation, Vietnam Gallantry Cross Unit Citation, and the Maryland Meritorious Service Medal.

Garrett Co. Guardsmen Activated

Two Garrett County residents, 1st Lt. Joseph Shaffer and Spec. David Sweitzer, have been called to active duty for deployment overseas. Both soldiers are members of Engineer Force West, 121st Engineer Battalion, Maryland Army National Guard, which has not yet been mobilized as a unit although several individuals have military occupational specialties (MOS) in demand by other Maryland National Guard units that are deploying.

Shaffer lives in Oakland with his wife Kim and their two children. He works for the state of Maryland Department of Social Services. Sweitzer lives in Oakland with his wife Josephine and their two children. He works for Sisler Trucking.

"We offer such a wide variety of MOSs in the battalion that I'm not surprised that other units are resourcing our members," said Capt. K. Weedon Gallagher, the unit commander. "In addition to combat engineers, we have medics, mechanics, truck drivers, cooks, and many more career paths." Battalion commander Lt. Col. Keith Jarvis added that the unit is able to satisfy the requirements for individual call-ups while maintaining the unit's own readiness without much difficulty.

"Obviously, we would rather deploy as a unit, but we will meet the mission of the Maryland National Guard," one member stated.

Engineer Force West (EFW) is a 140-soldier task force composed of a mechanized combat engineering company and a combat support equipment platoon in two armories located in Oakland and Cumberland. The 121st Engineer Battalion is the state's sole engineer asset.

College, Public Schools, Area Couple Supporting South African Educators

GC "Coalition For Effective Local Democracy" Assisting Effort

Garrett College and the Garrett County Public Schools will be welcoming a contingent of at least four South African educators in late April who will reside here for two months as they observe American teaching techniques, which they will take home to incorporate into their own classrooms. The stay is funded by a grant through the Leadership Institute for South African Secondary Education, which is also funding similar visits by additional South African educators to Prince George's and Charles counties, hosted by P.G. Community College and the College of Southern Maryland, respectively, and those counties' public school systems.

"This grant extends the partnership between the college and the public school system, and takes it to a global level as student and educators experience the excitement of learning about new cultures," said Dr. Lillian Mitchell, the college's dean of academic and student affairs.

Over 20 South African educators will be divided among the three counties involved in the program, and in mid-June the entire group will visit Garrett County to take part in a two-week training session. The first week will be a Math Institute created for the South Africans and their Garrett County teachers and mentors. The second week will be a training week for educators working with gifted and talented students from across Maryland.

Dr. Nancy Priselac, GC mathematics professor and special assistant to the college president, and Lynn Bell, director of the county's secondary schools, have both been instrumental in obtaining the grant and in working to welcome its participants. Bell has sought participation from local high school teachers and administrators, with whom four of the participants will work closely. Priselac has gathered a cadre of college and high school faculty who will team with all the participants during their June training session.

Both educators are contacting local agencies and institutions to find ways that the South African participants can share their experiences with others in Garrett County. Although the participants' stay will be funded by the grant, Priselac and Bell said they both are eager to provide additional supplies.

"We wanted them to have a unique and rewarding experience," Priselac stated. "We are fortunate that Casio Inc. is providing free graphing calculators to the participants. Once we knew of the great lack of resources in most South African classrooms, we realized that they would benefit from some additional supplies.

"Items as basic as paper, batteries, and chalk are, to some in South Africa, almost non-existent," said Priselac. "Some classrooms do not even have electricity. It will be important for each of the teachers to have a rolling case to store technical equipment and supplies. Later, they will use this case to transport the materials back to their classrooms in South Africa."

In part, Priselac and Bell learned of these needs through conversations with Deep Creek Lake area residents Dr. Michael and Vianne Bell, founders of the Coalition for Effective Local Democracy, which seeks to strengthen local democratic government through the empowerment of South Africa's citizens.

"We try to help citizens help themselves as they take responsibility for the things that affect their own daily lives," Michael Bell explained last week, just days before departing for another working trip to South Africa. "In emerging democracies, citizens often think that government is something 'out there,' and that 'it doesn't affect me.' Often they haven't had a history of good relationships with their local governments."

The Bells work with others throughout the U.S. and South Africa to raise funds for the coalition, which are distributed in a variety of ways that support its mission. "People in the U.S. put money on the table to help," said Michael Bell. "We've held a series of fund-raising dinners, one of which raised over $6,000 earlier this month in Washington, D.C." Among the projects the coalition has helped provide resources for are the building of high schools in the country, Bell explained.

When the Bells learned of the Garrett College and Garrett schools' initiative, they contacted Priselac, Lynn Bell, and Dr. Virginia Broaddus, GC's director of arts and sciences, to volunteer to contribute their knowledge about the country and its educational system, and to welcome participants once they arrive in the U.S. They also presented a $150 check to Priselac and Bell for the purchase of additional supplies for the South African grant participants. The Bells said their hope is that other community members will also be able to donate items such as photo albums to serve as scrapbooks, digital cameras that can also serve as web cameras, computer disks, batteries, notebooks and paper, pencils, pens, rewritable compact discs, mathematical software, and materials such as surge protectors.

Persons interested in learning more about the Leadership Institute for South African Secondary Education program and the various ways they can provide assistance can contact Priselac by calling 301-387-3045, or via e-mail at npriselac@garrettcollege.edu.

Editor's note: The Coalition for Effective Local Democracy, and its own growing effort to further involve Garrett County residents and resources in its work, will be the subject of a forthcoming feature article in The Republican.

REACHING ACROSS THE OCEAN, the local efforts of the larger Leadership for South African Secondary Education program received a $150 donation recently from the Garrett County-based Coalition for Effective Local Democracy recently to help purchase teaching supplies for a visiting group of South African educators. "The South African educators have so much to offer us in terms of cultural diversity and global education, and have as much to teach us even as we teach them," stated Garrett College mathematics department director Dr. Nancy Priselac, shown at the left accepting the donation check from local resident and Coalition for Local Democracy co-founder Vianne Bell. The upcoming visit is being co-sponsored by the college and the Garrett County Public School System. See story.

Brochure Urges Juniors To Think About College

The Maryland Higher Education Commission has produced a brochure aimed at getting high school juniors to think about college and financial aid.

The brochure, "Cash for College," has been sent to the homes of Maryland juniors and is also available at high school guidance offices. The publication answers basic questions such as: How do I get cash for college? Why should I go to college? What should I do to get ready for college? and Who can help me get ready for college? It then instructs the students to contact MHEC for further information.

"We want the juniors to begin to focus on college and financial aid before their senior year," said Karen R. Johnson, secretary of higher education. "In the 12th grade, there will be strict deadlines to make decisions about colleges and applications for financial aid. We want to give the students something to think about without the pressure."

For more information or for a copy of the brochure, persons may contact the Maryland Higher Education Commission at 1-800-974-1024, 410-260-4565, or at www.mhec.state.md.us.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Yes, I finally had a couple sightings of robins. Actually it was at the same place where Cindy Stanton saw her first robins in Bittinger. They were hanging around the snow-free, thawed ground since their main diet is earthworms. They will certainly be plentiful this spring since the ground is so wet and worms need to surface for a breath of air.

It will be a while before there will be any tilling on our farm. About 20 years ago my family planned to plant some oats early, but we fell behind most of the rest of the farmers and it really turned out to be a lucky break. The early birds' seed rotted in the wet spring that year. However, those two early robins did get the worms anyway, as they were very busy pulling out nice fat ones. I guess that was why one of the robins was so fat. Sheila Southerly also commented about how fat her robins are this year.

This winter I missed the rough-legged hawk that hung around an old dead tree along the Glades area near Jack Beitzel's house. That particular kind of hawk is native of the Arctic Circle. However, I didn't see any sign of it until last Saturday, which was a balmy warm day, and it was flying toward the north. Both Sheila and I noted that, although we heard the Canada geese, we still had not seen them.

There was something new at my bird feeder this morning, as I noticed a large, shiny black bird eating its breakfast, and then I noticed a gold stripe on its wing, so I guess it was a red-wing blackbird. Although we have many species on our farm, they do not stay out in the open fields. Sheila hears lots of owl hoots, and she said that the skunk cabbage is up and growing around their pond.

After a long basketball season, Landon Southerly changed into his baseball uniform. The Huskies' baseball season was delayed by the wet fields around here. They traveled to south West Virginia to begin their season. The conditions have been the same for the Lakers' season. Greg Whittemore is enjoying his first college season at Garrett College, playing several different positions. They did get in a doubleheader today on their home field. Greg's father David enjoyed seeing Gregory play. David is in Bittinger to hold down the fort for Lesa as she headed west with a friend to Arizona and then on to Las Vegas while on spring break.

I guess our massive deer population has a bad case of spring fever. They seem intent on hitting some cars. Sheila just eluded a gang of them rushing across Peat Moss Road. That same Friday evening my rookie-driver Claire just missed hitting two deer that were just standing on the road on top of Mosser Hill. But one was determined to so some damage, so it just threw itself on Claire's front side of the car. It is as common to get hit by them as drivers hitting them. I don't think any family living around Bittinger area hasn't had at least a couple close encounters of the deer kind. That is my conclusion from a quick poll of the worshipers at Emmanuel Lutheran Church.

Of course, Sheila agrees with me about that, as she does live in the deer capital, which is around the Peat Bog. It has at least a hundred deer for each human living there.

Sorry, Claire, that I had to include this item, but you can't miss the press in America. Anyway it it is not a big stigma to get hit by a deer. You have plenty of good company.

Even deer-wise Denny Buckel has seen the damage that they can do by running into you. It is another good reason to slow down on the roads in this neck of the woods. Unfortunately, someone was unable to avoid a skunk up the road on Rock Lodge Road, and I just missed running over the corpse. Even if you run over a dead skunk in this cool weather, it still pretty well stinks up your car. It would take lots of tomato juice to remove the odor from your tires. It is true that tomato juice will de-skunk any dog that may have had a run-in with one. I even have had pretty good luck with a ripe, juicy tomato fresh from its vine from my garden. I just sliced it in half and rubbed the dog with the fruit. It was not quite as sticky of a mess as using a half gallon of juice, but the dog still needs a good rinse.

I'd rather have a bear hanging around my house than a skunk. When I smell one close, I wish I had a gun handy. But this led to a very interesting discussion in my class "Humanity and the Environment" about whether it is ethical to kill a wild animal just because it is a nuisance to you, getting into your trash, stinking up your dog, or just being really ugly. Most of my students agreed that it was all right to kill to defend your family's safety, even to eat, and possibly even to defend your food supply. This would apply to other wild animals, and other reasons were questionable to my students. That could mean the instinctive urge to kill any snakes they meet, and ugly spiders or house flies. I have a few friends who catch spiders and take them outside to release them. Whether I would go so far as to pick up an earthworm off the pavement and throw it in a safe grassy region is questionable, but I know it is worth the trouble to stop my car and push off any dumb turtles sitting on the road.

It does not yet smell like spring. It will have to wait until the farmers start to till their fields. But what a relief it is when it is above the freezing mark. Pastor Pat told me that she is singing "Hallelujah" while she is raking leaves on the parsonage lawn. Of course, she has not been living long enough in Bittinger to see how fast sometimes the weather switches back to the winter mode after the first signs of spring. Unfortunately, it is very common that we get a white Easter. That does not mean white lilies, but snow. Even after that holiday I can still remember many times when we still got snow well into May. Not a whole lot, but enough to kinda kill the feeling "summertime, and life is easy." I just hope this warm spell does not cause too many floral bushes and fruit trees to bud too soon like last year. I do not believe that spring is really here until the spring peepers are in full voice. I have not heard a single peep yet. Maybe those tiny frogs know something that Pastor Pat does not know. My mother reported that she heard them in Virginia when she was visiting there last week.

Enough of my personal ramblings. Let's get down to some social news. Many people tell me how much they love this column, and not just to learn about who visits with whom. You want an easy grammar lesson of the words who and whom? Whatever sentence you want to say or write, substitute who for he and whom for him. So that last sentence would be "He visits him."

Emmanuel's Sunday school is aiding in the effort of our Synod Global Mission to build a well for our international sister congregation in Madagascar, which is the big island off Africa's coast and has always fascinated me.

Ruth Beachy of Hestor, Pa., visited her aunt, Ferne Beachy, and her cousins, Cindy Stanton and Sally Poholsky, and families over the weekend.

Ferne Beachy, the Stanton family, Dave and Nancy Beachy, and the Vagnetti family celebrated Sally Poholsky's birthday, which was March 13, with a dinner the following Sunday afternoon at the Stanton home.

Scott Bass and Darryl and Elliot Glotfelty participated in the County Middle School Honor Chorus concert at Southern High School on Tuesday night.

About eight women from Emmanuel Lutheran Church, along with Bill Hady, presented a short program at the Goodwill Nursing Home on Monday afternoon. Those women attending were Beulah Moon, Ferne Beachy, Margaret Wagner, Jenny Hady, Lottie Brenneman, Ruth DiPaolo, and Sheila Southerly. Among some of the residents were Ferne Beachy's former teacher, Chauncey Friend (age 99), and my former teacher, Polly Hanst (age 96). Margaret presented Olis Brenne-

WHY?
Why do people reject the love of the One who gave His life for them?

ASK YOURSELF...
Who Is Righteous?
NO ONE IS!
As it is written, there is none righteous, no, not one." Romans 3:10

ASK YOURSELF...
Who Has Sinned?
EVERYONE HAS!
"For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;" Romans 3:23

ASK YOURSELF...
What Is God's Penalty For Sin?
DEATH AND HELL!
"For the wages of sin is death..." Romans 6:23
THIS DEATH IS THE SECOND DEATH.
"And death and Hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death. And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire." Revelation 20:14-15

ASK YOURSELF...
Can I Do Good Deeds To Pay For My Sin?
NO!
"For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast." Ephesians 2:8-9
""For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" Romans 6:23

ASK YOURSELF...
Is There A Way Out?
YES!
"Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me." John 14:6
"Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." Acts 4:12
"But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.." Romans 5:8
"This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners..." 1 Timothy 1:15

ASK YOURSELF...
What Must I Do To Have This Salvation?
REPENT OF YOUR SIN, BELIEVE THAT JESUS DIED ON THE CROSS FOR YOUR SINS AND RECEIVE HIM BY FAITH!
"That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation... For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." Romans 10:9-10, 13

Today, if you would like to be receive Christ as your Savior, just bow your head and pray this simple prayer:

God, I know that I am a sinner. I now repent of my sins and ask you to come into my heart and life and save me. In Jesus Name I pray. Amen.

If you sincerely prayed this prayer, we would like to hear from you and send you further information on the Christian life.

Garrett County Chamber of Commerce UPDATE

Home of Deep Creek Lake

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce board of directors held its regular monthly meeting Thursday, March 13, presided over by Steve Green, chairman.

Chamber president Charlie Ross reported that the new Vacation Guide has arrived and will be distributed across the region. He also noted that Del. George Edwards invited the chamber to become an ex officio member of the Adventure Sports Center International board.

Green noted that the logo created by Barry Domenick had been selected by the Garrett County Recreational Trails task force. He also recognized the fund-raising efforts by local massage therapists, who raised about $600.

Chamber staff member Deb Clatterbuck reported that the second Marketing Roundtable was held on March 4, facilitated by John Starling and Kim Scott-Carl. The group explored options of Web marketing, and elected to launch a cooperative spring advertising initiative, "Spring into Savings," that will feature coupons available on the chamber Web site.

Chamber staff member Peggy Santamaria said the Heritage Area Plan committee had completed its first phase, and had designated the entire county as a heritage area. The plan compiled by the consulting firm Urban Research & Development Corp. in cooperation with the committee outlines the significant "stories" and sites in the county. This plan will be sent to the county commissioners for approval and perhaps be submitted to the state heritage authority for recognition. The board voted to send a letter of support for the Heritage Area Plan to the county commissioners.

Guest speaker Cheryl DeBerry, Garrett County's agriculture marketing specialist, described the upcoming Agriculture & Rural Enterprises Conference on March 22 at Garrett College and invited all board members to attend.

The following new members were approved: D.C.L. HomeWorks LLC, McHenry, Jeff and Charles Gosnell, owners; Harris Pools, Deer Park, Harold Harris, owner; Café LaDonna, Oakland, Dana and LaDonna Bach, owners; Perkins Restaurant & Bakery, McHenry, Hugh Umbel, owner; Bello's Portraits, Oakland, Michael Bello, owner; Sunset Builder Inc., McHenry, Robin Welsh, owner; Circle R Ranch LLC, Oakland, Dana Schenk Richard, owner; and Adventure Sports Center Inc., McHenry, Eric Urfer, director.

Autumn Glory task force chair Asa McCain reviewed the five-year calendar of festival dates. He said he will speak with groups such as the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department and band directors to get a consensus on the proposed dates.

The board retreat is being held today, March 27, at Savage River Lodge from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m. The agenda includes discussion and action on a marketing plan, policy changes, and funding priorities. All members have been invited to attend.

A group was appointed to compile a slate of nominees for five seats on the board of directors. Jon "Smiley" Kessler will chair the committee composed of Bob Browning, Marta Schroyer, and Jerry Geisler. Directors' terms expiring this year are: Len Eiswert, Steve Green, Asa McCain, Jeff McCauley, and Hugh Umbel.

The next regular board meeting will be held Thursday, April 17, in the conference room of the Visitors Center in McHenry beginning at 8 a.m. All members are welcome to attend.

Radio FX To Host 4th Annual Easter Egg Hunt

Plans are being finalized for the fourth annual Radio FX Easter Egg Hunt, hosted by WKHJ and 92.3 The Train radio stations. The event is scheduled for Saturday, April 12, at 11 a.m. at Broadford Lake Park.

Both radio stations, along with Garrett County Community Action's Community and Emergency Services (AmeriCorps), hope to stage another successful egg hunt, said WKHJ's Pam Trickett, who noted that the event attracted over 275 egg-hunters in its second year, and last year entertained about 375 searchers.

The event is free to area children ages 2 to 12. The children will be divided into groups by age.

Trickett said the organizers are again asking local businesses and organizations for monetary, candy, or prize donations for the hunt. Manpower for the event would also be appreciated, Trickett said, adding that high school students in need of service learning hours are welcome to take part.

"Last year, we had about 2,250 hidden eggs, each containing either candy or a prize," Trickett said. "There were three $50 savings bonds, one per age category, donated by various local banks.

"We hope to build on the success of the previous three years with just as many or more young people enjoying a fun and safe Easter hunt," she continued. "Each year, we've been lucky; as the number of children participating has increased greatly, the community financial support comes in as well."

Organizers hope to host some activities before the hunt begins, she said, which will require more eggs, candy, and prizes, as well as some additional financial support. Businesspersons or members of any organization are invited to take part in the event by helping with face-painting or by handing out free items.

WKJH will broadcast from the event, and all businesses and organizations making financial donations will receive on-air sponsorship mentions on both WKHJ and 92.3. Donations checks should be made payable to WKHJ Radio, ref. Egg Hunt.

Any person interested in offering help may contact Radio FX at 301-334-4272.

Small Business Dev. Center Sets Two GC Courses

The Small Business Development Center at Garrett College has slated two short classes for next month at the college's McHenry campus.

The first course, Better Business Planning, is slated for one session only on Saturday, April 12, from 9 a.m. to 2:15 p.m. The day will include breakfast and lunch.

"Whether you are applying for a loan, or making those all important business decisions, the business plan is one of the most important tools a business owner must have," said Sue Smith of the Small Business Development Center. "This how-to course is a must for every business, or soon-to-be owner, and covers marketing, bookkeeping, accounting systems, inventory, loans, employees, pricing, insurance, taxes, and deductions."

The second course, Marketing, Advertising, and Increasing Sales, is scheduled for the evenings of Tuesday and Thursday, April 22 and 24, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

"This course covers what every new and existing business owner needs to know and understand with respect to marketing and advertising," Smith stated. "Discover how marketing and advertising your business can create a demand for your products and services; how market share can impact and increase your sales; and why market share is so important to a healthy thriving business. Whether you want to increase your sales and profit margin, or simply introduce a new product line to your business, this course is for you."

For more tuition information or to register, persons may call Smith at 301-387-3080.

"SAVVY SENIOR"

Dear Savvy Senior,

Since my husband died two years ago, I have been learning the business side of life and am looking for a little instruction. Can you please teach me about Medigap insurance? I am almost 65 years old and a friend was telling me I need to think about getting enrolled in a Medigap policy. My response was Medi-what? Also, I need some Medigap shopping tips and does Medigap allow me to keep seeing my same doctor?

MediConfused

Dear MediConfused,

Here's a medi-savvy syllabus on the Medigap basics. I hope this helps! A Medigap policy (also known as Medicare Supplement Insurance) is a health insurance policy sold by private insurance companies to fill the "gaps" (expenses not covered by Medicare) in Original Medicare Plan coverage.

There are 10 standardized Medigap plans called "A" through "J." Each plan A through J has a different set of standardized benefits. Plan A offers the least amount of benefits and Plan J offers the most benefits.

When you buy a Medigap policy, you pay a premium to the insurance company. As long as you pay your premium, a policy bought after 1990 is automatically renewed each year. This means that your coverage continues year after year as long as you pay your premium.

Savvy Reminder: Medigap policies only work with the Original Medicare Plan.

Can I keep seeing my same doctor if I buy a Medigap policy? In most cases, yes! If you are in the Original Medicare Plan and you have a Medigap policy, you can go to any doctor, hospital, or other health care provider who accepts Medicare. But, if you have the type of Medigap policy called Medicare SELECT, you must use specific hospitals and, in some cases, doctors (except in an emergency) to get your full insurance benefits.

When to buy a Medigap policy? The best time to buy a Medigap policy is during your Medigap open enrollment period, which lasts for six months and begins on the first day of the month in which you are age 65 and older, and enrolled in Medicare Part B. During this period, an insurance company cannot deny you insurance coverage, place conditions on a policy (like making you wait for coverage to start), or change the price of a policy because of past or present health problems.

Savvy Note: Insurance companies that use waiting periods for pre-existing conditions must generally shorten the period if you had other health insurance before you bought the policy.

Medigap Shopping: Only you can decide if a Medigap policy is the right kind of health insurance coverage for you. If you decide to buy a Medigap policy, shop carefully. Look for a policy that you can afford and that gives you the coverage you need most. As you shop, keep in mind that insurance companies may charge different amounts for the same Medigap policy.

Other Medigap Considerations

Contact your state insurance department to find out which insurance companies in your state offer the plan you've chosen and compare the premiums they charge. Also, check the method of rating (pricing). Policies are rated three ways: attained-age, issue-age, and community-rated. You might want to look for community-rated and issue-age-rated policies. They may be the best buy because even though they may cost you more at age 65, they'll cost you less as you get older.

Check to see whether the Medigap insurer you choose has arranged for Medicare to file your Medigap claims automatically. Automatic claims filing can save you time and headaches.

LIONS HEAR IT FROM THE JUDGE – Judge Ralph Burnett spoke about the importance of early cancer screening at a recent meeting of the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club. Burnett, who chairs the Garrett County Advisory Committee for Early Cancer Screening, spoke about the unique public/private program which unites the county's Health Department with community groups, business entities, physicians, and individuals to provide cancer screening and treatment assistance to local residents. In this effort the group has selected prostate cancer, breast cancer, skin cancer, and colon cancer for emphasis since these account for most all the cancer cases in the U.S., with the exception of lung cancer, which is very difficult to detect in its early stages. For this effort the state of Maryland has given the local Health Department its highest award for achievement. To date the Health Department and Garrett County Cancer Coalition have found resources to treat everyone screened who has tested positive. "Early screening is a form of treatment," the judge told the gathering. Lion president Robert Stockslager is shown at the right presenting Burnett with the club's certificate of appreciation.

WORKING TOGETHER – More than 100 people of all ages from the tri-state area brought information, interest, and energy to the second annual Rural Development Coalition economic conference. Hosted last Saturday by Garrett College, the forum featured a trade show with displays and demonstrations, and served as a "laboratory" for youngsters learning to run a business. While the adults discussed farming techniques, marketing, and resources, the students conducted market surveys on their products, pricing, advertising, and distribution. Whether the adults were gathering in structured seminars, brainstorming in discussion groups, or chatting in hallways there was an "upbeat feeling" and a sense that people were there because they really wanted to know more, according to Cheryl DeBerry, Garrett County's agricultural marketing specialist. In the photo above, left, Anne Sherrard, 4-H director with the Garrett County Cooperative Extension, discusses the youth projects with Liz McDowell of Elk Ridge NatureWorks. Grace Dubansky, above right, grew a bit weary but sat quietly on Dad's (Max Dubansky) lap while Paige Dopson of the RDC board led a discussion group. All smiles and energy, 4-H kids Levi Lantz and Andrea Steyer prepare to sell their products – shiny colorful folders. 4H leader Arlene Lantz encourages their efforts.

man, a member of our congregation who is a resident, with a potted plant. Ruth dressed like a shepherd, and scriptures read and hymns sung related to the shepherd theme. Sheila Southerly served as pianist. Ferne, Margaret, Sheila, and Ruth visited in the new assisted-living area and visited Marian Glotfelty, Alton Miller, and Harold Kahl following the service.

It was nice to see Marvin Beitzel, formerly of Herndon, Va., and also living in Chelsea, Okla., with son Roger and wife Sylvia for the past few years, at church the past two Sundays. He has returned to his native county and is now residing at the Cherry Hill assisted-living home on Aiken-Miller Road. When I met him at the entrance he asked me whether I remembered him. While I was competing in a three-phase horse event at Frying Pan Horse Park at Herndon, my father and I stayed with Marvin and wife Leona. They even found a neighbor who had a small barn where I could stable Little Joe overnight. But when I arrived the next morning at the stable there was no sign of Joey except for his leg bandages scattered across the lane and into the woods. I spent some anxious moments until I tracked him down. A suburban neighborhood in Northern Virginia is no place for a loose horse. Besides the chance he could do some damage to lawns or gardens, he could also get hit by a car.

Lucretia Stanton celebrated her 94th birthday with the help of 20 family members. Lunch was shared, and cake and ice cream were served in her honor. Family came from Canton, Ohio, Meyersdale, Pa., and Springfield, W.Va., to join in the celebration.

Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Buckel Jr., Chestertown, and Cathryn Buckel, York, Pa., visited Ralph and Ethel Buckel last weekend. Other recent visitors were Ferne Beachy, Cindy Stanton, and Beulah Moon. Ralph returned home from Garrett County Memorial Hospital after being a patient there several days last week.

Margie Brenneman fell outside her home recently and suffered a broken wrist.

Bittinger lost an old-time colorful character, Sonny Hare, who lost his battle with cancer last weekend. He had a small-scale, backyard car repair and body shop in Bittinger. Sonny was only 61 years old.

Ruth DiPaolo and Elaine Jacobs, Barton, returned last Friday after visiting with Betty Sacra in Partlow, Va.

Family and friends of Ida Reckner have continued to help her celebrate her 98th birthday, which was Thursday, March 20. She is grateful for the many cards, letters, phone calls, flowers, and gifts she received, for the visits by family, neighbors, and friends, and also for the quiet dinner at Penn Alps one evening last week accompanied by Jim, Donna, and Tom Glotfelty. Ida is doing well, enjoys reading and watching TV, and will be out and about working in her yard and garden when the weather improves.

MT. GLADE STAFF LEARNS HOW ADULTS LEARN – The staff of Mt. Glade Adult Day Care have spent the past several months gaining knowledge about ways to enhance adult learning under the direction of Food Stamp Nutrition Education Program (FSNEP) educator Beverly Carvell. The seven basic skills that assist adult learning were examined and discussed, and each participant delivered nutrition lessons related to whole grains, fiber, and good health. Center clients could be found each week engaging in nutrition-related activities ranging from making whole grain trail mix and cranapple crisp to examining the three main parts of a grain, selecting fiber rich meals, and identifying various types of whole grains. Upon successful completion of the course, each staff member was presented with a certificate. Shown in the front row, from the left, are Mt. Glade program director JoAnn Harsh, Lisa Weimer, RN, and Sharon Butler. In the back row are Carvell, Mabel Lewis, and Pam Glotfelty. Shoup Design

Shoup Design, an advertising/graphics/print/web development firm, has opened an office in the McHenry area – "[Shoup] wants to help you reach your customers or potential customer with advertising, design, and marketing as unique as your business," notes Jay Shoup, owner.

Shoup said the business, which has more than 20 years of combined experience, prides itself on not having "cookie cutter" designs or "turn-key" solutions.

He added that if people haven't heard of Shoup Design, that is the point: to get one's own business name out, not someone else's.

The team has worked with smaller "Mom and Pop" businesses to the Fortune 500 companies in major cities.

The products range from business cards, rack cards, design and production of massive billboards, and complete corporate identity to the most complex e-commerce site on the World Wide Web.

"By offering a wide range of solutions, you're guaranteed to get the right one for you – a solution that meets your needs, and more often than not, exceeds your expectations," said Shoup. "Our main concern is client satisfaction and delivering an excellent end product.

"Advertising and marketing doesn't have to be painful – We like to make it fun."

The Adventure Sports Center, Inc., will invite qualified Firms from those bidding on the contract to deliver an oral presentation to the ASCI Finance Committee.

Bid packages are available at the Adventure Sports Center, during regular business hours, beginning Thursday, March 20, 2003.

Questions regarding the contents of this Request should be directed to Duane Yoder, Treasurer, The Adventure Sports Center, Inc., at 301-334-9431.

The Adventure Sports Center, Inc., reserves the right to accept or reject any bid and to waive any irregularities in the best interest of ASCI.

Background

The Adventure Sports Center, Inc., is a non-profit organization under Section 501 (c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. It was established (in 1998) in the State of Maryland for the purpose of promoting, educating and facilitating participation in a wide range of adventure-based recreational activities and competitions creating a destination for fostering economic development and providing a model for communities to manage and capitalize on their intrinsic natural resource base while protecting its integrity. The organization bases its operations in McHenry, MD.

The Adventure Sports Center, Inc., operates on a January 1–December 31 fiscal year and draws upon three primary sources to fund its daily operations: a subsidy from Garrett County Government, Interest Income and funds received from the sale of property. The facilities are slated to open May 1, 2005. Several programs will be made available at that time including but not limited to the instruction and drop-in facility use for kayaking, canoeing, rafting, mountain biking, hiking, orienteering, rock climbing, snow shoeing, cross country skiing, high and low ropes course and fly fishing, swift water rescue training, special events and competitions.

At this time, ASCI has two full-time employees. It is anticipated that one or possibly two more individuals will be added in the organization's second fiscal year (FY 04). The organization is governed by a series of Committees and the Board of Directors. The Board of Directors seats 15 members.

As the organization is in its first official fiscal year of operation, an audit has not yet been performed. Currently, the accounting function and tax reporting is handled by the Garrett County Community Action Committee. The Committee has agreed to perform this role on a temporary basis only. Although this arrangement has served the organization well, ASCI is in the process of soliciting proposals from qualified firms to perform Accounting Services for our organization. Both the Community Action Committee and the newly selected Accounting firm will cooperate with the Auditor by providing access to their working papers for ASCI and discussing any significant issues relative to our audit and tax work.

Financial Status

As stated above, operating expenses are being subsidized by the Garrett County Government. Additional funds from Interest Income and the sale of property are also available to cover administrative costs.

ASCI currently utilizes one checking account that contains $25,000 - $50,000 at any given time. ASCI also maintains a CD containing approximately $2,000,000 in reserve funds.

The Community Action Committee writes an average of 20 checks per month on behalf of the Adventure Sports Center. The organization's semi-monthly payroll is processed by Community Action as well and the payroll is paid primarily through direct deposit.

Computer Equipment and Accounting Software

An accounting software program titled Fundware is currently used.

Timing

As stated above, ASCI utilizes a calendar year which ends December 31. We anticipate that we would be prepared for the audit to begin fieldwork in May 2003 and would expect the delivery of financial statements and management letter by June 30, 2003. Tax returns are expected to be delivered at least five days prior to their due date for review by management with no more than one extension requested.

Services Requested

The Adventure Sports Center, Inc., requests a bid from your firm for:

1) Consolidated audit of the financial statements for the year ending December 31, 2003;

2) Management letters containing comments and recommendations with respect to accounting and administrative controls and efficiency;

3) Review of ASCI tax returns;

Town Hall

FRIENDSVILLE

The town council met on March 20 and conducted the following business:

• The mayor and council members thanked those interested persons who attended the meeting to view ballots from the Feb. 11 municipal election. It was noted that, while no irregularities were found with the ballots, there is a need to adopt more stringent regulations for municipal elections, particularly regarding absentee ballots. The mayor and council will be consulting with county and state agencies to formulate such regulations, and these will be in place prior to the 2004 municipal election.

• Mayor Schlosnagle noted that, due to some drastic cuts in funds by the state, next year's municipal budget will be very restrictive.

• Jo Ann Ross received permission for the Friendsville Community Watch committee to hold the annual Easter egg hunt at the park on April 13, starting at 2 p.m., and the teen activity at the park two evenings a week, from 7 to 8 p.m., from April 14 until May 28.

• Problems with Adelphia Cable were discussed, and another attempt will be made to have a company representative meet with the mayor and council.

• After canvassing the business owners on Walnut Street, it was determined that the council will not pursue converting Walnut, between First and Second Avenues, to two-way traffic.

• The next strategic planning meeting for future economic development in the town will be held on Thursday, April 3, from 6 until 8 p.m. at the Friendsville Community/Senior Center. The mayor and council members encouraged all interested citizens and business owners to attend this meeting to share their views and to participate in this important process. Refreshments will be served.

The next regular council meeting is scheduled for Monday, April 7, starting at 7:30 p.m.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of my son "Dink" who died on Good Friday, April 1, 1983.

It is lonely here without you, so sad along life's way. Life does not seem the same to me, since you were called away. It broke my heart to lose you, but you did not go alone, for part of me went with you that day God called you home. They say time heals all sorrow and helps us to forget, but time so far has only proved how much I miss you yet.

Dearly loved, fondly remembered, and sadly missed.

Ground Breaking For New Library Slated Tuesday

A ground-breaking ceremony for the new Grantsville Library will be held on Friday, April 11, at 4 p.m. The event will be held at the corner of Hershberger Lane and Park Side in Grantsville.

"The construction of the new library has been made possible by the generous support of the people and businesses in the Grantsville community, the people of Garrett County, the Garrett County Board of Commissioners, the town of Grantsville, and our federal government representatives," said library director Cathy Ashby.

The Ruth Enlow Library board of trustees invites the public to the event.

The same legislation, introduced in the House by Del. George Edwards, was previously amended by the Environmental Matters Committee. The synopsis of HB 1177 now reads "abolishing the Sanitary Commission of Garrett County; requiring the county commissioners of Garrett County to govern the Sanitary District."

The House version of the bill was heard last week by the Senate Education, Health, and Environmental Affairs Committee. That panel has yet to approve the House's version.

The commissioners, with the support of the Sanitary Commission, requested the last-minute legislation in early March.

Grantsville Man Arrested On Drug Charges

A Grantsville man was arrested this week on drug charges as the result of a traffic stop on Route 40 near Route 219 north of Grantsville, according to the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force.

Christopher Wilt, 21, was charged with two counts of possession with intent to distribute cocaine, possession of marijuana, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Wilt was the passenger in the vehicle stopped by police. A search of the vehicle resulted in the recovery of suspected cocaine from Wilt, and a subsequent search of his Grantsville residence resulted in the recovery of additional suspected cocaine, suspected marijuana, and suspected drug paraphernalia.

Wilt is being held at the Garrett County Jail on $25,000 bond.

Task force investigators were assisted by uniform members of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

The case remains under investigation, with additional arrests pending, police said.

A PIECE OF OAKLAND HISTORY COMES DOWN – The dismantling of a historic bit of masonry in Oakland is taking place this week. The tall chimney of the former Fireside/PC's/Gandy Dancer/Shanghai restaurants is being pulled down, reluctantly, by order of the town of Oakland. It has stood for nine years as nearly the last vestige of a building damaged by a devastating fire in February 1994. After attempting for years to somehow refurbish the burned out building, the town officials were finally forced to remove the high chimney because of safety concerns. The fireplace itself is apparently not being razed, with the hope that whatever construction might take place on the lot will include the hearth. Built in 1897, the chimney was reportedly at that time the tallest chimney in all the East. The fireplace, which is flanked on either side by Dutch ovens, required 100 bags of hand-mixed cement for its foundation alone. H&H Construction is handling the dismantling, with the assistance of Allegheny Welding and Machine. See additional photos in this section. Photo by John McEwen.

State Park Trails Clogged, Waterlogged After Snow, Ice

by Justin Palk
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — This year's heavy winter banished Maryland's two-year-old drought, but it swept through so ferociously that it might be fall before the park service cleans up all the fallen trees and waterlogged trails.

Ice storms early in the winter felled trees throughout western Maryland, closing more than a third of the 16-mile Savage River Trail in Garrett County, and rain and melting snow have increased the risk of erosion in central Maryland parks, officials said.

Although the storms damaged trees throughout the forest, park staff found the worst damage where the trail follows the ridgeline, and the exposed trees were split or even uprooted by thick layers of ice, said Mike Gregory, area manager for the Savage River Complex.

"[Visitors should] realize that for right now, until we get the debris cleaned up, [walking the trail] is going to be a challenge and it could be easy to lose track of the trail," Gregory said.

Farther south, at Deep Creek Lake State Park, more than 600 trees were damaged in and around the campground, said Chris Anderson, western regional manager for the State Forest and Park Service.

"If you go in the campground, everything looks like minor damage, but you just go a few feet higher on the hillside, you see trees fallen over, broken tops — devastation," Anderson said.

The cleanup job will range from sweeping and picking up broken boughs, to heavier work with bow saws and chain saws for the bigger pieces of fallen timber, Gregory said.

In central Maryland, the problem comes from the more than 30 inches of melting snow the winter left behind, and the rain brought by the spring, leaving many trails flooded in places, said Gary Burnett, Patapsco Valley State Park manager.

Flooded trails pose two problems — erosion and an increased chance of slip-and-fall-type accidents — both of which are exacerbated by increased traffic, said Steve McCoy, chief of interpretive services for the State Forest and Park Service.

"We've got a lot of people with cabin fever, and the weather's been pretty much gorgeous ... so we're seeing many more people coming out to the parks," McCoy said. Travel fears caused by the war may also be pushing up park attendance, he said.

Park visitors should plan ahead, wear proper footwear, talk to staff before hitting the trails, and pay attention when they're walking around, McCoy said.

Rather than walking around flooded or blocked sections of the path, the park service is asking visitors to choose clear trails in order to prevent the de facto widening of the trails, Burnett said.

MLP Receives Funding To Begin Sewer System Evaluation, Rehab

Governor Robert L. Ehrlich announced Board of Public Works approval this week of $100,000 in supplemental assistance for Mountain Lake Park to begin rehabilitation work on its wastewater collection system.

"This project will help identify and remove major sources of infiltration and inflow in the town's wastewater collection system," Ehrlich said. "Upon completion, the overall integrity of the system will be improved, raw sewage overflows will be prevented, and the water quality of the Trout Run River will be better protected."

The project involves an engineering evaluation of the town's sewage collection system, including cleaning, televising, and smoking tests, which will re-sult in the repair and/or replacement of defective sewer lines and manholes, according to the Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE).

"The town of Mountain Lake Park would like to express its thanks and gratitude to all persons and agencies involved in helping to improve its services," said Mayor Britten L. Martin Jr.

The total cost of the project is $257,300, of which $157,300 is the local share that will be financed through the state revolving load fund administered by the MDE.

Design plans for the job are expected to be complete later this summer, with construction beginning by the end of they year, weather permitting.

Towns' Roads Budgets Face Major Changes

A "double whammy" of changes to the way revenues are distributed to towns could have a major impact on Garrett County municipalities, according to municipal assistance coordinator Mike Mullan. The first is a proposed change in the way state funds are distributed to local municipalities across Maryland, and the second is a correction to the way the county in turn distributes those funds.

"If these changes go through, every town in the county will see a change in its road funding," Mullan said as he stressed the state formula change is still in the proposal stage at this point.

The impact on local towns will be two-pronged. The first change, proposed by Governor Robert Erhlich as he deals with a looming state budget deficit, would change the way revenue from the state gasoline tax is distributed. Under the old formula, the gasoline tax revenue was divided up with 70 percent going into the Highway Trust Fund and the remaining 30 percent going to counties and municipalities. Erhlich is proposing that the 70-30 split be changed to a 75-25 split over the next two years, which would result in an approximate $1.5 million reduction for Garrett County as a whole, Mullan said.

That tentative change could come at the same time the county is planning to correct a distribution error, amounting to a "double whammy" according to Mullan. It was discovered earlier this year that for decades the county has been distributing its roads funding to the towns in an incorrect fashion, he explained. "The county's formula is based on the number of roadway miles a town maintains within its boundaries and the number of vehicles that are registered to addresses within that locale. To sum up the error, more money was going to incorporated towns than should have been, and less was going to unincorporated towns than should have been.

"The larger incorporated towns benefited the most from this error, so when this adjustment is made those who received more, such as Grantsville, Friendsville, and Accident, will receive less, and it could be a double whammy because the gasoline tax revenue distribution could change this year as well," Mullan stated. "Oakland, which gets the

Kitzmiller Man Gets 3 Years For Possession

A 20-year-old Kitzmiller man pleaded guilty last week in Garrett County Circuit Court to possession with intent to distribute marijuana. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Justin David Michaels to three years at the Division of Corrections and fined him $500.

Of that sentence, 18 months were suspended, and Michaels will serve the remainder of the term in the Garrett County Jail. Following his release, he will be on supervised probation for two years. Related charges against Michaels were dismissed upon his plea.

According to State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch, Michaels was arrested and charged by Maryland State Police last August in the parking lot of the Garrett County Fairgrounds. Officers approached Michaels and several others to investigate suspicious activity and could smell the odor of burnt marijuana around the group.

After hearing an object hit the ground, officers found a plastic bag with approximately 1½ ounces of marijuana, which Michaels later admitted was his. While placing him under arrest, officers searched Michaels and found a butterfly knife in his possession. That knife has been seized and forfeited to the state as contraband, said Thayer Welch.

Polly Hanst To Be Inducted Into Nat'l 4-H Hall Of Fame

Pauline Johnson (Polly) Hanst, a former West Virginia University Extension Service agent, 4-H camp leader, and volunteer, will be inducted into the National 4-H Hall of Fame Friday, April 4, at the National 4-H Center in Chevy Chase.

Hanst, 96, is being honored for contributing more than 70 years of professional and volunteer service to the 4-H program. She is planning to attend the ceremony. She will also be among the first members of the new West Virginia 4-H Hall of Fame to be inducted on Saturday, May 31, at Jackson's Mill.

After serving as an Extension agent in Ritchie County, Hanst became the state 4-H girls' club agent in 1932 and helped lead the state girls' 4-H camp. In 1944, she helped found the West Virginia 4-H Older Members' Conference (OMC), which focuses on leadership development. She has been a volunteer leader at nearly every OMC since.

She was one of the first two West Virginians honored with the National 4-H Alumni Award, which she received in 1953. She has also been inducted into WVU's Order of Vandalia, which recognizes state citizens for their service to the school and the state.

"We are pleased to share in this national recognition of one of our state's outstanding 4-H youth leaders," said Larry Cote, WVU associate provost for Extension and Public Service. "Polly's contributions have provided thousands of West Virginia youths with a solid foundation to build outstanding leadership and character."

As a young woman, Hanst wrote a column for the first women's section in the Farm Journal magazine, Farmer's Wife, which focused on the needs and concerns of farm women and their families. She worked as an associate editor for the publication.

A Braxton County, W.Va., native, Hanst resided for 70 years in Oakland. She established a

Grantsville Man Killed In Head-On Crash Friday

A Grantsville man was killed Friday when his car was struck head-on by another vehicle traveling in the wrong direction on Interstate 68, according to Maryland State Police troopers stationed at the McHenry barrack.

Stanley Edward Beitzel, 36, died at the scene of the 4:55 p.m. crash on Interstate 68 just east of Chestnut Ridge Road after sustaining massive head and chest injuries in the crash. His 1998 Oldsmobile Cutlass was struck head-on by a 1994 Chevrolet Cavalier operated by Doris Edna Frazee, 75, Friendsville. According to police accounts, Frazee was traveling eastbound in the westbound fast lane of I-68 when, just as she crested the hill immediately east of Chestnut Ridge Road, her vehicle slammed into Beitzel's car. A third vehicle, a 1995 Mercury Sable that was following Beitzel's Oldsmobile, slammed into the back of the Cutlass.

Frazee was flown by MSP helicopter Trooper 5 to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where she remains hospitalized in stable condition. The Mercury's occupants, Robert Paul Hartman Jr., 35, and Julie Ann Hartman, 42, both of Burlington, W.Va., were both transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Cumberland Memorial.

Personnel at both the Garrett County Emergency Management Office and the state police barrack reported receiving numerous cell phone calls just prior to the accident, and had dispatched police cruisers to try to locate the vehicle traveling the wrong direction on the Interstate.

Charges may be pending against Frazee, police said, although the case remains under investigation.

Beitzel's obituary appears on Page A-6.

Board Of Ed. Meeting Set

The Garrett County Board of Education will hold its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, April 8, beginning at 3 p.m. with the annual presentation by student councils.

During public session, which begins at 5:30 p.m., action items will include board policy on graduation requirements, personnel salary schedules and retiree insurance, a professional leave request, a field trip, the 2003-2004 school calendar, and a resolution to recognize Food and Nutrition Personnel Day on May 9.

Additional agenda items will include a report on the federal programs audit for FY 2002, an update on the Special Education Staffing Plan, the 2002 School Readiness data, proposed amendments to preventing sexual harassment procedures, and upcoming events.

Time is set aside at 4 and 7 p.m. for public comment and participation on any topic. The board will meet in closed session from 4:05 until 5:30 p.m., and reconvene in open session immediately thereafter.

The public is invited to attend.

Rash Of Thefts Being Probed By State Police

A string of thefts from numerous vehicles parked in Accident and Grantsville, and an additional theft from a vehicle parked at a condominium complex near Thayerville, are being investigated by the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police. The public's assistance in solving the crimes is being sought by state troopers, who said that the thefts, which were all reported on Monday, March 31, were each likely being carried out by the same perpetrator(s).

"Apparently two suspects checked car doors until they found unlocked vehicles," an MSP spokesman stated. "In one instance a description was obtained of two males driving a dark-colored Oldsmobile Bravada." When the subjects found an unlocked vehicle, they would steal mainly money, stereo equipment, and tools, and police have reminded citizens to keep their vehicles locked and valuables out of plain view.

Investigators are requesting citizens who may have information about these incidents contact the barrack at 301-387-1101 or 301-895-1101. Caller anonymity is guaranteed.

Midland Man Gets One Year For DUI Charge

A Midland man pleaded guilty recently in Garrett County Circuit Court to DUI and possession of marijuana. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Roger Allan Darr to one year in the Garrett County Jail for the DUI count, with all but 90 days suspended, and fined him $500.

For the possession count, Darr was sentenced to 90 days in the jail, which will run concurrently with the first sentence, and fined $200. Following his release, he will be on supervised probation for one year.

Darr, 41, was charged by Maryland State Police in July 2002. According to an MSP report, a trooper clocked Darr driving his 1998 Chevrolet Beretta 46 m.p.h. in a 35 m.p.h. zone on New Germany Road. When the trooper stopped Darr and asked for his driver's license, he smelled alcohol and heard Darr's slurred speech.

After failing a sobriety test, Darr was placed under arrest. A search of Darr revealed a plastic baggie of marijuana and drug paraphernalia in his pockets.

INGENUITY AND ELBOW GREASE were both required in the dismantling of the tall stone chimney that was once part of the small-town skyline meeting guests who arrived in Oakland by train. Having become a safety hazard, the 1897 chimney had to come down this week. The task was easier said than done. Davey Hinebaugh of H&H Construction is pictured in the first photo as he attempts to break apart the century-old stonework from an awkward angle inside a crane bucket. He worked for several hours in this position, chipping away at the heavy stone. For the complete removal, however, the angle inside the bucket proved to be insufficient. Davey, his father, Dave Hinebaugh, and George and Matt Scheffel of Allegheny Welding and Machine put their heads together to figure out another way. This involved the suspension of worker Ebby Weimer of H&H, shown at center and at right. Secured to the Scheffels' crane, Weimer was armed with a jackhammer and other demolition equipment. He was able to finally break up the stubborn chimney top, which consisted of solid concrete and stone. The going was easier after that initial success, the workers said. The town officials said they hope to preserve the actual fireplace, with it perhaps being the focal point of any future building on the town-owned site. Photos by John McEwen.

Teens Handed Drug Charges After MSP Stop

A pair of Oakland juveniles were charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance yesterday after a traffic stop near Friendsville, according to Maryland State Police troopers stationed at the McHenry barrack.

At approximately 5:25 p.m. a vehicle was stopped for speeding on Friendsville Road at Interstate 68. When a strong burning odor was noted emanating from the vehicle, a search ensued that resulted in the discovery of suspected marijuana. Troopers recovered a small plastic bag of suspected marijuana from the driver's pants pocket, and a homemade smoking pipe and rolling papers were located in the car.

The 17- and 16-year-old female occupants of the vehicle were each charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia before being released to the custody of their parents.

DUI ARREST

Shawn Lee Gittere, 29, of Oakland was stopped by state troopers along Bittinger Road south of Grantsville early Saturday morning and subsequently arrested for driving while under the influence (DUI).

Maryland Gains Approval For Federal School Performance Testing

by Kristin Sette
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Maryland became the seventh state Tuesday to gain federal approval for its plan to track student progress under the No Child Left Behind Act, the federal landmark law that holds schools accountable for students' success. The move means students statewide will be required to take new tests designed to track yearly progress as early as next year, with the ultimate goal of having every student proficient in reading and mathematics by 2014.

Despite the challenges that could come with stricter accountability standards, the approval brought relief to officials at the state Department of Education, who had submitted a proposal to the federal government Jan. 31. U.S. Secretary of Education Rod Paige, flanked by Gov. Robert Ehrlich and state Schools Superintendent Nancy Grasmick, made the announcement Tuesday morning at Hillsmere Elementary School in Annapolis.

"Today is really a victory for the children of Maryland, to ensure that we have an accountability plan and that no child will fall beneath the crack," Grasmick said.

Maryland's plan, a thick booklet of mathematical formulas, percentages and rules for measuring student performance, divides school populations into a variety of "subgroups": racial and ethnic categories, students receiving free and reduced meals, special education students, and children with limited English proficiency. The plan requires each "subgroup" to perform at the minimum level.

The state plan also requires 95 percent participation on Maryland State Assessments, which are new tests to be given to students in grades 3 through 8 and 10. The test, which replaces the Maryland School Performance Assessment Program, was first given last month. A baseline for measuring adequate yearly progress will be set this summer from results of the new tests.

State educators have acknowledged many schools could face an uphill battle when it comes to meeting the new mandates, because even one underperforming "subgroup" could alter a school's progress.

But Grasmick pointed to Hillsmere, a school that has demonstrated improvement is possible. In 1997, the school of 372 students showed a 33-point achievement gap between black and white students at the third-grade level, Grasmick said. By 2002, the gap shrunk to fewer than 12 points.

"In this school, they have worked very hard in the area of reading," she said. "It's a centerpiece of No Child Left Behind."

Paige praised Maryland officials for scrapping their previous testing methods and instituting the Maryland State Assessments, which were designed to meet the federal mandates.

Other states that have gained federal approval — New York, Massachusetts, Colorado, Indiana, Ohio, and Mississippi — had accountability plans "that were pretty close to the tenets of the law," Paige said. "I think Maryland reorganized its entire accountability system to meet the components of [No Child Left Behind]."

"It closes the circle," Ehrlich said, "because it involves a bill that I got to vote on as a member of Congress."

Nat'l Public Health Week Noted, Focus To Be On Obesity Dilemma

Public health officials across the United States are using National Public Health Week, April 7-13, to call attention to the prevalence of overweight and obesity among Americans. The Garrett County Health Department is joining in this effort by working to alert local residents to the dangers of being overweight, and by offering solutions.

Public health professionals warn that the number of Americans suffering from overweight or obesity is steadily increasing at epidemic proportions and immediate intervention is critical to the health of the country.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), approximately 127 million adults in America are overweight, 60 million are obese, and 9 million are severely obese. Childhood obesity has reached its highest level in 30 years.

"The leading causes of overweight and obesity in the United States are inactivity and poor eating habits," said American Public Health Association executive director Georges Benjamin, MD, FACP. "This is largely a preventable epidemic, but more resources are needed. Healthy eating and active living should be priorities for this nation."

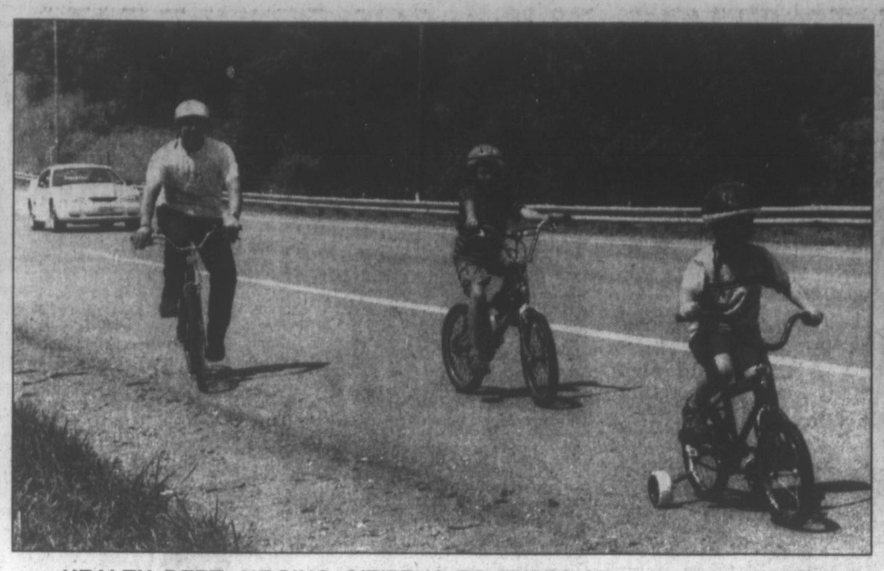
Americans are less active than ever before. The rate of obesity has increased in all 50 states. In Maryland the percentage rose from 11.2 percent in 1991 to 19.5 percent in 2000.

"We need to call attention to this life-threatening epidemic," said Rodney Glotfelty, Garrett County health officer. "We will continue to promote healthy lifestyles and physical activity. We also hope to begin a program focusing attention on obesity and its complications. The number of persons with Type 2 diabetes is on the increase in our county. This is largely due to poor diet and a sedentary lifestyle."

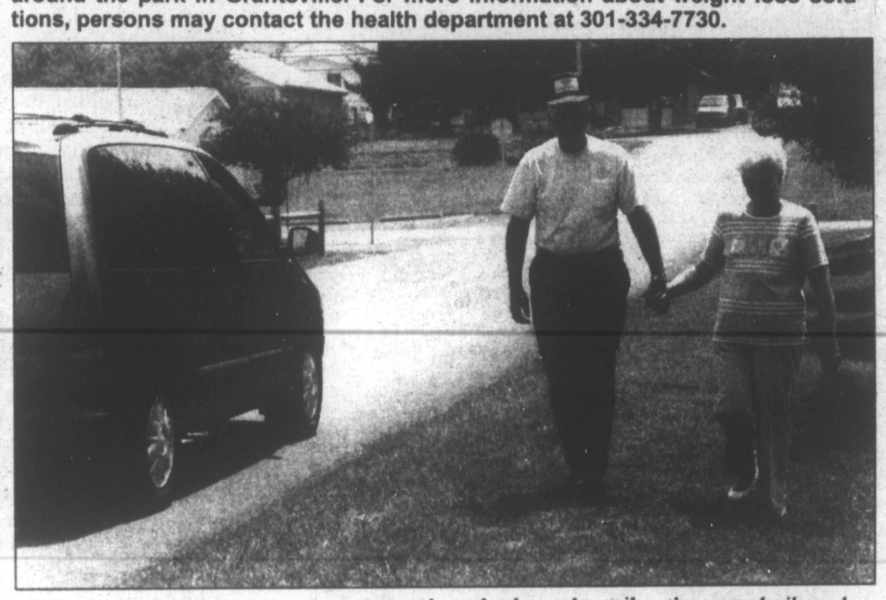
Nationally, 300,000 people are dying every year as a result of weight-related risk factors. For National Public Health Week, the health department has planned several events to promote physical activity, encourage healthy eating habits, and heighten awareness of the health risks associated with being overweight or obese.

A walking program will be held at the Southern High School track from 12 to 1 p.m., April 8-14. Participants will be registered for a prize drawing.

Outreach workers will visit senior meal sites throughout the week and exercise with interested seniors. Participants will be registered for a prize drawing.



HEALTH DEPT. URGING CITIZENS TO EXERCISE – As part of National Public Health Week, April 7-13, the Garrett County Health Department will be promoting healthy lifestyles for all local citizens, especially the many residents who are overweight or obese. The trend toward obesity continues to grow throughout the United States, and the nation's health organizations are making an effort to alert the public to the many dangers of being overweight. In the photo above, Sam Moon and sons Kristofer and Kyle demonstrate the fun of bicycling, especially as a family activity. All bikers should use the precautions being utilized by the Moons, such as wearing helmets and traveling with traffic along the roadway. Walking is another excellent way to exercise, demonstrated in the photo below by Bill and Gloria Martin as they take a brisk walk around the park in Grantsville. For more information about weight loss solutions, persons may contact the health department at 301-334-7730.



NATIONAL PUBLIC HEALTH WEEK PROCLAIMED – Garrett County Health Department personnel joined the Garrett County Commissioners in proclaiming April 7-13 as National Public Health Week in Garrett County. International Buffet Set At Garrett Coll.

An International Buffet is slated for Sunday, April 13, from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. (or until food runs out), in the Lakers' Café of Garrett College. Student members of the college's International Club are planning the event, the organization's major fund-raiser of the year.

The menu will feature a variety of foods prepared by club members who come from Estonia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone, and the United States, and other international dishes will be donated by members of Garrett College's Business Club, faculty, and staff, students from Frostburg State University and the FSU Center for International Education, the Garrett County chapter of the American Association of University Women, and local restaurants such as BumBle Q's and Will O' the Wisp.

Other restaurants, food vendors, or individuals interested in participating by donating food or selling tickets may call GC coordinator of Global Education Darlene Preston at 301-387-3010 for further information.

The food will be served buffet style, with place cards identifying each dish, its native country, and English translation. Dishes such as French coc au vin, fried Indian bread, Slovic holupki, salad olivze, and Belgian cookies will be served along with other foods from France, India, Estonia, Germany, Italy, Slovenia, Poland, Mexico, Africa, and native America. The International Club will also be selling its own International Buffet recipe booklet.

Members of the club plan to use proceeds from the International Buffet to help fund a trip to the Richmond, Va., area later this year, according to Preston.

"We were very pleased with the response to last year's event," she said. "Over 80 people attended, and they encouraged us to do it again this year."

Tickets for the International Buffet are $7 for adults, $5 for Garrett College students, and $3.50 for children 12 and under. Tickets are available at BumBle Q's and Pine Lodge Steakhouse in McHenry, Hilltop Restaurant in Grantsville, S&S Market in Friendsville, Will O' the Wisp and Arrowhead at Deep Creek Lake, and Get-N-Go in Oakland. Persons who wish to reserve tickets with a credit card may call Preston at the number listed above.

Clarification

An article in last week's edition of The Republican concerning the two Swanton men allegedly racing along Maryland Highway should have reported the two men were given citations, not arrested.

GCSO Make Numerous DUI Arrests

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office made numerous drunk driving arrests this past week.

Ray Shillingburg, 44, Oakland, was arrested after deputies responded to White Church Road in reference to a call of a subject revving his car engine in the driveway and causing a disturbance. According to police, when they arrived Shillingburg was behind the wheel of his 1995 Dodge truck, and failed field sobriety tests.

He was arrested and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI) and driving while impaired (DWI).

Shillingburg was released from the Garrett County Detention Center after posting bond, police said.

In the early morning hours of last Friday, deputies stopped a 1993 GMC truck for an equipment violation on Garrett Highway near Lake Shore Drive.

The driver, Nicholas Edward Wolf, 22, Oakland, failed a sobriety test, and was arrested and charged with DUI, DUI per se, DWI, and negligent driving.

In another incident, deputies stopped a 1991 Ford passenger car on Garrett Highway near Sand Flat Road after observing it veer off the roadway, cross the center line, and nearly strike the guardrail and a mailbox, police said.

Wolf was released from jail after posting bond, according to a jail spokesperson.

Jonathan Daniel Britner, 23, Corinth, W.Va., failed field sobriety tests, and was arrested and charged with two DWI, DUI, negligent driving, and failure to drive right of center.

Britner was released from the jail after posting bond, according to a jail spokesperson.

Pasadena Man's Malicious Burning Charge Dismissed

Charges involving the burning of a stolen vehicle against a Pasadena man were dismissed last week in Garrett County Circuit Court. Jason Lee Disney, 19, has pleaded guilty, however, to related felony theft charges in Anne Arundel County, explained State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch.

Disney was charged by the State Fire Marshal's Office with malicious burning of a Ford F650 truck, which was found in southern Garrett County last June. The vehicle had been stolen that weekend from a construction company in Anne Arundel County, along with a trailer and backhoe.

Those items were later recovered in Preston County, W.Va., following a joint investigation by officers with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation, Garrett County Sheriff's Office, and Preston County, Sheriff's Office, according to the state's attorney.

Two Amazing Women...

Two unrelated events this week involving two women, one local and one not so local, warrant comment on the incredible strength, tenacity, and courage that is often demonstrated by the members of what is considered the "fairer" sex. One of the women was 91 years old, the other is just 19. Both were/are U.S. Army veterans.

The local woman to whom we are referring is Louise Harvey, a resident of Friendsville who died this week in the VA hospital in Martinsburg.

Mrs. Harvey served gallantly as an army nurse in Europe during World War II. She was the first registered nurse in the nation to volunteer through the American Red Cross to serve during the war, and was ultimately commissioned a first lieutenant.

After an honorable discharge, Louise spent the next 60-plus years of her life working tirelessly as an advocate for the Disabled American Veterans and for those with mental illness. Many of our readers "know" her through her hundreds of letters to the editor of this newspaper over the years, letters which continued up until just recently when only the deterioration of her health finally forced her to stop.

Despite her advanced age and some physical disabilities, Louise was almost always in attendance at public meetings, often out late at night and driving many miles, continuing to push and push hard for services for the mentally ill, disabled veterans, and various other groups of people in need. She was so passionate in her quest that she was often moved to tears when she spoke on their behalf. Even those who disagreed with her suggestions and ideas had great admiration for her because of her relentless, unselfish work for the benefit of others.

The local Harvey House in Oakland, which provides assistance to the mentally disabled, was appropriately named in her honor, and now, in her ~~memory~~.

The not-so-local woman to whom we refer is Pfc. Jessica Lynch of West Virginia, the POW who was rescued Tuesday night in Iraq after enduring an absolutely nightmarish ordeal. Details of her actions just prior to being captured were coming to light this morning, indicating that this was nothing close to a case of a young woman just throwing down her weapon and quickly giving in to her captors. As her comrades were being slaughtered, and while she lay injured herself, she evidently continued to fire her rifle at the enemy until it was empty of ammunition. She had gunshot wounds, her legs were broken, her arm was injured, and she was reportedly stabbed with a knife. She ended up in a "hospital" where she lay for the next eight days with no food. Death undoubtedly would have been welcome, but she never gave up. She's only 19 years old.

Strength. Courage. Tenacity. These two women have demonstrated all three far beyond what might be considered humanly possible, and for that, they deserve our utmost admiration, respect, and appreciation.

OUR TRIUMPHANT RETURN TO SMUGNESS

We are back in the saddle again. Yes indeed. We can once again smile a smug smile when some unwitting visitor says, "What is winter like in Garrett County?" For several years, we had to admit that it really wasn't that bad. An occasional storm, upwards of 90 or 100 inches of snow per season. Big deal. But hey, we're back.

We can tell our stories, all with a sort of knowing air about us. We have license to roll our eyes at Marylanders from anywhere east of the Garrett-Allegany county line during discussions of wintertime storms because our mountaintop home is like a different planet. The actual total of snow inches is a point to debate around here, as our own weather recorders have come up with radically different amounts. Webers in Oakland and Hickory Environmental Center in Accident report around 156, while the State Highway recorders say 232. Apparently, a scientific method of moisture collection is used by Webers and Hickory, while the highway folks use another method. But whatever way you want to figure it, the fact remains that we were bombarded this year, no question. Our snow-blowers (or children with shovels) were given the workout of their lives, and a snow storm, regarded just a few months ago as an exciting and fun thing, now causes much moaning and gnashing of teeth.

This weekend's 10-inch dumping was especially rude, for several reasons. First, the temps were almost summery on Friday. The boys wanted me to dig out their shorts from the summer clothes stash, and they attempted to go barefoot. I stopped that, but I do admit that the air smelled like spring and I, too, felt light and breezy. The water was coursing down the street in a frantic rush, and the sky was windswept clean and blue. My daffodils were reaching for the sun, with buds fat and ready to open. Ahh. Spring. Not.

The rudeness was compounded by the fact that no weather forecast I heard said anything about multiple inches. I heard such things as "flurries," a "dusting," and even "1 to 3 inches." No one said anything about a near butt-dragger. So when I got up Sunday morning to trip over our kitten in my regular a.m. fashion, I did a double take at the view out the window. Everything was white, white, white. I really had trouble comprehending it for a second. But there is was, and more was falling. All day it came down, and more on Monday. A dusting, my big behind.

But it does give us that license. For a few years, we were sort of embarrassed by our winters. All our big talk and our reputation of being so hardy and able — well, it really didn't fit us. In fact, some of us started wondering if we had just imagined all those hard winters when we were growing up. Did they just seem harsh? Or is the globe really heating up like a microwave and changing weather patterns forever? Are the days of a white ground from Thanksgiving to Easter all over? This year answered that one for us, and how. We really have had almost constant ground cover, i.e. snow, from around Turkey Day up until recently. And I don't doubt that we will see more of the now dreaded white stuff before we light our sparklers on July 4th.

But at least we can be smug again. Whew. In recent years, we would get a little snow, and newcomers would say, "Wow, this place really does have winter weather, huh?" and they'd pound their hands together like they were cold or something. And we would blush and say, "Aw, gee, this id'int any winter. Why, when I was little, we had to cave our way to Sunday School. This little piddly snow is nothin'." And we'd take off our coats just to show them how balmy it really was. It was just embarrassing. But any newcomers this year certainly have had no question about how harsh a winter can be. In fact, they will probably think next year is a walk in the park compared to this, because surely we will now experience more and more mild years for a while, as seems to be the trend.

So, welcome back, Garrett Countians. We are hardy once again. We are brave and long-suffering. We again are making visitors scratch their heads and ask, "Why the heck would you choose to live here in the winter?" We can tell stories like the one I heard at Farmers' Market recently. The cashier said her father always tells the tale that he cut three trees down in the middle of winter. "And in the spring," he says, "I had three seven-foot stumps in my yard."

Ah, Garrett County, I love ya. Snow and ice, blue sky and cloud-poking trees. You're my home and I wouldn't trade you. But let's keep the temps up some now, okay?

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter in response to the two cartoons in the 3/13/03 issue of The Republican. To say the least, I was saddened and appalled at the liberal, anti-Christian attitude displayed in both cartoons.

First of all, President Bush is a born-again Christian and would have nothing to do with voodoo. I'm sure he asks Jesus what to do and would wear a WWJD bracelet, nothing like these two cartoons depict.

President Bush has asked the American people to pray for him and America, daily, and we should be lifting him up, espcecially now, rather than attacking his good character.

I was raised in Grantsville and have looked forward to keeping in touch with Garrett County through your paper, since our move in 1987. But, I don't need to pay for this type of garbage. This may be my last subscription to your paper.

Sincerely,
Nancy Durst
Harmony, Pa.

To the Editor:

Thank you for printing the heartfelt thoughts of longtime Deep Creek Lake supporter Jack Rhode. It's a credit to The Republican for permitting the truth to be heard in a real estate, developer-driven area that Deep Creek has become.

I have been in love with the area for many years as well, and it makes me sad to see the trees come down and the "mini hotels" go up. It also angers me every time an expensive boat goes by and its occupants thoughtlessly toss their cigarette butts into my beautiful lake. A longtime resident once told me, "They will never pollute this lake no matter how hard they try because it's spring fed." I'm sure the old-timer who said that in 1981 would be horrified at the development that is taking place today.

Just last summer a lake resident was reminiscing about boating back in the '50s and leaning over the side with a tin cup and taking a drink of clean water. Unthinkable today!

Deep Creek Lake is still one of the most beautiful places in the USA. If the greed and pollution win, the million-dollar "mini hotels" will be worthless.

Larry Gerson
Deep Creek Lake

To the Editor:

Back in 1996 I wrote a letter that you published questioning the long-term results from the widespread use of "melting agents," including salt, by the State Highway Dept. in Garrett County. If anything, it seems to me that the last seven years have brought many people to the point where they expect the roads to be cleared almost immediately of anything that might change their driving habits, without any thought of the environmental trade-off involved.

These days, after the first skiff of snow lands in the fall, many state highways are "chalk white," but it seems that few people realize that up until the mid 1980s salt was rarely used on any of our roads here in Garrett County. I know because back than I drove up to the other side of Mount Storm lake to work every day for many years. I missed exactly one day's work because of the weather in all that time, and by the way, I've never owned a four-wheel-drive vehicle. In the winter I would leave home as much as an hour earlier and take my time. Most days I never "spun a wheel." I don't recall any catastrophes. Most people know slick roads when they see 'em, and soon learn to drive accordingly.

As I pointed out back in '96, unlike the rest of the state which has an occasional snow storm, we have many times more "bad weather" days each winter when our roads need to be plowed and treated with something. It's interesting that the town of Oakland is not allowed to put the snow they clean from along the streets into the river anymore, but those chemicals that they're afraid would pollute the stream are spread all winter long not very far from many citizens' water wells. Once thrown off the truck most of them have only one way to go, and that's down. And what's down there? For most of us in Garrett County, it's our drinking water!

It's almost amusing to observe the folks who are so concerned about the windmills on some distant hillside, which happens to be private property, by the way, creating "visual pollution," while hardly anyone seems to realize or care that the so-called "demand" for clear highways to speed on all winter long is surely going to cause all of us to eventually lose something we can't replace, and must have to live: our pure drinking water!

So I say "no" to the County Roads Dept. using this method to melt snow, and I think the use of "snow melters" should be closely monitored and reduced as much as possible before any more irreversible damage is done to the ground water.

Mtn. Lake Park

To The Editor:

My son Bob joined the U.S. Air Force in 1991. Even though I disagreed with his decision, I supported him because I had raised him to be independent, and this was his career choice. Today, I am still supportive of his decision. I have not seen him in over one year and I miss him very much. He has a father, a brother, a wife, and a son who miss him as much as I do. He has a large extended family who miss him.

I have heard so many people expressing their opinions either in favor of or against the war we are now involved in, and I respect their right to freedom of speech. Then I think, my son, too, respects their right to freedom of speech. Our military forces are fighting and dying for our freedom of speech and for our freedom to be a democratic nation. Therefore, we need to support them 100%. From a mother's prospective, I would never want my son involved in any situation where he could be injured or killed. However, when the decision to go to war was made, I did not receive a phone call asking me what I thought. Those in authority over me made that decision. My opinion about going to war or not going to war did not stop it from happening.

At this point in time, whether you agree or disagree has no impact. You can't turn back the hand of time and say the war didn't start. It is here. Now, the question is, what can I do to help? You can pray. This is the most important thing to do. You can send cards or letters to our troops. You can put an American flag on your car or in your window. You can place a yellow ribbon on your mail box or front door. Everyone can do something to show they care.

My church, the Loch Lynn Church of God, has collected photographs of men and women in the military and they pray for them every day. "He's Alive Radio" has also collected photographs and has a wall of prayer, and they pray for our military every day. I am not sure what other area churches are doing, but I'm sure they are praying. There is power in prayer. There is power in united prayer. We are one nation under God, so let's act that way. Stop whining and complaining, and just pray.

To the Editor:

While I am not a full-time resident of McHenry, I am concerned about the future of the county and the direction it takes about future expansion. I like the quaintness and friendliness of the county. That is why I built a home here. I was rather saddened to learn that the Fair Board has decided not to support the proposed exhibit/trade hall that would have been placed at the fairgrounds.

This facility could be a boon to future events in the county to promote local events, as well as those designed to lure visitors. The site provides parking, other buildings in case of the need to expand an event, and it is centrally located near the "tourist" attractions the county is known for. To place this facility in another location, I feel, would be detrimental for its operation and would not be an asset to the county.

I know a lot of planning and thought went into this project long before funding was requested. I would hope that the Fair Board and the county commissioners would re-think these recent decisions, go back to the original plan, and build the facility at the fairgrounds. With the proper management, this facility could bring in needed funds to improve the fairgrounds overall, and give the county much additional revenue I am sure they could use to keep the tax rate from rising.

Respectfully,
John L. Grumbach

"All towns will be affected, and each is very concerned about the possible impact on their services," said Mullan. "They're all evaluating their approaches to these proposed changes, and some could be looking at slight increases in taxes and fees and/or budget cuts in order to cover their expected shortfalls.

Pending final approval by the House, Senate, and governor, the legislation becomes effective on July 1.

Another bill, SB 277, passed unanimously in both the House and the Senate. The legislation would allow the commissioners to dispose of surplus real property by private negotiation if a public sale for the property fails to yield any bids.

Pending the governor's signature, the legislation becomes effective Oct. 1.

Slots Remain Alive Despite House Panel's Lethal Shot

by Dan Genz
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – A House panel dumped Gov. Robert Ehrlich's slot machine plan with a 16-5 vote Wednesday, but the issue is far from dead for the year. With eight television cameras recording the moment, the House Ways and Means Committee clobbered Ehrlich's top legislative priority to legalize 11,500 slot machines at four race tracks.

But slots proponents refused to say die, offering other avenues to keep the machines alive. They can slip the governor's bill into another piece of slots legislation and bring it back to the committee, or use the slots plan authored by Appropriations Committee chairman Howard P. Rawlings, D-Baltimore, instead of Ehrlich's.

"We will continue working on the bill on a daily basis," said Clarence Davis, D-Baltimore, chairman of the subcommittee that reviews such issues.

Slots resuscitation plans in the House would likely require House Speaker Michael Busch's acquiescence, and the price for the Anne Arundel Democrat's approval would be a tax increase that Ehrlich has promised to veto.

After Delegate Justin Ross, D-Prince George's, said Tuesday it would take pulling a rabbit out of a hat to keep slots from death, another committee member continued the metaphor Wednesday to say political maneuvering, not magic, could keep the machines alive.

"We're cutting the legs off the rabbit. Then we will sew them back on later," said pro-slots Delegate James E. Rzepkowski, R-Anne Arundel.

They'll have time to stitch it together, said Ehrlich spokeswoman Shareese DeLeaver.

"The House's actions have the making of a long summer in Annapolis. The governor would use the big V (veto)" to keep the lawmakers working overtime past Monday's scheduled adjournment, she said.

But Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert, the General Assembly's leading slots backer, said, "If there is any hope, it's flickering."

"The only resurrection we'll be celebrating this month is Easter," said StopSlotsMaryland lobbyist Minor Carter, who said he predicted slots would fail from the beginning.

"That's a shame," said former governor and current Comptroller William Donald Schaefer, "If they don't get the slot machines, you can bet poor people are going to be hit hard."

Budget Secretary James C. "Chip" DiPaula Jr. said he felt "somber" Wednesday, because the House thwarted the administration's effort to craft workable legislation, causing his department to cut $700 million in education, aid to local governments and public safety next year.

If slots revenues are out this year, taxes could take their place, said tax subcommittee chairman Michael Gordon, D-Montgomery. That could include the repeal of the 1 percent income tax cut the Legislature enacted in 1997.

With the House passing its tax and revenue package by a veto-proof 89 votes, Gordon said, "I don't see why we won't do it again,'" for the repeal.

But it's unclear how much support there is for his bill. If the House wanted the revenue, DiPaula said, "Why didn't they pass something?"

House Majority Leader Kumar Barve, D-Montgomery, dismissed talk of a last-minute tax hike saying, "The budget is balanced, we can go home." Next year, however, is a fresh deck, Barve said. "Everything – cuts, taxes and gaming – will have to be on the table."

Ehrlich has consistently said he would not support slots next year, and he's promised a veto on sales and income tax increases.

Wednesday, DeLeaver modified the slots vow, saying, "He will not take the lead again." If the legislators pass slots on their own, their gamble would be rewarded, she said.

Ehrlich said Tuesday that keeping his promise to avoid sales and income tax hikes is much more important to his administration than passing slots.

"The vote was not about slots," said House Minority Leader Al Redmer, R-Baltimore County, "It was about a big fat juicy tax increase."

House Ways and Means Committee chairwoman Sheila Hixson has said everything is on the table, and promised her committee will write a slots bill over the summer. In the meantime, Davis hasn't given up on slots passing this year, "I hate to keep talking about the fat lady, but I don't hear her singing," he said.

Dear Ms. Nettie,

I am in the middle of doing something on the Internet and these windows keep popping up overtop of my screen. What are they? Where are they coming from? How do I stop them?

Signed,
Popping Pete

Dear Popping Pete,

You open one window and another one comes popping up, you close this new window and another one opens up. How annoying!

They are called pop up ads. A pop up ad is a type of window that appears on top of the browser window of a web site that a person has visited. There are 2 types of pop up ads:

Pop Up, which is more annoying because it covers other windows, usually the window the web surfer is trying to read.

Pop Under, which is less annoying because it appears behind the window the web surfer is reading.

Pop up ads are used throughout the Internet for advertising. They come in all shapes and sizes. Some pop up ads even move around your screen.

Pop up software can stop these ads from appearing. Pop up software is a small utility software program that many people now install and use on their computers to limit and restrict pop up windows. Normally they do not provide security for your computer, their purpose is to limit and restrict pop up advertising.

Ms. Nettie is a paid advertisement by GCNET.net. Please send your questions to ms.nettie@gcnetmail.net. (Questions may be edited to preserve anonymity.)

MILITARY ADDRESSES

Published on this page are the addresses of local soldiers (Garrett Countians as well as nearby West Virginians and Pennsylvanians) currently serving the United States in the war with Iraq. Persons who would like to add a loved one's address may do so by sending it to The Republican, P.O. Box 326, Oakland, MD 21550; e-mail it to newsroom@therepublicannews.com; or fax it to 301-334-5904. The address information may also be dropped off at either the Oakland or Grantsville newspaper office.

Those writing to the servicepersons via e-mail should understand that soldiers may not be able to reply for several days, if at all. According to Ken Perrin, postmaster for Oakland, packages sent to soldiers should be in compliance with the Department of Defense (DOD) rules, which are available at post offices. The packages must have a customs declaration form attached, Perrin said. There are some restrictions on APO mail, and information about these restrictions may also be obtained at the post office. The DOD has discontinued the "Any Serviceman" mailing program for the Iraqi war. All pieces of mail must be addressed to specific individuals.

What's Happening Our Town Theatre

'The Play's the Thing'...Doing the Math
By Melodee Hill

I actually thought I was finished writing about this play, Unchanging Love, and behind the scenes of this play, but there's more.

If you view going out to see a play as an occasion, maybe you will spend a little extra time getting ready, and if it is a local production, maybe fifteen minutes to half an hour traveling to see it. Once there, the play may last about two to three hours. At the most, an audience member invests about four hours into seeing a local production of a full-length play. While I was downstairs at Our Town Theatre during a performance of the play, I decided to make myself useful by getting the cast members to fill out their volunteer time sheets. These are sheets documenting the number of hours that people volunteer to the theatre that will be used when the theatre applies for grants and donations.

Even I found the results amazing, and it was not something I had previously given much thought to. Please don't check my math — I'm much more of an English-type person. Here goes: 10 actors x 21 rehearsal nights (approximately 3-4 hours each) + 25 performance hours = 655 hours; 1 stage manager Deirdre, Deirdre (that's how many times I spelled her name wrong in my last article, sorry), rehearsals + performances + making and finding props = 100 hours; 1 assistant stage manager = 90 hours; 1 musical director and 1 assistant director/costumer — rehearsals, performances and costume-hunting = approximately 200 hours. With me so far? It's a little over 1,000 hours.

Then there is Jane Avery, the director, who spent an untallied number of hours analyzing the script, holding auditions, and planning the blocking of the show. I will be stingy and say it took five 8-hour workdays = 40 hours + 92 hours of rehearsals and performances = 132 conservatively estimated hours for Jane. The set design and building took Ben Sincell about 70 hours, while a crew of ten worked on the set a combined total of 75 hours or so + 50 more hours of Ben's time went into lighting the play = 195 hours for the lighting and set.

At every performance there is a house manager and usually two ushers, whose time equals about 45 hours. Another lighting technician was there for each performance, so 45 + 45 = 90 + Jane's 132 + Ben and crew's 195 = 417.

Now, the disclaimer. I'm sure there are people I forgot to mention who volunteered their valuable time, and here are a few of the things that are done that I haven't included the hours for: designing, typing, copying, and folding the program, buying the snacks, confirming reservations, placing the chairs, sweeping snow off the steps and so much more.

And the wrap-up. Next time you go to see a play, especially one at a community theater where most, if not all, of the people are volunteers, give a moment of thought to all the hours of themselves that they are offering to you.

Actors: paragraph two — 655 hours

Everyone else: paragraphs two and four — 762 hours

Everything else: paragraph five — 80 hours = 1,497 hours of volunteer time for:

Audience: paragraph one — 4 hours.

Math for you: What if each of these people had been paid minimum wage (currently $5.15 per hour) for the long hours they worked?

SHS Grads Have Comedic Roles In FSU's Robin Hood

Two local students have comedic roles in a Frostburg State University's Children Theatre production of Robin Hood. Performances will be held Saturday and Sunday, April 5 and 6, at 2 p.m. in the FSU Performing Arts Center.

FSU students Jon Wildesen (Little John) and Mike Virts (Friar Tuck), both recent Southern High School graduates, "will have audience members rolling in the aisles" with laughter, according to a university spokesperson.

Adapted from Larry Blamire's Robin Hood, and directed by junior FSU theatre major Jen Bonner, the other familiar characters will also be played by students.

Robin Hood (Larry Lewis) is the brave leader of the Merry Men. Will Scarlet (Scott Deans) is his wise-cracking sidekick. When Maid Marian (Justine Poulin), lady-in-waiting to Queen Eleanor (Catie Childers), is kidnapped by the Sheriff of Nottingham (Todd Fussell), the Merry Men must save her before she is forced to marry the Sheriff. But Marian is no damsel in distress.

The story unfolds as King John (Chris Coy), the Bishop (Craig Lawrence), and the Sheriff try to find Robin's camp with the help of the Prioress of Kirkless (Jennifer Arnold), Robin's own cousin, and Guy of Gisbourne (Thom Cutler) to stop Robin forever. But, true to the legend, all ends well.

All ages are welcomed to attend. Admission is only $1. For more information, persons may call the FSU Theatre Department at 301-687-4145.

Teen Book Club To Discuss Young Waitress's Story

The Ruth Enlow Library Teen Book Club will discuss the award-winning book Hope Was Here at 2 p.m. on Saturday, May 3, in the Oakland library. All students 12 and older may attend.

Joan Bauer's novel tells the story of Hope, who is making the adjustment from growing up in a big city to her new life in a small town. "Hope's used to thinking on her feet — she hasn't become a terrific waitress by accident," the publisher's book description reads. "But when she and her aunt Addie move from New York City to a small town in Wisconsin to run the Welcome Stairways Diner, she isn't sure she'll fit in.

"Luckily, she doesn't have much time to dwell on it, what with life at the diner and her new home's upcoming election. G.T., the owner of Welcome Stairways, has decided to run for mayor, and no one in town knows what to think. After all, G.T. has leukemia. And his opponent is the current mayor, who hasn't lost an election yet.

"Some think G.T. is crazy, but Hope sees the goodness and power in him. Will everyone else see it too?" the publisher wrote.

The book was a 2001 Newbery Honor recipient, as the American Library Association judged it one of the best children's books of that year. "Bauer juggles story lines as well as Hope juggles plates, and the lessons of waitressing expand into lessons about the essentials of life," the award committee noted. "In the course of just a few months, 16-year-old Hope encounters issues as diverse as her customers: corruption in politics, a new love, serious illness and the meaning of family."

The library also offers a book club for adults and a book club for students ages 9 through 11. Persons may call 301-334-3996 for further information. All book clubs are funded by the Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library.

In the midst of this creative, scientific family Twig and her two brothers, Craig and Luke, helped raise more than 173 wild animals in their relatively normal suburban house.

RAMS TRYING FOR A "THREE-PEAT" – The 2003 Southern High School girls' varsity softball team has some mighty big cleats to fill, as the past two installments of the Rams' program each netted Maryland state titles. Kneeling from the left are Kayla Nazelrod, Julia Bosley, Brandi Arnett, Becca Flanagan, Ashley Metcalfe, Sara Mullenax, and Sharon Harvey. Standing are Melissa Flanagan, Jessica Sharon, Rachel Friend, Samantha Skeweris, Amber Bernard, Theresa Lucas, and first-year head coach Erick Pavelko. Not pictured is assistant coach John Coffman. Southern goes in search of its second win in four attempts Tuesday at Westmar.

Rams Top Huskies, But Fall To Campers, Trojans

A 9-4 Western Maryland Interscholastic League victory over Northern High School was the only highlight of the week for the Southern High girls' varsity softball team, as the Rams disposed of the Huskies last Thursday at the Cove.

Southern then fell to host Allegany on Monday, 12-2, in another WMIL contest, and were edged yesterday by Hampshire, 7-6, on the Trojans' diamond.

The Rams tagged Northern pitcher Valene Snyder for 15 hits in last Thursday's contest, while Southern's Ashley Metcalf allowed just four hits and struck out seven in going the distance for the win.

The Huskies held a brief 1-0 lead at the end of the first inning, but the Rams put five on the board in the top of the second to take the advantage for good.

Metcalf aided her own cause by smacking a double and two singles, and matching that effort were teammates Rachel Friend, Brandy Arnette, and Becca Flanagan.

Providing half of the Huskies' hits was Amanda Frantz, who stroked a triple and a single, while Autumn Kitchen and Brandi Perez each hit a single.

The loss dropped the Huskies to 0-2.

Undefeated Allegany (5-0) needed only five innings to dispose of the Rams on Monday, even though they finished with only an 8-6 edge in hits.

After Southern took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first, the Campers rallied for four runs in the bottom of that frame, aided by four walks. They finished with a dozen walks for the afternoon.

The Campers added a run in the third, four in the fourth, and three in the fifth, and the game was called in the fifth because of the 10-run rule.

Lacey Smith and Emily Mathews each hit a triple and a single for Alco, while Metcalf and Flanagan each provided a double and a single, plus one RBI, for the Rams.

Metcalf took the loss on the mound, while Lindsey Twigg gained the win.

The Rams were on course to record a victory yesterday at Hampshire, taking a 6-5 lead into the bottom of the seventh, but that's when the Trojans rallied for a pair of game-winning runs.

The Rams trailed 4-0 after the first inning and then battled back to take 5-4 lead by the top of the fifth. Hampshire knotted the score at 5-5 with a single run in the bottom of the fifth before the Rams resumed the lead at 6-5 with a run in the sixth.

Walks issued to Amanda Burner and Savannah Bean set the stage for the Trojans' winning rally in the seventh. Wild pitches advanced the runners to second and third, and Megan Kline followed with a game-winning, two-run double to immediately end the game.

The Rams out-hit the Trojans (4-3) by a 9-5 margin, with Samantha Skeweris pacing Southern's offensive effort with a triple and a single, good for three RBI. Melissa Flanagan provided two singles.

The Rams are scheduled to play again next Tuesday at Westmar and then host Beall in their home opener on Wednesday.

NHS Hammers Hancock, Nipped By FH's Sentinels

The Northern High School boys' varsity baseball squad scored an amazing 20 runs in two outings this week, but probably would like to have distributed their salvos a little more evenly. NHS skinned Hancock's Panthers with ease last Thursday, March 27, by a 16-6 margin, but fell yesterday at Fort Hill by a narrow 5-4 tally. Northern's record stands at 2-3 heading into a home game this afternoon against Beall.

The Huskies wasted little time in turning their visit to Hancock into a rout, as they snapped a one-all deadlock in the second inning by ripping the Panther's pitcher for nine runs. Hancock put up a bit of a fight by scoring three times in the bottom of the stanza and twice in the third, making the score 10-6, but Northern exploded for another five runs in the fourth before capping its flurry with a single run in the fifth that led to the game being halted as the 10-run mercy rule was invoked.

Senior outfielder Jordan Brenneman doubled, singled twice, and drove home two runs for NHS, while starting pitcher Dan Vagnetti helped his game-winning effort with a double and two singles. Second baseman Derek Workman punched out two singles and tallied two RBI, and sophomore shortstop Preston Sisler cracked a pair of RBI singles. Northern racked up 14 hits overall, while the NHS mound duo of Vagnetti and reliever Torrey Poholsky, who was summoned to duty in the fourth inning, gave up just six Hancock hits.

NHS could have used some of those runs during yesterday's outing at Fort Hill, which went down to the second half of the final inning with the score knotted at 4-4.

NHS had started the scoring with one run in the first inning, but the Sentinels responded with a run in each of the second and third stanzas to take a 2-1 lead. The Huskies scored a pair of runs in the fifth to go up 3-2, but in the bottom of the sixth Fort Hill scored twice to take a 4-3 lead.

Northern tied the game in the top of the seventh on back-to-back Sentinels errors. The Huskies committed their own miscue in the bottom half of the stanza that helped give FH the game, as a Sentinel scored the winning run on a throwing error. Fort Hill has led off the inning with a double, then a bunt resulted in an NHS fielder overthrowing first base, and the runner scored from second on the error.

Northern tallied eight hits, led by a triple and single Brenneman's triple and single, and junior Jason Thomas contributed two singles and one RBI.

NHS hosts Beall today at 4 p.m. before traveling to Bishop Walsh Tuesday and Beall Wednesday.

Ram Jayvees Open With 14-4 Win At Keyser

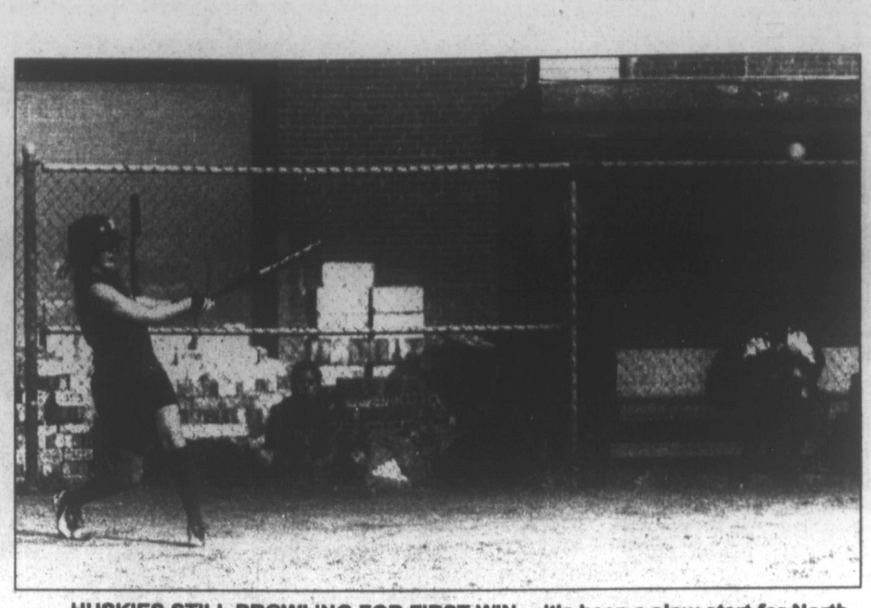
An impressive pitching performance by Aaron Louden led the way to a 14-4, season-opening victory over Keyser for the Southern High School junior varsity baseball team on Saturday.

Louden struck out 13 batters in going the distance, while teammates Brad Reese and Tyler Graham spearheaded the Rams' hitting effort. Reese smacked a triple and a single, and Graham provided a pair of singles.

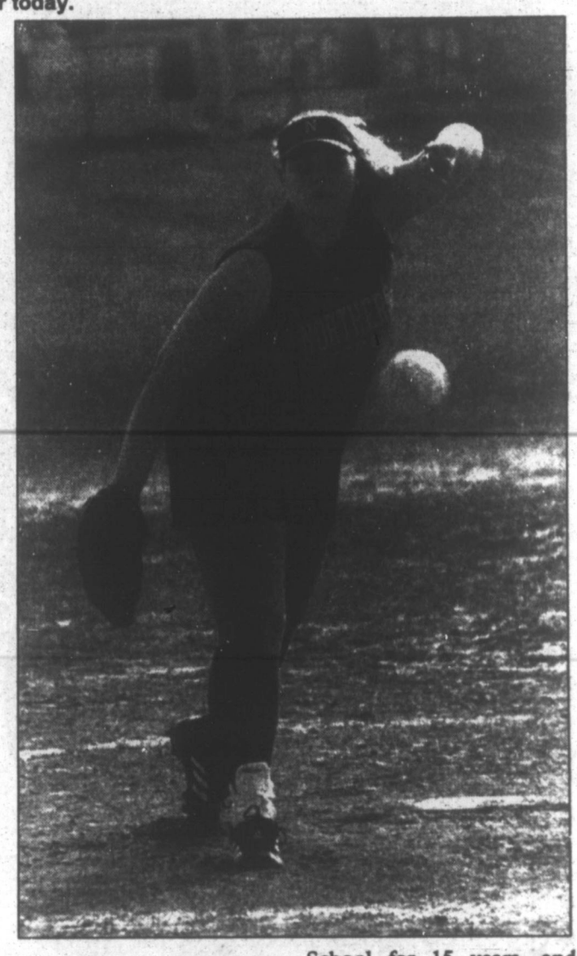
The Southern offense was also aided by eight errors by the Golden Tornados.

Recording two singles each for Keyser were Joel Shumaker and Corey Smith. It was the second loss in as many starts for Keyser.

The Ram jayvees will be in action again today at Westmar and will play a doubleheader, home opener on Saturday against Beall, beginning at noon.



HUSKIES STILL PROWLING FOR FIRST WIN – It's been a slow start for Northern High School's girls' varsity softball team this season, as the Huskies are still looking for their first win in four outings; however, with a roster that includes talent such as Amanda Frantz and Valene Snyder, both pictured here, NHS won't likely have long to wait. Frantz is shown above ripping one of her three hits against Turkeyfoot on Friday, while Snyder is pictured below firing in a fastball from the mound. NHS visits Westmar today.



Northern Gobbled By Rams, Turkeyfoot, Undefeated FH

The Northern High School girls' varsity softball team dropped three straight this week as Southern took a Thursday, March 27, match-up by a 9-4 margin (see SHS account), Turkeyfoot stymied an NHS rally to take a 6-4 win Friday, and undefeated Fort Hill thumped the Huskies 12-0 yesterday. The action leaves Northern with an 0-4 record.

NHS came close to victory against visiting Turkeyfoot in a nip-and-tuck contest that went down to the final inning. The Rams hit the scoreboard early with a two-run leadoff inning and a two-run third stanza, but Northern scored once in the bottom of that inning to cut the margin to 4-1. Turkeyfoot scored twice again in the fifth, but NHS responded with two runs of its own in the bottom half of the same inning. The Huskies scored one run in the bottom of the seventh to cut the Ram lead to 6-4, but that was as close as they would come to catching their guests.

Senior catcher Amanda Frantz had two singles and ripped a double for NHS, and junior outfielder Lyndsi Butler cracked off four singles. Senior Valene Snyder went the distance for Northern on the mound. Brittany Bearfoot picked up the win for Turkeyfoot with help from Vanessa Wheatley's double and pair of singles.

Yesterday at Fort Hill the Huskies' ship was sunk in the third inning when the hosts reeled off 10 runs to go up 11-0. The Sentinels added another run in the next stanza, and the game was called on account of the 10-run mercy rule after NHS's fifth inning plate appearance.

FH starting pitcher Cari Reed held the Huskies to just three hits over her complete-game win. Northern sent two pitchers to the mound during the contest, which ended with the Sentinels rapping out a total of 11 hits.

Northern plays at Westmar today, then visits Allegany on Thursday, April 10.

•HISTORY BEGAN IN THE MIDDLE EAST!

•THE MOST IMPORTANT EVENT IN HISTORY HAPPENED THERE!

•HISTORY WILL CLIMAX THERE!

THE FUTURE OF THE MIDDLE EAST

The recent news from the Middle East is not the first time our eyes have been riveted on that part of the world. And it will not be the last time, either.

History began there. The traditional site of the garden of Eden is near present-day Babylon in Iraq. And that, of course, is where the Bible says God created Adam and Eve and where human history began.

The most important event in history occurred in Jerusalem. Where the Lord Jesus Christ died for the sins of the world. No other event will ever be more significant than that one.

History will climax in the Middle East, too. Who has not heard of Armageddon, that great war that will be fought at the end of this age? Armageddon is actually a lush valley in the northern part of Israel, about 20 miles long and 14 miles wide, will be the scene of the future battle between the kings from the East and the nations united under Antichrist (Revelation 16:13-16).

That battle will not be won by either side, but instead the Lord Jesus Christ will end it by His return from Heaven with His armies. Then He, that Conqueror, "shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east..." (Zechariah 14:4) So once again the eyes of the world will focus on the Middle East.

IS THE WORLD OUT OF CONTROL?

When a tense, international crisis bursts onto the world scene, people look to their political leaders for solutions. Will their negotiations we successful? Will they be able to avert war? Is there anybody strong enough and wise enough to bring order and peace out of chaos and crisis?

We do not minimize the role of our national leaders, but failing to look beyond human leaders - however able and sincere they may be - misses the point. Whatever the rulers of the world do, God is ultimately in control. In fact, we can be sure of God's control in the present crisis precisely because He had for centuries used the Middle East as the arena for some of the most profound events in history. And in the future He will use this same region to stage one of the most earth-shaking events of all time.

But why would a good God allow the world to be plunged into war? Simply because He does not always restrain evil people. A lust for greed and a thirst for power will bring the nations to war and the final battle. Sometimes sin must be allowed to run its course to reveal what people are really like.

Although God is in control, that does not mean that He causes the evil which we see all around us. Evil people cause evil, and sometimes they become tyrants who inflict their unrestrained desires upon innocent victims. But God will not allow evil to flourish unchecked forever. Every person - whether a tyrant or not - will ultimately be examined and judged by a holy God.

WHAT CAN WE LEARN FROM THE CONFLICT IN THE MIDDLE EAST?

1. We learn that our world is very interdependent economically. Is this significant? Definitely! One day the Antichrist will require people to receive his mark to be able to buy or sell (Revelation 13:17).

2. We also learn that the Middle East is far more important that we ever considered a few generations ago. The state of Israel was founded in 1948 and since then the attention of the world has increasingly focused on the Middle East.

3. We realize that the time between now and the climax of the age at Armageddon is shorter with each passing day. We should live mindful of not only the brevity of life, but also the certainty of Christ's return. Our knowledge of the future should affect our lives now.

WHAT ABOUT YOUR FUTURE?

You need to be very concerned about your destiny. The Bible tells us what's going to happen to this world, but it is much more important to know that is going to happen to you when your life ends. When Jesus Christ died on the cross and rose from the grave, He paid the penalty for our sins and now He freely offers forgiveness, Heaven and eternal life to everyone who turns to Him in repentance and faith. Don't look to political or religious leaders for salvation. Look to Jesus Christ, because, "there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." Acts 4:12. It is the Lord Jesus alone who delivers "us from the wrath to come." 1 Thessalonians 1:10

Today, if you would like to be receive Christ as your Savior, just bow your head and pray this simple prayer: "God, I know that I am a sinner. I now repent of my sins and ask you to come into my heart and life and save me. In Jesus Name I pray. Amen."

If you sincerely prayed this prayer, we would like to hear from you and send you further information on the Christian life.

"Rebuilding" Rams Open With Four Straight Wins

What was predicted to be a "rebuilding year" for the Southern High School varsity baseball team and Coach Jim Bosley has so far not resembled anything like that, as the Rams have opened their 2003 campaign with four consecutive, convincing victories, all on the road.

Bosley lost all nine starters from last year's Western Maryland Interscholastic League and area championship squad, and opened the season last week with only 11 healthy players on a 14-player roster. But the Rams proceeded to blank host Keyser last Thursday, 7-0; roll over Hampshire on Saturday in Romney, W.Va., 13-5; embarrass host Allegany on Tuesday, 21-7, in a WMIL clash; and defeated Preston High School with a dramatic seventh-inning comeback yesterday in Kingwood, 7-5.

Junior transfer Chris Smith, formerly at Frankfort High School, opened his career in a Ram uniform with a bang, as he fired a two-hit, complete-game shutout, struck out 15, and walked only one against Keyser, a team picked by Bosley in the pre-season to be possibly the most talented non-league foe that the Rams would face.

Smith also paced the Rams at the plate, earning three RBI with a double and two singles.

Getting two singles apiece in the Rams' 12-hit effort were Nathan Fitzwater, Billy Reams, Jay Tressler, and Chad Everd. Tressler also finished with two RBI.

The only hits allowed by Smith were a single by Chris Szafran to lead off the fourth inning, and a single by Corey Washington in the fifth.

The Rams matched their 12-hit performance on Saturday at Hampshire, with Fitzwater accounting for two RBI with a solo homer and two singles, and Tressler bringing home four runs with three singles.

After a scoreless first inning, Southern drew first blood with three runs in the top of the second. The Trojans came back to take a 4-3 advantage with two runs each in the bottom of the second and third frames, but the Rams seized the lead for good with six runs in the top of the fourth.

Also getting multiple hits for the Rams were A.J. Bender and Scott Wildesen, each with two singles.

Pacing Hampshire's seven-hit performance were Chris Cunningham with a double and two singles, and T.M. Frye with a double and a single.

Dennis Tressler, who took the mound for Southern in the third inning, was given credit for the victory.

The loss was the second in as many starts for the Trojans.

For the third straight game, the Rams once again recorded 12 hits on Tuesday against Allegany, and two of those hits were home runs by junior Billy Reams. The Rams also took advantage of seven Camper errors to put a quick end to the contest.

Smith earned his second win on the mound, going the five-inning distance and allowing eight hits.

The two homers by Reams yielded seven runs, as he blasted a grand slam and a three-run shot. He also rapped a pair of singles to go 4-for-5 for the afternoon.

Dennis Tressler added a three-run homer plus a single, while Fitzwater provided a triple and a single.

The loss was the first in three starts for the Campers.

It appeared yesterday that the Ram win streak would end at three, as the Preston Knights held a 5-1 lead and the Rams were down to their final out in the top of the seventh inning.

But, as Yogi Berra said, "It ain't over until it's over," and the Rams did not quit. Instead they proceeded to score six unearned runs and then hold off the Knights in the bottom of the seventh to record the win.

Corey Burrell led off the Rams' seventh with a single, which was followed by a strike-out and a fielder's choice ground out hit by Chad Everd. Then Jay Tressler walked, and Billy Reams reached on an error, which brought home Everd for the first run of the inning.

Nathan Fitzwater then drew a walk to load the bases, and Chris Smith rapped a two-run single to cut the Knights' lead to 5-4. A wild pitch allowed Fitzwater to come home and knot the score.

Scott Wildesen then stroked a two-run single to give the Rams their first lead of the game and, ultimately, the victory.

Preston finished with a 9-7 advantage in hits.

Out of the 12 runs scored in the contest, all but one were unearned, as both teams committed four errors.

Smith had a double and a single for the Rams, while Tyler McNair and Tim Street each singled twice for Preston.

It was the first loss in three starts for the Knights.

The Rams are scheduled to play Bishop Walsh this Friday, but the location of that game has been moved from BW to Oakland. They will travel to Fort Hill next Tuesday and play at Westmar on Wednesday.

Southern Boys Track Team Returns Numerous Veterans

With just two student athletes lost to graduation from last year's Southern High School boys' track and field team, Coach Jamie Beeman is optimistic about the Rams' being able to improve upon their 20-12 record and send more team members to the state championships in May.

The Rams will open their 2003 campaign this afternoon with a meet at Keyser.

Completing their senior season last spring for the Rams were Dan Cathell, who competed in the long jump, triple jump, and pole vault, and Bryan Hinebaugh, sprinter and relay team member. Among the more talented seniors on the team this year are: jumper/hurdler Matt Stephens, hurdler Chris Lantz, distance runner Adam Miller, and throwers Ricky Curry and Ben Friend.

"We are lucky to have a strong group of returning seniors. I believe our sprinters might surprise some people as well," Coach Beeman said.

"Our boys are very dedicated," he continued. "They are putting in the time required to learn the techniques needed for their events, and they are pushing themselves hard to achieve and maintain top conditioning."

Beeman said that a lack of depth in some events is among his concerns. "We will also lose a number of seniors after this season," he said, "but we have a lot of underclassmen who have a willingness to learn and have been improving with every practice."

Beeman said the goal for the season is the same every year – to qualify as many athletes for the state meet as possible.

"In order to do this we must compete well within the WMIL (Western Maryland Interscholastic League) and the area," he said, "which would put us in a good position to win the regional title. A region title would then give us the best shot to win a state championship."

Beeman is being assisted by Fred Gregg.

Following today's meet at Keyser, the Rams will compete in the Fort Hill Invitational on Saturday, beginning at 9:45 a.m., travel to Beall next Monday for a 6 p.m. meet, and travel to Kingwood next Wednesday to vie in the Preston Relays, slated to get under way at 4 p.m.

Mt. Top Hoops League Heading Into Semifinals

The Mt. Top Basketball League's post-season got under way over the weekend, and five games were played as the league's 10-team field was whittled down to four that remain to continue the tourney battle during Sunday's semifinal round.

The playoffs opened with a play-in game that Automated Packing took from Scott Ford by a 78-72 margin. Automated Packing's Matt Davis paced his squad to the win with 23 points, and Charles Evans added 16. Scott Ford was led by Jason Reese and Chad Reese, who netted 23 and 17 points, respectively.

Sixth-seeded Midas upset third seed Plaza Hobby in the second game, 77-64. It looked as if Plaza Hobby were going to take the contest, as Brett Rice sparked the team to a 21-19 first-quarter lead; however, the speedy Midas squad turned on the jets to come from behind and take an easy 13-point win. Adam Daskivich poured in 31 points for Midas, and teammate Joe DiSimone contributed 21. Rice finished with 19 for Plaza Hobby.

Defending league champion ConDoerr coasted to an easy 69-48 win over Automated Packing, a team that had downed ConDoerr just a week before. The victors were paced by 24 points by Dennis Gibson, while Poke Winters and Tony Doerr each hit for 15 ConDoerr points, with Winters nailing a trio of three-pointers in the second half. James Endler had 11 points for Automated Packing.

In the fourth game, Smiley's downed 84 Lumber 76-67. Smiley's jumped out to a 49-34 halftime lead, but 84 Lumber battled back to make it a game in the second half as Steve Charity scored 13 of his 17 points in the third quarter to help the Lumbermen cut the gap to five points, but Smiley's held on for the win. Jason Brenneman paced the victors with 27 points, followed by Joe Refosco's 18 and 16 from Scott Shahan. Greg Mortimer had 23 points for 84 Lumber, and teammate Travis Bohrer chipped in 18 points.

Skiles jumped out to an early lead over Automotive Machine in the fifth game, and coasted to an 80-56 win. The outcome was hardly in doubt, as Skiles was up 44-26 at the half. The winners got 27 points from Nathan Long, and teammate Jimmy Yoder canned five three-pointers on his way to 23 points. Automotive Machine's Doug Copeland netted 19 points, Ricky Reams added 17, and Jason Shank recorded 10.

This Sunday's semifinal match-ups will open with a 2 p.m. showdown between #2 seed Skiles vs. #6 seed Midas, with ConDoerr keeping score and the trio of Copeland, Price, and Townsend serving as referees. At 3 p.m. top-seeded ConDoerr will battle #5 seed Smiley's, with the winner of the earlier game keeping score, and Copeland, Townsend, and Morgan serving as referees.

GC Fly-Fishing Segment To Air On National TV

Garrett County's thriving fly-fishing scene will be profiled on the national television network ESPN2 in an upcoming segment of Fly Fishing America. The program, which was taped in August, will air at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday, April 9; 10 a.m. on Saturday, April 12, and 11:30 a.m. on Monday, April 14.

"In addition to fly-fishing on the Savage River, the program will examine the county as a whole for a unique experience that is indicative of the area's culture," explained Deb Clatterbuck of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce. "The film crew visited sites such as Spruce Forest Artisan Village, Penn Alps, and the Elliott House Bed and Breakfast, and spoke with Spruce Forest administrator Trish Morgan and master carver Gary Yoder."

Clatterbuck credited the success of the taping to a partnership between the Maryland Department of Natural Resources and the local and state tourism industry. Clatterbuck cited special contributions from the Maryland Office of Tourism's Connie Yingling; DNR's Sandy Mariner, Western Region Fisheries biologist Ken Pavol, and Nature Tourism coordinator Patty Manown Mash; Mike Dreisbach and Jan Russell of the Savage River Lodge; and Harold Harsh and Alan Nolan of Spring Creek Outfitters.

"We are still confirming the comparable advertising value of the television exposure, but expect it to be in excess of $300,000 based on three airings," commented Clatterbuck.

Grantsville Man Sentenced For Disorderly Con.

A Grantsville man was handed 30 days in jail recently after he pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct. Garrett County District Court judge Ralph Burnett presided a the hearing.

Ricky Dwayne Wilburn, 44, was handed a total sentence of 60 days, half of which was suspended, and was placed on one year of supervised probation. The charge stemmed from his December arrest by sheriff's deputies who investigated a report that Wilburn had threatened another person with a rifle during an argument at his Fosters Inn Road home.

In other District Court news, Kenneth Lee Perrin Jr., 22, Swanton, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and driving while impaired. Visiting Judge Paul Stakem handed down a six-month sentence, suspending all but 10 days, and placed the defendant on 18 months of supervised probation. Perrin was jailed in October by state troopers after a traffic stop on Interstate 68 led to the discovery of a glass bottle containing marijuana and a bag containing drug paraphernalia, both of which were in his car.

Mary Lou Johnson, 27, Oakland, pleaded guilty to misdemeanor theft, and was handed a 60-day sentence, all but three days of which was suspended by Judge Burnett, who also imposed one year of supervised probation. Oakland police officers arrested Johnson in October after an investigation of thefts from cash drawers at Wal-Mart led to her being charged with three separate thefts totaling $161.

Marcelo Barbour Grisi, 25, McHenry, pleaded guilty to failure to obey a lawful order and received a 30-day suspended sentence, a fine of $205, and 18 months' supervised probation. His March arrest by state troopers stemmed from a fight at the Black Bear Tavern. After Grisi was removed from the bar, he beat on the glass doors and refused to calm down when police tried to talk to him.

Several criminal hearings resulted in stet rulings for the various defendants.

Grafton Lanard Plater, 32, Washington, D.C., faced charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia that were stetted, while a related speeding citation resulted in a $70 fine. Plater's January arrest by state troopers stemmed from a traffic stop on I-68, when a search located a smoking device bearing suspected burnt marijuana residue in his pocket.

Kevin D. Broadwater, 25, Elk Garden, W.Va., received stet rulings in connection with charges of second-degree assault and trespassing filed by sheriff's deputies at the time of his February arrest. Broadwater had reportedly come onto a Swanton resident's property after being warned not to by the landowner, and threatened to beat and shoot the victim. (No gun was displayed during the incident.)

Amanda Elizabeth Gober, 18, Oakland, faced charges of marijuana and drug paraphernalia possession, both of which were stetted. Her arrest stemmed from a search of a Mtn. Lake Park residence conducted by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force. Several subjects were located in a room that had the odor of suspected marijuana smoke, and a small canister believed to hold the drug was discovered in Gober's purse.

Jann Lorita Swiger, 45, Oakland, was handed stet rulings from Judge Stakem on charges of second-degree assault, fourth-degree burglary, harassment, and trespassing. Sheriff's deputies jailed Swiger in February for allegedly using a key to enter her former residence and attempt to remove some items she claimed were hers. A dispute with her ex-boyfriend took place at the time of the incident.

Swiger also faced a failure to comply with a peace order charge that was also placed on the stet docket. That charge stemmed from her January arrest by sheriff's deputies after she visited the same residence while under a court order to stay away.

Joseph Andrew Jenkins, 36, Accident, faced eight charges of failure to provide court-ordered child support for his children, and each charge was placed onto the stet docket as Judge Burnett stipulated that he pay all past debts and future installments. Sheriff's deputies had arrested Jenkins in February at the behest of the State's Attorney's Office.

Johnnie Marvin Preston Jr., 33, Westernport, faced misdemeanor theft, forgery, and uttering charges that were all placed on the stet docket. Allegany County sheriff's deputies arrested Preston in January on a warrant obtained by the local sheriff's office for allegedly stealing checks and forging them at the Grantsville Food Lion.

Michael Paul Sliger, 30, Oakland, was handed stet rulings on charges of disorderly conduct and failure to obey a lawful order filed by Oakland police officers at the time of his February arrest. As he was being questioned at the scene of a fight, Sliger refused to lower his voice and speak in an intelligent manner with the officers.

A charge of carrying a concealed deadly weapon faced by Roy Paul Fune Jr., 22, Fort Washington, was not prosecuted by the State's Attorney's Office. Additional charges of speeding and driving on a suspended license resulted in a $200 fine and a stet ruling, respectively. Fune was jailed by state troopers after a butterfly knife was found on his person during a traffic stop.

Shawna Irene Mayle, 32, Swanton, was deemed not guilty of second-degree assault after her alleged victim refused to testify against her. She had allegedly assaulted a male victim during a February domestic altercation at her residence, according to sheriff's deputies.

DUI/DWI CASES

Judge Burnett's traffic court was the scene of numerous driving while under the influence (DUI) and driving while impaired (DWI) hearings recently.

James Bryant Thomas, 31, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed nine months in jail and an $800 fine.

Craig Eugene Hood, 37, Pa., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a one year sentence, all but 55 days of which was suspended, and was fined $600 and placed on two years' supervised probation.

Robert Ervin McRobie, 46, Md., was deemed to be in violation of his DUI probation and was handed a 50-day jail term as his probation was revoked.

Michael Allen Evans, 26, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a 90-day sentence, all but 10 days of which was suspended, and was fined $555 and placed on two years of supervised probation.

Wayne Douglas Wheeler Jr., 23, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a 30-day sentence, all but four days of which was suspended, and was fined $400 and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Gary DeWayne Broadwater, 37, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a 60-day suspended sentence, a $600 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 60 hours of community service.

Shawn Lee Gittere, 29, pleaded guilty to DUI and received a 30-day suspended sentence, a $305 fine, and one year of supervised probation.

Darrell Ray Ravenscroft, 26, N.C., was deemed to be in violation of his DUI probation, which was extended for an additional six months.

Each of the following individuals pleaded guilty to DUI and received probation before judgment (PBJ) rulings, with these respective sentences. John Raymond Driscoll, 52, N.J., Gerard Downs, 47, Pa., and Miriam Dawn Frederick, 44, W.Va., were each fined $455, and handed a 30-day suspended sentence, one year of unsupervised probation, and 30 hours of community service.

coming off the trail covered from head to toe in mud causes a lot of damage," he said.

It's too early to say yet how much of an effect the winter damage will have on trail maintenance costs, but it could be summer or even early fall before the work is completed, Gregory said.

Volunteers play an important part in the cleanup work, he said, and individuals who want to help out can come out to New G many State Park ne Grantsville at 9 a.m. Ap 19 to assist with gene cleanup.

Through these fund-raising efforts, nearly $400,000 has been raised and spent on nearly 500 projects Statewide since 1986. The NWTF also sponsors the Juniors Acquiring Knowledge Ethics and Sportsmanship (JAKES) program, which is geared toward teaching our youngsters about the wild turkey, wildlife conservation, and our hunting heritage. HEAD OF STATE

The premise of Head Of State, which serves as Saturday Night Live alum Chris Rock's directorial debut, is very similar to that of Warren Beatty's 1998 vehicle Bulworth, except that in this case it is an actual black man running for president instead of a white man pretending to be black. Unfortunately, this film also does not include the talents of writer/director Beatty, so it comes off not only as a second-rate rehash of Beatty's idea, but also as a rather desperate attempt by Rock to break into mainstream cinema. Rock has distinguished himself as a stand-up comedian and social commentator, but this film attempts to appeal to such a wide audience, it fails on almost every front. While his screenplay (co-written with Ali LeRoy) has the occasional witty social barb and a few truly meaningful messages, it also attempts to exist as a slapstick farce, which undermines the message and all but drowns out the meaning.

Rock plays Mays Gilliam, the local alderman for one of the most violent neighborhoods in Washington, D.C. Although he has proven himself as a friend to his downtrodden people, he is about to be phased out because he refuses to play political ball. Then, when the Democratic presidential candidate for the upcoming 2004 election and his running-mate are both killed in a freak accident, the party higher-ups find themselves desperate for a candidate. Senator Bill Arnot (James Rebhorn), who intends to run in 2008, wants someone who will "make the party look good"—but not win. So his advisors, campaign manager Martin Geller (Dylan Baker) and speechwriter Debra Lassiter (Lynn Whitfield) find Mays and inform him he is to be the new candidate for president. After a short period of disbelief, he decides to hit the campaign trail, at first reading the "this great nation" rhetoric written for him by Debra, but finally deciding, after a moment of truth with his brother Mitch (fellow stand-up comedian Bernie Mac) that he needs to speak from his heart. Of course, his brutal honesty and occasional use of obscenities/Ebonics turns the crowd on, and it soon looks like he may actually have a chance against the stuffy and slimy incumbent vice president (Nick Searcy). Meanwhile, he falls for a pretty convenience store clerk (Tamala Jones) while being pursued by his gold-digging ex-girlfriend (Robin Givens) who wants to reconcile now that he's become famous.

Chris Rock is obviously trying, however weakly, to say something important with this movie. The trouble is, he's also trying to sell tickets to 14-year-olds, and the two objectives seem to work at odds against each other. Every time his character makes some meaningful statement about inequality or injustice, some ridiculous thing happens—something you might see in an Austin Powers movie—and his attempt at an eloquent statement is mired in slapstick. It's hard enough to get around the unbelievable premise (the notion of a black presidential candidate is certainly believable, but the rationale, the set-up, and the chain of events that lead to his nomination are patently absurd), but after we accept Mays as a nominee, we're forced to swallow all sorts of silly sight gags and broad comedy. If Rock wants us to think, he shouldn't have written so many pratfalls into the script; if he wanted a straight farce, he should have dispensed with the maudlin empowerment speeches. Trying to appeal to everyone may be the best route for politics, but it doesn't work that well in fluffy comedy movies. ★★½

Editor's note: The following is a portion of Friendsville correspondent Lucretia Sines' column, the bulk of which appears on page C-5. A portion of the Accident news was inadvertently placed at the end of the Friendsville column. Her "Personal Note" appears here in its entirety.

On a Personal Note
by Lucretia Sines

With so many service men and women fighting in a war so far away it brings me a feeling of helplessness as it did during Desert Storm. Then, there were a lot of residents of Garrett County who had loved ones over there fighting for a just cause.

This time there are more protesters who think that the war is unjust. Whether you are for or against the war, one thing is certain – everyone over there fighting needs to know that they are thought of and appreciated. That is why when Danielle Willetts told me of her plans to send a company of armed servicemen shoeboxes filled with goodies, I thought, what a great way to show some compassion for those fighting.

Danielle came up with the idea one day when a segment of "Good Morning America" told of the shoebox ideas and pointed people to the Internet for more information. She checked this out and decided on a company of 50 service men and women to send the boxes to. She is incorporating the help of anyone willing to send a shoebox of goodies so that she can make her quota of 50. I went shopping yesterday to fill my shoebox and found that it was really fun and rewarding trying to think of something that a man or woman might like to receive from the USA.

If you would like to be involved in this worthwhile cause, please contact Freda Sines at S&S Market, or go to the Internet for a list of acceptable items and pick your own company and get another shoebox drive going. Why just sit and watch the news all day? Let's do something worthwhile.

Cub Scout Pack 33 will meet Wednesday, April 9, at 6 p.m. in the Friendsville town park.

If roses grow in heaven
Lord please pick a bunch for us,
Place them in Dad's and Mother's arms and tell them they're from us.
Tell them we love and miss them,
and when they turn to smile,
place a kiss upon their cheeks and hold them for awhile.
Because remembering them is easy
I do it every day,
But there's an ache within my heart that will never go away.

Another disappointing finish for Bill Elliott

By AL LEVINE
Cox News Service

Fort Worth, Texas

It was going great early in Sunday's race for Bill Elliott and the No. 9 Dodge. Starting sixth in the Samsung/Radio Shack 500, Elliott passed second-starting Elliot Sadler on Lap 3 and led 43 laps but his engine blew on Lap 46, relegating him to last place.

ELLIOTT

"There's a lot of moving parts in the motor," Elliott said. "There's no telling what happened. It was pretty strong, but it's not too strong when it's loaded on the truck before the race is over. It's been par for the year."

Elliott has only one top-10 finish in the first seven races and came into Sunday's race ranked 28th in points. He also lost an engine at Atlanta three weeks ago.

"We've had a tough start to the season," Elliott said. "We're showing improvement every week. We ran good at Darlington. I feel like we had a good day at Bristol, and we were having a good day here. We've just got to figure out how to stick around until the end."

Gibbs adds apology

Team owner Joe Gibbs, whose primary No. 20 Chevrolet was impounded by NASCAR Friday after failing inspection, apologized for the car and said his shop is investigating how it could be so off on template measurement at the rear window.

"First of all, I want to apologize to NASCAR. I want to apologize to [sponsor] Home Depot. This is our fault," Gibbs said. "We're trying to go back through a process of figuring out how it happened. Obviously, we've got fast race cars. All our other cars fit the templates.

"This one — there is kind of an unusual set of circumstances in our construction process here and we're trying go back and figure out exactly what happened."

He said he expects a fine although losing the car to NASCAR indefinitely seems to be a just penalty.

Not a good day for Labonte

Bobby Labonte continued the streak of pole sitters never winning a Winston Cup race at Texas Motor Speedway.

Although Labonte's car was fastest in qualifying, the car wound up being too sluggish to get through the 500 miles on race day. Labonte earned a black flag from NASCAR for not being up to speed, which put an end to his race after completing only 260 of 334 laps.

Kenseth holds the lead

Winston Cup points leader Matt Kenseth retained his top spot in the standings after a strong sixth-place finish in Sunday's Samsung/Radio Shack 500. He has led the points race for four weeks.

Ryan Newman, driving the No. 12 Dodge, held off Dale Earnhardt Jr. and Jeff Gordon to win the Samsung/Radio Shack 500 at Texas Motor Speedway.

Terrific in Texas

Newman finally able to qualify as a winner once again

By AL LEVINE
Cox News Service

Fort Worth, Texas

The Friday phenom finally became a Sunday sensation.

By winning Sunday's Samsung/Radio Shack 500 at Texas Motor Speedway, Ryan Newman finally overcame a bourgeoning reputation as a Winston Cup driver who is terrific on qualifying day but disappears on race day.

He powered the No. 12 Dodge to victory over Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s No. 8 Chevrolet. It's Newman's first win in a 500-mile race, his first win since last September at New Hampshire and it backs up, finally, his good work in qualifying.

Newman has started no worse than third — including two poles — in his last five races, but his best finish had been a seventh at Las Vegas.

Last year, he led the series with six poles, a rookie record, but converted those into just one win.

Sunday, one could almost hear Newman's sigh of relief over the cheers of the 215,000 packed into the Texas track.

"It's very significant," Newman said. "It's a very big confidence builder for the entire team. It's more directly a confidence builder for [crew chief] Matt [Borland], the lead engineer Mike Nelson and the shop guys. We're primarily the guys who are responsible for what gets put into that race car."

A call for two tires on the No. 12 car on the final pit stop proved to be decisive. All the other contenders, including Earnhardt and third-place finisher Jeff Gordon, opted for four fresh tires.

Earnhardt passed Newman for the lead on the first lap of the restart with 46 laps remaining. But with 11 laps left, Newman ran him down and regained the lead for good.

"Even if we would have finished second, I feel that was the right decision," Newman said. "If we had taken four tires and three [contending] cars had taken two and beaten us out [of the pits], we were pretty much guaranteed not to have a shot to win the race.

"When Junior got by me, I kind of anticipated him pulling out a little bit farther and when he started coming back [to me], I was getting pretty excited. Then when I saw the 24 [Gordon] catching me I was like, 'Well, I'm getting excited over nothing.'"

Gordon got underneath Newman's back bumper, drawing air off him, and Newman did the same to leader Earnhardt. That was another turning point, Newman said.

"Fortunately, Jeff got zero tight behind me and while I was zero tight behind Junior he got tight enough that I was able to work by him," said Newman. "Track position was the biggest, important thing today."

Newman's team has struggled with its switch from Ford to Dodge. Then it got thrown a curve when NASCAR mandated the body location of the cars.

"Just because we won this race doesn't mean we've figured it out," Newman said, "but it was one of the tough things as far as adapting. Not just the body location but the body itself. There are some guys in Dodges out there that are struggling just because of the body location and the new nose."

But a pep talk Sunday morning proved prophetic.

"I told everybody this morning we were trying to turn the corner and today I think we did," Newman said. He hadn't had a top five finish since September. And he finally won a 500-miler. "It's one for the record books," Newman said.

Pole-sitter Bobby Labonte wrecked off Turn 2 on Lap 231 and finished 37th. Points leader Matt Kenseth paddled his lead by 27 points to a 155-point advantage over teammate Kurt Busch with a sixth-place finish.

Fort Worth, Texas

Jeff Gordon drove his No. 24 Chevrolet underneath Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s rear bumper, trying to shake the No. 8 Chevy out of second place in the last laps Sunday.

Just a couple of guys having some fun.

"We got to moving each other around," Earnhardt Jr. said. "It was clean racing. He gave me a bump up near [turns] three and four, but I was ready for it. He knows exactly how much bumper to give somebody to move them out of the way without spinning them out. I didn't even have to get off the gas. I felt him touch me and lift the tires off the ground enough to move the car.

EARNHARDT

"When you're racing somebody . . . he knows good and well if he had wrecked me, he would have had to deal with the consequences. And that's not a fun thing, to have to go through a year watching your back all the time."

No harm, no foul, according to Gordon.

"I got underneath him, but he just ran me down low and we slid around and bumped and banged," Gordon said. "It was a battle and he made it difficult. It was fun. If we were going for the win, we both probably would have wrecked."

Petty sits out due to injury

Christian Fittipaldi subbed for Kyle Petty in the No. 45 Dodge. Petty is still nursing injuries from last week's wreck at Bristol. Starting from the rear of the field, Fittipaldi had his day end on Lap 245 when he lost control of his car, spun into Dale Jarrett's car and crashed into the wall. He finished 38th.

Warning system flunks test

The warning-light system that Texas Motor Speedway imbedded in its asphalt to warn drivers of cautions failed its first test Sunday. Some drivers said the lights were impossible to see in bright sunlight.

"With a cloud cover you can see them, but I didn't even know they were on today," said rookie Jamie McMurray.

"For the Indy Racing League guys, especially at night, I hope it works for them. I think at night with those guys doing 230 mph around here, I think I'd want it to look like a runway out there," Jeff Gordon said. "During the day . . . I hope they didn't spend a lot on it. I never even saw 'em."

Support for soldiers

With support for the war effort displayed throughout the Winston Cup garage, Jimmie Johnson and his sponsor, Lowe's, announced a program that will send care packages to soldiers.

In honor of the nearly 300 Lowe's employees serving in the National Guard and reserves, the company launched its Power of Pride support efforts with a $100,000 contribution to the USO.

Donations to the program will be accepted at the nearly 900 Lowe's stores nationwide. Lowe's is also encouraging citizens to come by its stores and sign support banners for the troops.

A little bit o' luck gives Nemechek Busch victory

By AL LEVINE
Cox News Service

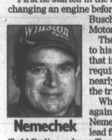
Fort Worth, Texas

Winston Cup regular Joe Nemechek was in the right place at the right time Saturday.

First he started in the back of the field after changing an engine before the O'Reilly 300 Busch series race at Texas Motor Speedway.

Then he escaped damage to his car in a late-lap wreck that involved 15 cars and required a red-flag delay of nearly 21 minutes to clear the track.

When the race went green again with five laps to go, Nemechek inherited the lead from front-running Todd Bodine, who suffered a flat tire dodging the chain-reaction wreck.



Nemechek

And when Hermie Sadler's car hit the wall with two laps to go, the race finished under caution, guaranteeing Nemechek's second Busch win of the season.

Nemechek, who is 26th in the Busch points standings and 17th in the Winston Cup standings, finished 35th in the No. 25 Chevrolet in Sunday's Winston Cup race, the Samsung/Radio Shack 500 at Texas Motor Speedway.

Show of patriotism

In a show of support for U.S. troops in Iraq, 100,000 U.S. flags were given to fans entering the Texas Motor Speedway Sunday. Many of those flags were waved in unison in the frontstretch during the televised pre-race activities.

There were three different flyovers before the race: Four Apache helicopters after a military band played patriotic tunes, a B-1 bomber after the singing of "God Bless America" and three F-16 jets at the end of the national anthem.

Also, two American flags were painted on the infield grass.

Library Seeking Donations Of H.S. Yearbooks

The Ruth Enlow Library is collecting copies of yearbooks from Northern and Southern high schools, along with yearbooks from the old Oakland High School. "Yearbooks are valuable resources for anyone conducting family history research, and also provide a nice picture of the local community through the years," explained library associate Keela Pfaff.

The NHS yearbooks will be added to the collection at the Grantsville library, and persons interested in donating NHS yearbooks to the Grantsville library may contact Kim Lishia at 301-895-5298 or lishia@relib.net. The Southern and Oakland High yearbooks will be housed in the Oakland library, and persons who would like to donate copies of those books can contact Pfaff at 301-334-3996, ext. 105, or pfaff@relib.net.

Because of a lack of shelving and storage space, the library system is only able to accept up to two copies of a particular yearbook. Persons interested in making a donation are asked to call ahead to see if there is a demand for the specific yearbook they wish to donate.

Oakland Woman Faces Charges By GC Deputies

A 19-year-old Oakland resident was charged with resisting arrest after deputies attempted to execute a bad check warrant for her last Thursday afternoon, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Heather Marie Hammark was located at a residence along Mayhew Inn Road, and reportedly refused to cooperate with arresting officers after causing a disturbance inside the residence, police said.

She was released on her own recognizance from the Garrett County Detention Center after a bond hearing before a Garrett County District Court commissioner.

Emotional Well-Being Is Focus Of Cancer Series

"Understanding Feelings and Relationships," a free workshop for all area residents, especially cancer patients, their caregivers, family, and friends, is set for 6 p.m. Monday, April 7, at the Community Services building located adjacent to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

The third session of the American Cancer Society's "I Can Cope" series, the workshop will cover topics including ways to identify emotions surrounding a cancer diagnosis, productive communication between family and friends, and how to adapt to changes brought on by cancer and its treatment. "Helping people cope with difficult emotions that can come dealing with cancer has helped promote better health and improve family relationships," explained licensed social worker Nancy-Elizabeth Nimmich, who will be presenting the program.

Nimmich has been specializing in helping people with cancer since 1990, and has worked with family members of cancer patients and run workshops and retreats focusing on wellness through her practice, Life Transitions. She is also employed part-time by the Garrett County Health Department and serves on the board of the local unit of the American Cancer Society.

For further information, or to register for the workshop, persons may call GCMH's Sara Browning at 301-533-4311. Registration is not required, but is recommended in order to guarantee enough class materials.

GARRETT COUNTY NOTICE OF A PROPOSED REAL PROPERTY TAX INCREASE

The County Commissioners of Garrett County proposes to increase real property taxes.

1. For the tax year beginning July 1, 2003, the estimated real property assessable base will increase by 7.0%(a) from $1,800,071,491(b) to $1,926,324,726(c).
2. If Garrett County maintains the current tax rate of $1.036(d) per $100 of assessment, real property tax revenues will increase by 7.0%(e) resulting in $1,307,984(f) of new real property tax revenues.
3. In order to fully offset the effect of increasing assessments, the real property tax rate should be reduced to $.9681(g), the constant yield tax rate.
4. The County is considering not reducing its real property tax rate enough to fully offset increasing assessments. The County proposes to adopt a real property tax rate of $1.036(h) per $100 of assessment. This tax rate is 7.0%(i) higher than the constant yield tax rate and will generate $1,307,984(j) in additional property tax revenues.

A public hearing on the proposed real property tax increase will be held at 10:00 a.m. on April 15, 2003 in the County Commissioners Meeting Room, County Courthouse, Oakland, MD. The hearing is open to the public, and public testimony is encouraged. Persons with questions regarding this hearing may call 301-334-8970 for further information.

There are certain municipalities within the County which have different county tax rates. The above revenues and tax rates are county wide, excluding municipalities with different county tax rates. The following chart provides the corresponding information and tax rates for those municipalities.

"Forget the past." How often we hear this advice. Why think about it time and time again? What a waste of time and energy! Yet, the accomplishment of this act of forgetting is sometimes difficult, especially when it is ourselves we must forgive. The Bible gives advice on this situation in Philippians 3:12-14 when Paul writes... "Not that I am perfect; but one thing I do, forgetting what lies behind and straining forward to what lies ahead, I press on toward the goal..."

Use your resources toward positive goals for the future. If the apostle Paul could be optimistic about the future in prison, you can believe that God wants the best for you. Make a decision to worship this Sabbath. Talk to God. Tell Him you need forgiveness for the wrongs in your life. In Psalm 32, David confessed, "When I declared not my sin, my body wasted away through my groaning all day long...I acknowledged my sin to Thee, then Thou didst forgive the guilt of my sin...Thou dost encompass me with deliverance."

God will forgive your sin. You can forget it.

B-6 Reduces Nausea During Pregnancy

Mothers-to-be may benefit from at least 10 milligrams daily of vitamin B-6 (also called pyridoxine) before and after conception. A survey was made of pregnant women who made telephone calls to hospitals for various reasons. All were asked about the use of vitamins before and after conception, and whether or not they had experienced nausea or vomiting during pregnancy. Of the women who experienced vomiting, only 20% said they took multiple vitamins (which contained at least 10 milligrams of vitamin B-6). However, among women who did not experience vomiting, 39% said they took this type vitamin. Fortunately, most women are counseled to by their physicians to take a multiple vitamin and mineral supplement during pregnancy.

In the general population B-6 deficiencies are rare, however, they do occur in persons who consume large amounts of alcohol and sometimes in women who take birth control pills over long periods of time.

THE BIBLE

THE GRAND UPSETTER

April 6, 2003

Background Scripture: Mark 11:1 through 12:12.
Devotional Reading: Luke 19:28-40.7.

The people of Jesus' day would probably be aghast at his benign popularity in our time. His name rolls off the tongues of multitudes, he is represented in beatific art as the "gentle Jesus, meek and mild..." and his name is spread obligingly over all manner of things and causes founded on something else than his gospel.

The people of his own day would be surprised because, friend and foe alike, they saw him as the Grand Upsetter. Jesus was not opposed by the scribes and Pharisees because he differed somewhat from their legalism. He was persona non grata with the priests and Sadducees, not because his presence graced the temple. Even his disciples had experienced how his life and teaching could turn their lives upside-down.

His first day started off unobtrusively. Jesus sent two of his disciples to Bethphage, a town on the outskirts of Jerusalem, to find and bring to him a colt to ride into the Holy City. Why a colt? This was an allusion to Zechariah 9:9, depicting the coming of a king both triumphant and humble, an image particularly appropriate for Jesus, who embodied both in his ministry and upset some of the popular Messianic expectations.

The Lord Has Need of It

If asked, "Why are you doing this?", they are to answer, "The Lord has need of it..." "And they sold them what Jesus had said; and they let them go" (11:3-5). We do not know if this was something that Jesus had pre-arranged, but when the owners of the colt realized Jesus had need of it, they acquiesced. Wouldn't it be wonderful if, in our lives, we could let go of this or that because we understood "The Lord has need of it"? Our money, our abundance of material goods, our superfluity of food and drink, our resources?

I deeply regret that ecology has become an ideological issue between conservatives and liberals, the haves and the have-nots. The stewardship of this good earth that God created and has put in our care is basically not a political issue, but a spiritual one at the very deepest level. That is not a matter of being liberal or conservative but obedience to God the creator who "has need of it."

Again, we do not know how much or little of Palm Sunday was planned, if any, but it was an upsetting phenomenon. What could be so wrong about a quiet, orderly religious procession? For the priests and Sadducees, what was wrong was that it took place without their approval. They were the ones who decided what was spiritually correct and incorrect, but Jesus and his disciples had not even asked for a parade permit.

A Den of Robbers

Most upsetting of all, however, is what happened the next day. This unauthorized, unorthodox rabble-rouser dared to come into the temple court and literally drive out the money changers and those who sold sacrificial pigeons there. His words were even more of an affront to them, the legally constituted temple authorities: "Is it not written, 'My house shall be called a house of prayer for all the nations'

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

U.S. Marine Corps Sgt. John D. Leuba, son of Patrice J. Wells and Robin E. Leuba, Accident, recently made his way through the Straits of Gibraltar and into the Mediterranean Sea while assigned to the 26th Marine Expeditionary Unit, based in Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Leuba is one of more than 4,000 Pacific Fleet sailors and Marines aboard the ships of the USS Iwo Jima Amphibious Ready Group.

Leuba's unit is an expeditionary intervention force with the ability to rapidly organize for combat operations in virtually any environment. MEUs are composed of more than 2,000 personnel and are divided into an infantry battalion, aircraft squadron, support group, and command element. With this combination, Leuba's unit supplies and sustains itself for either quick mission accomplishment or clearing the way for follow-on forces.

Leuba is a 1996 graduate of Northern Garrett High School and joined the Marine Corps in June 1997.

4-H Club News

RYAN'S GLADE
by Tara Marple, reporter

The regular monthly meeting was held March 18. Ann Sherrard, Dave Phillips, and Melvin Hartman were there to talk about smokeless tobacco.

Mr. Phillips and Mr. Hartman had given a heartfelt talk about their own experiences with smokeless tobacco. A thank-you card and maple syrup were given to them from the club.

A talk on her project was given by Katelyn Gnegy. Willie Lantz gave an update on the Livestock Association meeting held March 6. A Sugar Shack tour was planned for March 23. Kay Steyer was to call if we were able to go. We have 4-H stickers, suckers, pencils, and buttons to pass out at the Young Child Event to be held at Broad Ford Elementary April 12.

Our next meeting will be held April 15, or if raining, it will changed to April 17. We will be picking up trash along White Church Road and around the community center. Members are also collecting donations around the community to help support the building. Anyone wishing to make a donation is asked to contact one of our members.

Ruth Enlow Library Sets Amnesty Day

The Ruth Enlow Library will hold Amnesty Day on Tuesday, April 8. Patrons are encouraged to bring their overdue books, tapes, videos, and other materials back to any branch of the library on that day. No questions will be asked, and all fines will be forgiven, according to library director Cathy Ashby.

The amnesty, however, does not include overdue fines still on record from previously returned materials or fines on materials returned after April 8.

Each year the Ruth Enlow Library loses books, some of which are legitimately lost and will never be recovered. Most of the lost books, however, are still in the possession of the original borrower.

"What makes these losses especially difficult to bear is their effect on other borrowers," said Ashby. "Imagine the frustration of a patron who desperately needs a particular volume to complete a project or some research, but finds that week after week the necessary book is, according to library records, checked out."

The director added that at a time when book costs are spiraling upwards, replacing a lost or missing book can often be far more than the original purchase price.

For more information, persons may call 301-334-3996, ext. 101.

Woman Charged With DUI After Mem. Drive Stop

A Kitzmiller woman was arrested for driving under the influence (DUI) by the Oakland Police Department Thursday evening on Memorial Drive.

Linda Lee Welch, 31, was stopped at approximatedly 7:23 p.m. after her Jeep Wrangler was reportedly observed crossing the center line three times. A short investigation led to Welch's arrest on the DUI charge. She was transported to the Garrett County Jail, and was later released on her own recognizance.

Spider Blamed In Single-Vehicle Crash Saturday

A Westernport man told Maryland State Police troopers that a spider distracted his attention from his driving Saturday and caused him to lose control of his vehicle on Westernport Road. Both the driver and his passenger were slightly injured in the 11:59 a.m. single-vehicle mishap.

Joseph Melvin Kyle III, 20, was traveling south between New Germany Road and Pine Swamp Road, in the area known as the Elbow, when passenger Autumn Marie Buckley, 20, Frostburg, said there was a spider on her leg. Kyle told police that as he reached over to swipe it off her leg, he took his eyes off the roadway and his 2004 AMC Eagle drifted off the right and struck several trees.

Units from the Tri-Towns Ambulance Service transported Kyle and Buckley to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where a spokesperson said they were treated and released. No charges were filed by state police.

Tethering Your Dog

Q. My boxer and I just moved downtown. I love the convenience of walking to the stores, but I can't bring Jackson in with me. Is it safe to tie him up outside, or should I leave him behind when shopping? — Tom L., Tampa, Fla.

A. Bringing Jackson along is a judgment call on your part. First and foremost, is he comfortable in an urban environment yet? The noise and crowds can cause even the best-trained dog to become nervous and antsy.

Second, how does your dog interact with other canines? If Jackson is well-socialized and amiable, "turf wars" are less likely to occur.

Third — and this is a daily consideration — are the destinations you want to take him to safe enough to tie him outside?

There are two preparatory steps to take here. First, get Jackson used to the city and his place in it. Take him for walks and incorporate training sessions into them, especially sit-stay sessions. Make sure that he will stay quietly, without getting restless, for several minutes.

Next, before taking Jackson on your daily errands, go on a scouting expedition of your own. At each stop, ask yourself the following questions:

- Is there a safe, sturdy place to tether him, so that he doesn't trip pedestrians or go into the street?
- Can you see him at all times when you're in the store?
- How do pedestrians and customers react to other dogs that are passing or are tethered nearby?

Note all these factors, and any others that you think will be a concern, and design a "Jackson shopping trip" that will let him come along with you on at least a few errands of short duration.

Strange BUT TRUE

Local Families Deal With Autism On A 24-7 Basis

By Beth L. Bowers

Imagine being in a small room with a strobe light flashing, a radio tuned in between two stations, and numerous other annoying things bombarding you over and over. That is how some explain their everyday lives dealing with autism.

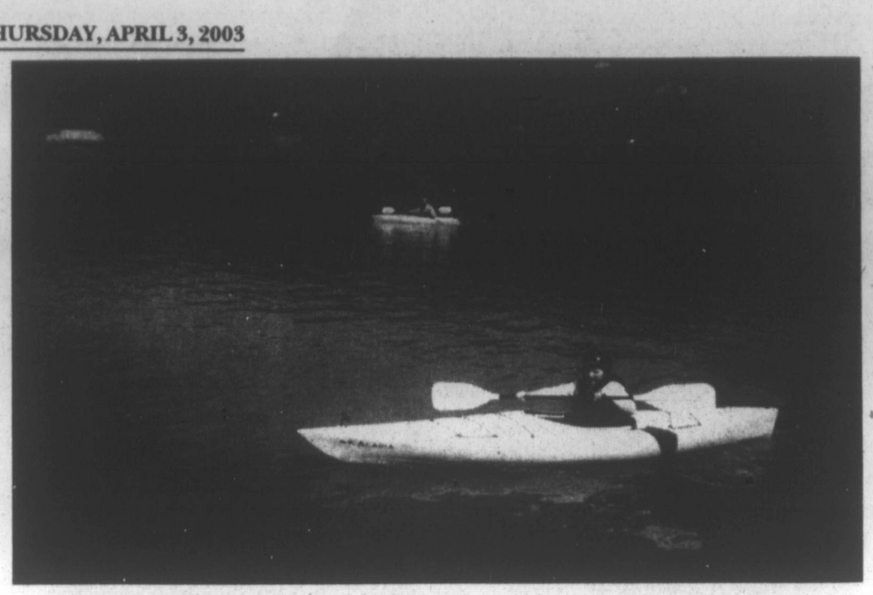
Every degree of this disorder is different just like every individual is different, and there are many children and families dealing with this complex brain disorder in our local community.

Meet Joey Sizemore of Accident. He will be 13 in May, and is the son of Karen and Jeff Sizemore. He said he plans on becoming a cartoonist and an inventor.

Joey was diagnosed with autism at the age of 18 months. According to his mother, within two weeks after he received his immunizations he refused to eat and has "sensory problems." She said at first she thought it was a reaction to the shots, but they discovered it was much more than that. He was eventually diagnosed at the age of 3½, and by then he wouldn't even try to talk.

Karen home-schooled Joey until the fifth grade, when he entered Accident Elementary School. She said he performed extremely well, and the children instantly formed a very protective circle around him.

This year, middle school has proved more difficult, partly because he has been separated from his elementary school friends, said Karen.



NOT SLOWING HIM DOWN – Being autistic hasn't slowed down Joey Sizemore, seen above paddling for a gold medal on the Yough at the W.Va. 2002 Summer Games. Joey is one of 1.5 million Americans who are believed to suffer from some degree of autism, according to the Autism Society of America. Michael Clapper, who battles a different degree of autism, is seen below diligently working at his workbench. His mom Karen said he is very mechanical, and will take time to figure out how a toy works instead of simply playing with it. Read more about Joey's and Michael's stories in the accompanying article.

"We try to keep our sense of humor," said Karen. "He has really delighted us with some of the things he comes up with."

She added that a lot of children with this disorder communicate using commercial jingles or lines from movies. She said that during a pause in the action of her daughter's talent show recently, Joey jumped up and yelled out a line from the Pollyanna movie. "You just have to laugh," she said, "although his teenage brother finds him a little embarrassing at times."

One aspect of his disorder is that he obsesses a lot, Karen said. "We try to channel that obsession into teaching," she said. "For awhile he was obsessed with Volkswagen cars, so every time I saw one, I would ask the owner if I could take a picture of it. Joey has a photo album full of pictures of Volkswagens. Right now the challenge is trying to figure out how to channel his new obsession with time travel."

Karen added that another aspect of Joey's condition is that he has sensory defensiveness, which is an over activation of the protective senses, according to FamilyFun.com.

"It is a misconception that it makes clothing feel like spiders on the skin or walking stairs seem like scaling cliffs. Individuals with sensory defensiveness can be described as sometimes overactive emotional, and/or sensory-seeking," according to FamilyFun.com.

But through all this, Joey has been very active with the Special Olympics, having competed and taken the gold in alpine skiing, bowling, and kayaking.

Karen said they take it one day at a time, but sometimes it is extremely hard – for example, the time Joey communicated what he has been feeling. "Joey told me, 'I hate the world, and the world hates me,'" Karen said.

Karen is the president of the Autism Focus Group in Garrett County, and urges persons who want to get involved or have questions to contact her at 301-746-8043.

As with all disorders there are varying degrees. Michael Clapper is at the opposite end of the scale from Joey. Michael, 4, is the son of Karen and Mark Clapper.

Michael's speech is delayed approximately two years, and is about six months to one year behind with his cognitive and gross motor skills.

"Loving a child with autism is easy; communication with one can be very hard," Karen said. "It has been very hard trying to understand and deal with everything concerning Michael, but we just take it one day at a time."

At first, they thought Michael was simply hard of hearing, and had three sets of tubes. At his 3-year check up his vocabulary was still only about five words, Karen said.

Just recently he was taken to the Kennedy Krieger Institute in Baltimore, where he was diagnosed with PDD/NOS.

"The diagnosis was very hard on the family. After the guilt was over, then it was easier to accept," Karen said. "At first, we wondered what caused it and where it came from. Then, once you can just accept and love Michael unconditionally, it is a lot easier to accept. I will never forget explaining to Kaitlynn, Michael's 5-year-old sister, that Michael had autism. I was explaining that Michael was now very 'special.' She looked at me and said with a puzzled look, 'Mom, Michael already is special.' I started to cry because my 5-year-old said it all.

"I know that Michael gets frustrated when he can't say what he wants, and that hurts. As a mother, I want to give Michael everything. I have to teach him to be independent and to learn to do things for himself. Sometimes that is hard. I know that Michael is very intelligent and that he is going to do something wonderful with his life. Michael is very mechanical. He will take time to figure out how a toy works instead of just playing with it."

Karen said Michael will start kindergarten in the fall and she is very nervous about the new environment, but after talking with some of the teachers and administrators at the school she said she started to feel more at ease.

"We take it one day at a time. Any support that we get is always welcomed and appreciated. Early intervention, lots of love, and community awareness for people who are just like Michael is the key," Karen said.

Degrees Of Autism Vary; No One Group Targeted

By Beth L. Bowers

By definition, autism is a complex brain disorder that often inhibits a person's ability to communicate, respond to surroundings, or form relationships with others. But beyond that is what can't be gleaned from a Web site or dictionary, and that is what a devastating disorder many children and their families must deal with on a daily basis.

April has been named National Autism Awareness Month, and cities around the country are participating in the walkathon program called Walk F.A.R., which was launched by the National Alliance for Autism Research (NAAR) a few years ago.

Autism was first identified more than 50 years ago, is usually diagnosed between the ages of 2 and 3, and affects people of all racial, ethnic, and socioeconomic backgrounds.

There are many different degrees of the disorder, but most people with the condition will require lifelong supervision and care and have significant language impairments.

Autism is what is referred to as a spectrum disorder, because the symptoms and characteristics can be presented in a wide variety of combinations, from mild to severe. Two children with the same diagnosis can act completely difference from one another and have totally different levels of skills.

There are many terms used to describe children within this spectrum, such as autistic-like, autistic tendencies, autism spectrum, high-functioning or low-functioning autism, and more-abled or less-abled. According to the Web site of the Autism Society of America, more importantly than the terms used is that "children with autism can learn and function productively and show gains with appropriate education and treatment."

Some individuals mildly affected may exhibit only slight delays in language and greater challenges with social interactions. The person may have difficulty initiating and/or maintaining a conversation.

"Communication is often described as talking at others (for example, a monologue on a favorite subject that continues despite attempts by others to interject comments)," said the ASA.

At the present time, the causes of autism are unknown, and there are no specific medical treatments or cure; therefore, diagnosis is based solely upon behavioral observations.

Most specialists agree that a child should be evaluated if she or he has: not babbled or cooed by one year; not gestured, pointed, or waved by one year; not spoken a single word by 16 months; not spoken a two-word phrase by two years; or experiences any loss of any language skills at any age.

Parents should also be alerted if the child does not respond to his/her name; does not follow directions at all; appears to have a hearing impairment at times; does not know how to play with toys; does not smile socially; has odd movement patterns; or has poor eye contact.

But parents must understand that if their child exhibits these signs that does not mean he/she is autistic. This is merely a warning sign, and further evaluation by medical professionals is recommended.

According to the NAAR, Autism Spectrum Disorders currently encompass the following:

Autistic Disorder, also know as "classic autism": This affects the person's ability to form relationships and respond appropriately to the environment.

Asperger Syndrome: This neurobiological disorder differs from autistic disorder, in that individuals with this syndrome do not have a delay in spoken language development. However, they can have serious deficits in social and communication skills. People with Asperger syndrome often have obsessive, repetitive routines and preoccupations with a particular subject matter.

Childhood Disintegrative Disorder (CDD), also known as "regressive autism": Children with CDD typically develop normally for two to four years before developing a condition that resembles autistic disorder. Typically language, interest in the social environment, and often toileting and self-care abilities are lost. There may also be a general loss of interest in the environment.

Rett Syndrome: This is a complex neurological disorder that affects mainly girls, but there are reports of males who have this disorder. Rett syndrome is genetic in origin, and is among the most common genetic causes of profound intellectual and physical disability in girls, occurring more commonly than 1 in 10,000 female births. Individuals with Rett syndrome develop normally until 6 to

SPAY DAY ESSAY WINNERS ANNOUNCED – Four students, all from Southern Middle School, were honored this week for their participation in an essay contest sponsored by PAWS (Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety) and The Republican newspaper. The winners were presented with U.S. Savings Bonds, donated by F&M Bank, this week. See story. Seated from left are Joanna Guy, first place winner; Michael Gibbons, second; Brittany Harvey, third; and Rebekah Rush, honorable mention. Standing in the same order are Mary McEwen of The Republican, Stephanie Beddow of PAWS, C. Louise Beckman, assistant manager of F&M, and Polly English-Ramsay, SMS language arts teacher who urged her students to participate in the contest. (See the winning essays elsewhere on this page.)

Winners In PAWS/Republican Spay Day Essay Contest Are Announced

Several area students took part in an essay contest hosted this winter by PAWS (Partners for Animal Welfare) and The Republican newspaper. The winners of that contest have been announced and are as follows:

First place, Joanna Guy; second place, Michael Gibbons; and third place, Brittany Harvey. An honorable mention was given for an essay written by Rebekah Rush. All of the winners are students at Southern Middle School.

Writers were asked to submit creative essays with the purpose of persuading people to have their pets spayed or neutered.

Prizes of $100, $75 and $50 United States Savings Bonds, courtesy of F&M Bank, were awarded to the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place winners, and the honorable mention winner also received a prize.

Judging of the essays was completed by several individuals representing PAWS and The Republican newspaper. The outcome of the contest was originally intended to coincide with Spay Day, which is February 25, but because of the harsh winter weather, the contest was delayed.

Despite the delay, the purpose of the contest remains relevant, organizers said, which is to urge all pet owners to spay and/or neuter their pets.

"I think it is wonderful that these students took the time to enter the contest and express their compassion for the plight of the homeless, unwanted dogs and cats in our area," said Annette Robinson, PAWS president. "At the same time they've expressed how much their own pets mean to them. The children have done a great job of telling the public what spaying and neutering is all about; why it is beneficial to the animals and how it is critical in the fight against pet overpopulation. In distinct and creative ways, they've given a voice to the voiceless victims of this national tragedy.

"Thanks to everyone who submitted an essay. Thanks also to the Republican and F&M Bank for partnering with us on this project," Robinson added.

FIRST PLACE
Joanna Guy
6th Grade, age 11
Southern Middle School

Oh darn! That was a close call – I just missed catching a chipmunk! Oh, you're here already. Hi, I'm Bob the cat and I'm here to tell you about the importance of spaying and neutering pets. Earlier today I heard my beloved owner Joanna asking her mother about my surgery (when I got neutered) and whether it hurt me. When the surgery happened, I didn't even know it was going on. Dr. Deal gave me an anesthetic and I couldn't feel a thing. I was drowsy and had a little bit of pain afterwards, but I recovered quickly. In fact, I was running around the house the following day.

Sadly, some of my feline friends died in the animal shelter because they weren't adopted. I meowed for them so much after they were put to sleep. Animals do not only die in shelters, though. Because of animal overpopulation, cats and dogs sometimes die out in the streets due to starvation and neglect. I was so lucky to have found a loving and caring home, but not all cats and dogs have my good fortune.

Although the neighbor's dog, Dakota, is my arch nemesis, we do share something in common. She has been spayed and I have been neutered. Spaying and neutering are simple procedures. All you have to do is take your pet to a licensed veterinarian. The vet performs a short operation and when it's all over, the animal can't have babies, or cause babies. Although I was only 5 months old, I distinctly remember Dr. Deal saying that it is better to get pets spayed or neutered when they are young. This way there is no chance of a female animal getting pregnant. Please don't let more of my friends die. Spay and neuter today!

SECOND PLACE
Michael A. Gibbons
7th grade, age 12
Southern Middle School

My name is Michael. I am a 7th grader at Southern Middle School. I would like to tell you about my pets, Buddy, Max, and Maggie, and why they have been spayed or neutered. Buddy and Max are my cats. I got Buddy at a pet store and I adopted Max from the Garrett County Animal Shelter.

When you adopt a pet from the animal shelter, it is a requirement that you have them spayed or neutered. I think this is a very good requirement. Not only does this help control the pet population, it is also very beneficial for your pet. Since my cats are inside pets, having them neutered helps keep them from wanting to wander away from home. It also helps them be healthy and helps them live longer.

My dog Maggie is a Golden Retriever. I have only had her a few months. In March she will be old enough to be spayed. By having Maggie spayed she will also stay close to home. It will keep her healthy and help with any behavior problems that she may have. Maggie is also an inside dog and I don't want to take the chance of her having puppies. I might have a hard time finding the puppies a home and I know after seeing them, they would be very hard to part with.

There are so many pets that are not as lucky as mine to have a good home, so please, if you have pets, have them spayed or neutered. There are many good reasons to do it, but the number one reason is because you love them.

THIRD PLACE
Brittany Harvey
6th grade, age 12 Southern Middle School

It is very important to spay and neuter your pets. When you spay and neuter animals you are doing a good deed. There are nearly five million animals being euthanized in America due to overpopulation. This crisis can be prevented by taking your pet to a local vet, and getting them spayed or neutered, before they reach the breeding age.

The public needs to be aware of spay and neuter programs. PAWS and other Animal Welfare groups offer education and assistance by holding spay/neuter events to increase the public's awareness. Twenty percent of cat guardians think their cat is too young to be altered, and eighteen percent say they aren't able to afford the spay/neuter surgery. Twenty-one percent of dog guardians want to breed their dog, and thirteen percent think their dog is too young to be altered. It costs U.S. tax persons an estimated two billion dollars, each year, to round-up, house, kill, and dispose of homeless animals.

Anyone can participate in Spay Day USA. All you have to do is have one animal spayed or neutered. It is very important to let people know that if they don't have a pet, or if theirs is already altered, they can still participate by offering to pay for the spay or neuter of a friend or relative's animal companion. They can also donate money to a shelter nearest to them to help spay/neuter the animals. Argentina, Australia, Canada, Korea, and Mexico also have Spay Day.

So please do us all a big favor and have your pets spayed or neutered today.

Help Stamp Out Pet Over-Population.

Drug Bust Made At Underage Drinking Party

A visit by Maryland State Police troopers at an underage party in the Accident area resulted in the arrest of a juvenile on a drug charge. The early Sunday morning incident unfolded after troopers were summoned to the scene to investigate an apparently unrelated criminal matter.

Police who arrived at the Garrett Highway residence at approximately 12:39 a.m. discovered the underage drinking party and immediately began questioning the individuals at the home. Ten civil citations for alcohol violations were issued, and the unnamed juvenile was arrested when suspected marijuana was located in the residence.

The suspect, who faces charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, and possession of alcohol while under the legal drinking age of 21, was later released into parents' custody.

Blaze Destroys Ranger Pickup

A 2002 Ford Ranger pickup truck was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin Saturday afternoon in the Friendsville area.

According to a report filed by Steve Wendling, Maryland deputy state fire marshal, the owner of the vehicle, Cody Vanslyke, reported that the truck became stuck in mud approximately one mile off White Rock Road. During his efforts to free the vehicle, Vanslyke said that he noticed smoke coming from under the hood. He then set out on foot to get assistance and, upon his return, discovered the truck on fire.

Responding to the 12:55 p.m. alarm was the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department. It took firefighters only about five minutes to extinguish the fire, but the vehicle was declared a total loss. Wendling estimated damages to be $25,000.

Commissioners Proclaim Young Children's Week

Members of the "Month of the Young Child" Committee, a subcommittee of Kids First, met with the Garrett County Commissioners on Tuesday to designate April 7 to 13 as the "Week of the Young Child."

"The intent of this subcommittee is to highlight the importance of families, early childhood professionals, and communities working together to support every child's healthy development and early learning," said a subcommittee member.

In a proclamation, the commissioners urged all Garrett County residents to focus attention on the importance of children's early years (birth to age 8). They are also promoting the "Family Fun Festival" celebrating the "Day of the Young Child," scheduled for Saturday, April 12, at Broad Ford Elementary School from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Early childhood agencies and organizations will be providing a day of fun, food, and hands-on activities for young children and their families. Older siblings are also welcome.

There will be special guest appearances by Dr. Gail Herman, professional storyteller and puppeteer; Dr. Paul Getty, juggling clown unicyclist; and Paul Shogren, children's musician.

"The day promises to be full of surprises, games and giveaways," said Lou Ellen Sturm, subcommittee chairperson. "It has been our goal to organize an event that would promote healthy, family-oriented activities that would enable parents/caregivers to walk away encouraged to help their children learn and succeed in school."

"Many of the County's early childhood agencies/organizations have collaborated to make this first Family Fun Festival just that – fun for the family," she added.

Activities featured at the event will include a petting zoo, face painting, "Pin the Tail on the Bunny," "Create Your Own Magnet," puppet construction, "Make Your Own Book," tie-dye butterflies, "My Personal Rainbow" activity, and the "Hungry Caterpillar" activity.

Also scheduled will be children's fingerprinting with the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, a brushing and flossing activity with the Garrett County Health Department Dental Care Center, car seat safety with the Garrett County Health Department Community Outreach KISS Program, and "Let's Go Fishing" with the Head Start Fatherhood Initiative.

Throughout the festival, a costumed "fruit" and a costumed "vegetable" will mingle with the children, hand out nutritional information to parents, and serve lunch. Judy Overlook staff will also serve free ice cream. Companies donating to the festival are Sysco, Pepper's, and the Schmidt's Baking Company.

The event is free and no reservations are required. For more information, persons may call Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families at 301-334-1189.

THE WEEK OF THE YOUNG CHILD, April 7 to 13, was proclaimed by the Garrett County commissioners on Tuesday. The officials urged residents to focus attention on the importance of children's early years (birth to age 8). To celebrate the Week of the Young Child, local early childhood agencies and organizations are sponsoring a Family Fun Festival on Saturday, April 12, at Broad Ford Elementary School from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. A variety of activities are planned, including face painting, a petting zoo, and puppet construction. 4-H Club News

NORTH GLADE
by Samantha Gibson, reporter

The North Glade 4-H Club's meeting was held Thursday, March 20, at the 4-H Extension office. The members in attendance were: Cody Gilpin, Derek Gilpin, Lee Custer, Todd Custer, Samantha Gibson, Mike McConnell, Rachal Winegardner, Josh McKnight, Emily Lipscomb, Kari Bernard, Kevin Bernard, Nicole McClosky, Abby Buckley, and Joe McClosky. We also welcomed four new members: Lora Ashby, Sara Ashby, Turner Ashby, and Thomas Ashby.

The meeting was called to order by President Lee Custer, the secretary's report was given by Emily Lipscomb, and the treasurer's report was given by our leader, Debbie Friend.

Old business discussed was:

1. Achievement Night — Members were reminded of Achievement Night on April 5 at 6:30 p.m. at Northern High School, and all members were encouraged to attend. Each family was reminded to bring a finger food. Debbie Friend provided Lee Custer with a list of responsibilities for leading the group in the Achievement Night awards ceremony.

2. 4-H Camp — Members were reminded to get their registration forms into the Extension office by May 1 for 4-H camp in June and told that camp fills up fast.

New business discussed was:

1. Market animal weigh-in — The dates are April 5, May 3, and July 19.

2. The Garrett County Spring Show will be held June 21. Members are encouraged to participate in this show; it is good practice for the fair.

3. Health Checks — must be completed prior to June 21.

4. Program Books — New club 2003 program books were handed out to members.

5. Fund-raising — Fund-raising ideas were discussed and it was decided that to start we would sell hoagies. The hoagies will be sold until our next meeting on April 17. Members will turn in their hoagie sale forms at the April meeting, and hoagies will be delivered on the morning of Friday, April 25. Anyone interested in purchasing hoagies from the North Glade 4-H Club may contact June McClosky at 301-387-2990.

The program for this meeting was Animal Activity Boards (provided by the Extension office). Three stations were set up, one for beef, one for swine, and another for lambs. Members rotated to each station where a parent volunteer or senior member helped them complete the activities for each animal. The members learned about the different breeds of each animal, traits of each, and the parts of each. It was a fun, hands-on activity.

The Clovers had fun playing a game called "Guess what animal I have."

The next meeting will be held Thursday, April 17, at 7 p.m. at the North Glade 4-H building. The program for this meeting will be Woodworking, led by Cliff Woods, and the refreshments will be provided by the Woods family.

Garden, Flower Show Slated At GC Lighthouse

"Green Thumb Day," the county's second annual garden and flower show, is slated for 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, May 3, at the Garrett County Lighthouse on the western outskirts of Oakland. Admission is free for the event, which is designed to promote "a sound mind, healthy body, and a safe and beautiful environment," according to chairperson Roberta Andersen.

The garden show will include more displays and activities than last year's event, Andersen said. "We have planned activities for the whole family, with special events for children," she stated. "After the long, hard winter, we think that everyone will be ready to welcome spring, so there will be demonstrations, displays and workshops dealing with gardening and landscaping."

Representatives from local florists and nurseries will be on hand to answer questions about gardening, care of houseplants, and flower arranging, and master gardeners will demonstrate grafting and composting. Among the special attractions will be a display of live bees furnished by Charlie Strauss, retired director of the Hickory Environmental Education Center, and an exhibit on herbs and herbal products furnished by Nancy-Elizabeth Nimmich of Honey Acres Farm.

Additional flower and garden displays will be furnished by a number of local businesses, including Julie's Greenhouse, Country Garden Expressions/Nature's Own, Green Acres, Flowers by Webers, 219 Outdoor Center, Advantage Florist, and Farmers Market. Preston County Master Gardeners and the Mountain Laurel Garden clubs will also participate. There will also be special Mother's Day sales, homemade bake sales, door prizes, a 50/50 drawing, a final auction event, and food sales.

Limited parking will be available on site, and a shuttle service will operate from the Oakland municipal parking lot. The Lighthouse grounds can also be accessed from the municipal parking lot via the town's footbridge over the Little Yough River.

Green Thumb Day is a joint effort of the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland, Garrett County Lighthouse, the Maryland Cooperative Extension, FCE/Homemakers, the Mountain Laurel Garden Club, West Virginia Master Gardeners, and local merchants.

In Loving Memory of
Martha Jane Shaffer
12/1/24-3/27/00

When I come to the end of the road,
And the sun has set for me;
I want no rites in a gloom filled room,
Why cry for a soul set free?
Miss me a little–but not too long,
And not with your head bowed low;
Remember the love that was once shared,
Miss me–but then let me go.
For there is a journey we all must take,
And each must go alone.
It's all a part of the Master's plan,
A step on the road to home.
When you are lonely and sick of heart,
Go to the Friend we know;
And bury your sorrows in doing good deeds,
Miss me–but let me go.

Your Family

NEWS from THE MARYLAND FOREST, PARK & WILDLIFE SERVICE

SAFE DEBRIS BURNING

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Forest Service, in cooperation with the Garrett County Health Department and the Garrett County Emergency Management Office, would like to remind people that spring is traditionally a time of high forest fire danger in Maryland.

In 2002, there were 736 wildfires in the state, which burned 5,267 acres. Garrett County Emergency Management received 46 natural fuel or woods fire calls in 2002. These fires burned 15 acres.

Typically, spring is the time of the year when many property owners are conducting outdoor burning of leaves and other debris. Unfortunately, many people do not burn safely, resulting in wildfires. Fifty-three percent of the natural fuel fires in Garrett County in 2002 were caused by unsafe debris burning, and 81 percent of these fires occurred Monday through Wednesday.

In order to prevent wildfires from occurring and causing destruction to private homes and woodlands, the state of Maryland has established open-air burning regulations. These regulations apply to activities in woodlands and within 200 ft. of woodlands, or activities adjacent to or within an area where flammable materials could ignite and carry fire to woodlands. These regulations are:

1) A natural or constructed fire break at least 10 feet wide must completely surround the material to be burned.

2) Adequate personnel and equipment must be present to prevent the fire from escaping.

3) At least one responsible person must remain at the burning location until the last spark is out.

4) Permissible burning hours are between 4 p.m. and 12:00 midnight Eastern Standard Time (EST). After the time change on April 6, the burning times change to between 5 p.m. and 1 a.m.

5) All open air burning requires a permit from the county health department. Open air burning prior to 4 p.m. EST also requires a burning permit from DNR. Open air burning of any type not in accordance with these regulations is subject to citations and fines ranging from $70 to $260. Landowners interested in conducting open air burning are encouraged to burn after 5 p.m. when a burning permit from the DNR Forest Service is not required, and the air is generally more moist and calm, reducing the chances of the fire escaping.

If a landowner wishes to burn before 5 p.m., the Garrett County Health Department and the Maryland DNR Forest Service have entered into a cooperative agreement to issue a combined burning permit. The landowner should contact the Forest Service office at Mt. Nebo Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., at 301-334-3296. Landowners are encouraged to contact the office several days before they plan on burning to arrange a site visit with one of the Forest Rangers.

Prior to doing any open air burning, the landowner should contact Garrett County Emergency Management at 301-334-1929 to let them know about the controlled burning. This reduces the chances of the local volunteer fire department being dispatched on false alarms.

When conducting open air burning, it is the landowner's responsibility to make sure the fire doesn't escape, and to make sure the fire is out cold before leaving it.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

The saying is "If March comes in like a lion, it will go out like a lamb." It does not hold true in Bittinger where March seems to be going out like a lion, or maybe even a leopard. I am sure we had lots of snow in the beginning of March, at least on March 9 when only about 40 people made it out to church, including, of course, Ferne Beachy and Cindy and Sam Stanton. That was when Cindy spotted her first robin through a light snow flurry.

But today it is much worse, with enough new snow that it is questionable whether I can get out of my lane. I was just barely able to push the front door open to let out our dog "Boo."

As depressing as it was outside even worse is the news about the war, with POWs, etc. One person who almost sounded like someone from Bittinger was interviewed, and his family members were Miller and Hershberger. What was really sobering was the quote from an American military officer in Iraq that it will be another VietNam. What about the projected cost of 75 hundred billion dollars? That number is too big to even comprehend.

A little less depressing other than the escape from the weather or the news is the sports channels. This year's "March Madness" was as exciting as last year for the many Terp fans in Bittinger, including my Glotfelty clan, Gary Buckel, the Housleys, and half-hearted support from the WVU fans like the Southerlys, who do root for Maryland when they are not playing West Virginia. However, Maryland went down in the third round.

My second cousin, Mary O'Brien, dropped off a Terp shirt for me last week. She, like her twin sister Marian, is among the many blonde Buckle descendants, in spite of the fact we have Indian blood. I believe her grandmother was Mary Buckle, who was only two generations from the Indian blood.

Well, some of the long-time residents of our area were caught off guard as far as what kind of winter weather we could still look forward to. One gentleman in Foodland in McHenry pointed to the bag of ice-melt salt and said, "We will not need this anymore." But he did agree with me that none of the months of the year are truly out of the question for a little snow.

On the way home I stopped by Garrett Peat Products to get a small, smooth scrap of stone from the scrap pile for a gravestone for our little dog Emily.

Jack Beitzel predicted rain, but Gary Buckel told Claire we would get a couple inches of snow. It is way beyond a couple of inches, and it is not finished yet. My guess is we will get a total of at least six inches. I can only hope and pray that Jack will be able to get out his snow removal machine one more time or else I will be snowed in again.

I just hope that the year will not repeat my high school senior year when the excellent skiing went through April. That was just wonderful for me then. But I don't think I can stand another month of winter now.

The fine crop of crocus in Kenny Beitzel's lawn is now buried in a deep snow. They were the first sign of garden flowers in Bittinger so far. But I also saw a whole bunch of the small humble dandelion-like wildflowers (colt's feet) along Rock Lodge Road. They are the first spring wildflowers. They are good symbols of hardy endurance. They grow in the worst soil possible, which is hard-packed and gravelly type, and they open their blossoms when snow is ready to fly. A few years ago I saw them at the same time as the first new lambs of that year. I believe the Bittinger ewes have more sense than to drop any lambs yet. Any stray green blades of grass in their pasture are few and far apart. I still have not improved on the theory that something in the new green grass triggers labor in sheep.

I imagine today's weather is quite a shock for Lesa Whittemore, as she just got home from a swing through the Southwest. David will be headed back to Las Vegas, which will be quite a relief for someone used to desert-like weather.

My Mere slept over Friday night with the Diehlman family at their almost completed new house on Legeer Road. Mere and Hannah took an exploratory walk into their new territory and got momentarily lost until Hannah recognized a sign. Hannah returned to my house with Mere later in the afternoon for dinner with us and then was whipped away by Patty to another dinner at her Aunt June's (Steve's sister) at their her house.

I can't believe my eyes that my line of big pine trees are frosted again, except that just now a heavy gust of north wind caused an avalanche, with snowballs about the size of a soft ball. Those trees tossed hundreds of softballs at what? Not much is moving outside and all my birds have disappeared, seeking shelter. They probably said, "Let's get over to Sheila's feeder and at least we will be out of this wind." I shudder to think what this wind will do with this nice, fluffy, fresh snow. I suspect it will be "white-out" time on roads around Bittinger.

The Rock Lodge spring is running nicely now. This new layer of snow will produce hundreds of gallons of water for our springs, wells, and trees. I still can't get over the damage left behind from our October and November ice storm. Although our landscape never changes, now here and there is a big splintered trunk of a big oak tree among the darker younger ones. Even some of the small young trees in the open are snapped in half, too. My guess is about 10 percent of our trees suffered some damage.

I can't help worrying about just about anything. The other day I thought, what if a terrorist read my column about how our wetlands are the headwater for much of the half of the East. I wonder whether I should call the FBI and urge them to send some patrol to watch out for the Glade, etc. It is highly unlikely a terrorist would read "Notes from Bittinger," but anyway the natural filter system that our wetlands have would probably soak up the foreign substance. I believe I have plenty of the real things to worry about without inventing any far-fetching fiction. What I found out is that it is terrible to have such an imagination.

It is ironic that my Claire and her cousins Robbie and Blakely started their summer jobs today, which was a major cleaning of Lakeside Creamery. It seems the ice cream season is far away today. It does look like maybe their occasional winter shifts of selling fancy coffee to the skiers at the Wisp and popcorn at the Lake might continue for a few more weekends.

It is hard to believe after this incredibly long winter that this is opening day for the Pittsburgh Pirates' new season of baseball. It is predicted to be a better season this year. Just heard that the Pirates were the big winners of the game.

I believe that Lea Stanton is a bit homesick, and she loves to get mail from home. So drop her a line soon. Call Cindy at 245-4452 for her address.

The youth from Emmanuel participated in the Big Brothers/Big Sisters Bowl for Kids' Sake on Saturday, March 29, at Par-Matt Lanes in Oakland. Mike Deem, Derek Buckel, Andrew and Mariel Hady, Landon and Tyler Southerly, Sarah Shawley, David Vagnetti and Torrey Poholsky, along with Meredith Vagnetti and Sally Poholsky, participated. Over $400 was raised for this most beneficial organization.

JoEllen Graham, St. Albans, W.Va., visited her sister, Beulah Buckel, over the weekend.

On a Personal Note by Lucretia Sines

With so many service men and women fighting in a war so far away it brings me a feeling of helplessness as it did during Desert Storm. Then, there were a lot of residents of Garrett County who had loved ones over there fighting for a just cause.

This time there are more protesters who think that the war is unjust. Whether you are for or against the war, one thing is certain – everyone over there fighting Schmidt showed several of her rabbits at the Washington, Pa., Fairgrounds. This was an American Rabbit Breeders and Pa. American Rabbit Breeders sanctioned show. Rachel received two red ribbons. Darlene and Pam Schmidt accompanied Rachel. Rachel raises rabbits as one of her 4-H projects. She has shown rabbits for nine years in 4-H, but this was her first big show.

Kevin Haenftling, Kara Savage, and Rachel Schmidt represented North Star 4-H club at County Public Speaking at Garrett College on Saturday. Kevin won a red ribbon for his prepared speech, "How to Make a Rug," in the junior category. Kara received a blue ribbon for her prepared speech, "The History of the Guernsey Breed," in the intermediate division. Rachel won champion on her prepared speech, "Hooked on Dairy," in the senior division.

Rachel will represent Garrett County this Saturday, April 5, at the Regional Public Speaking in Hagerstown.

Members of the North Star 4-H Club participated in the Bowl for Kids' Sake on Saturday at Par-Matt Lanes in Oakland. Those bowling were: Kara and Deane Savage; Kevin Haenftling; Brett Stanton; Bryan, Anita and Tessa Gardner; and Jerry and Charlie Sines. Others who attended, but did not bowl, were Nancy Savage, Bonnie and George Haenftling, and Dewey and Jeanette Lipscomb. The North Star 4-H Club has raised the most money out of all the Garrett Co. 4-H clubs for the past two years for Bowl for Kids' Sake.

Elk Garden Food Distribution Ctr. Sets Open House, 25¢ Yard Sale

The Neighbors Helping Neighbors community food distribution center in Elk Gar-den will host an open house and 25-cent yard sale from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, April 12. The center, located along Oak Street next to the town's post office, is the non-profit, non-denominational service project of Pastor Paul McDonald, and its services are available to residents of both West Virginia and Maryland.

The yard sale will feature thousands of items, with a sale price of 25 cents marked for each. The lengthy list of available items includes new clothing, children's educational videotapes, toys and games, kitchen and household appliances, and books. Last year's 25-cent yard sale generated over $700 in sales, with all proceeds going to the center.

The event will also be marked by a daylong distribution of food and a number of other items, including toiletries and non-prescription medications. The regular hours for food distribution are from 9 a.m. to noon on the first and third Saturday of each month.

Those attending will have the opportunity to tour the Neighbors Helping Neighbors center and its food storage and distribution facilities, which currently serve nearly 100 residents of the surrounding area. The large building was constructed last fall through donated or greatly reduced cost services of a number of businesses, including Oakland's CN Metals.

"We hope to be in position soon to offer educational classes and counseling services at the center," McDonald said, noting that literacy training would be one of many classes he hopes to have on the schedule. "We want to give people the tools they need to succeed."

Persons who may be interested in volunteering to assist with the Neighbors Helping Neighbors efforts are encouraged to visit during the open house and speak to McDonald there if they choose, or call him at 304-790-0991.

Our thoughts and prayers are with our troops. God be with the men and women defending our country and God Bless America.

Library News

The second-grade classes will decorate the library windows the second week in April. There are three classes with 18 students in each. The students will see a film strip, watch an Easter story, or be read to while they are in the library once the decorations go up.

Dr. Herto of Every Body's Chiropractic Center of Kingwood had chosen Terra Alta Public Library to be the recipient of his gifts in celebration of the 11th anniversary of their Patient Appreciation Day. Dr. Herto delivered 173 books to the library. Several of these are on the shelves and being circulated. He had asked his patients to bring books and donate them instead of paying for their office visit. This is the second time the Terra Alta Public Library has been chosen to be the recipient.

There are several teams signed up to participate in the seventh annual James A. Gregg Memorial Scholarship Walk-a-Thon. This will be on Friday, May 16, beginning at 5:30 p.m. All information for interested walkers can be picked up at the library. Those who have questions may call 789-2724.

National Library Week will be celebrated April 6-12. There will be movies shown at the library Monday at 6 p.m. and Tuesday through Friday at 3 p.m. A list of the movies will be at the library. Parents and children of all ages are welcome.

AURORA/EGLON

HOLY WEEK SERVICES

The last of pre-Easter services before Holy Week will be held April 9 at Maple Grove Assembly of God, with Rev. Sandy McGinnis bringing the message. This and Holy Week services all begin at 7:30 p.m. on April 13 and 16 there will be a dramatic presentation at the Aurora United Methodist Church. Maundy Thursday, April 17, will be observed at Bethel United Methodist Church with the Rev. Michale Ludle in charge. On Good Friday, St. Paul's Lutheran Church will host the evening's observance.

On Easter Sunday morning, April 20, the 6:30 a.m. Easter sunrise service will be held at the Maple Spring Church of the Brethren, with the Rev Robert Klier providing the meditation. A breakfast will be served in the church basement following those services. Everyone is invited to these Christian observances of Lent and Easter.

TEEN CHALLENGE

Teen Challenge of Fredericksburg, Va., will be ministering in the 10:30 a.m. service this Sunday, April 6, at the Maple Grove Assembly of God.

Teen Challenge is led by the Rev. Michale T. Zello Jr. and is a re-entry program for men who have gone through regular programs offered by various centers and have not been able to cope with a return to normal life. This "new" program is helping men with addictions to drugs, alcohol, etc., to learn a trade and have "the determination gained through Christ" to make it upon their re-entry into society. Men from the center will accompany Rev. Zello and will be sharing their testimony as to what God has accomplished in their lives and what Teen Challenge has meant to them.

For further information, persons may contact Rev. Robert Klier, pastor, at 301-334-1617.

NEW PASTOR AT MAPLE GROVE

The Rev. Robert J. Klier of Mtn. Lake Park, Md., has accepted the call to be pastor of the Maple Grove Assembly of God in Horse Shoe Run. Rev. Klier is married to the former Louise Kitzmiller, and the Kliers have three married children, eight grandchildren, and one great-grandchild. He has been supply pastor at Maple Grove since the beginning of October, and in January the congregation voted to accept him as the full-time pastor. Pastor Klier accepted and he and his wife will continue to live in their Mtn. Lake Park home, but will be available at all times for the church and community.

Rev. Klier plans to be available in the near future at the church. "We look forward to the challenge of serving in the area of the church and believe that God has great things ahead," he said.

Pastor Klier is an ordained minister with the Potomac District Council of the Assemblies of God, whose district offices are in Gainesville, Va. He has been ordained since 1971 and has pastored churches in Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia with his first church being at Cross, W. Va.

The congregation extends an open invitation to all to come worship with Rev. Klier and the Maple Grove Assembly of God.

RAMP DIGGERS NEEDED

The Mt. Grove VFD is still looking for volunteer organizations or individuals who would be willing to assist then in the gathering of ramps in preparation for the annual ramp dinner which is planned for May 4. Those interested are asked to contact Dennis Roth at 735-5035.

AURORA-TERRA ALTA VFW

Post 578, Aurora-Terra Alta Veterans of Foreign Wars, has been busy this month. The Auxiliary ladies went March 17 to Heartland in Kingwood to help with the St. Patrick's Day party for residents. On March 18, the Country Trio played music, while the ladies served refreshments and distributed shamrocks to the residents at Heartland. Then on March 19, they repeated the music, refreshments, and disribution of shamrocks for residents at Hopemont.

The Auxiliary is planning a memorial for each killed-in-action WWI serviceman from this area. Those who have names and photos are asked to call Carol Rumer at 789-6830 or Betty Sereno at 789-6819.

They are also planning an Easter egg hunt at the Terra Alta Park on Saturday, April 19 at 1 p.m. for youth ages 12 and under. Playing for this event will be the Country Trio, Bob Rumer, Randy Thomas, and Harold Sereno. A Loyalty Day program and dinner is planned for May 3 at the Post home in Terra Alta, with Senator John Hunter to be the guest speaker.

REMOVE CEMETERY DECORATIONS, PLEASE

The Aurora Cemetery Association requests that all old decorations be removed from graves there prior to April 15. For those who are unable to remove them, they will be removed for you.

Eglon Cemetery Association also asks that old decorations be removed when placing new ones for Easter or before spring mowing season begins.

Officers of both organizations thank all members for cooperation in making the site an attractive one.

REMINDER

Aurora Girl Scouts want to hear from persons who have loved ones in the armed services. They would like to have names and addresses of those who would appreciate hearing from local girls and receiving small gifts. Persons may contact Sue Shillingburg at 735-3007.

Also, if those who haven't purchased a copy of the 2002-3 Aurora yearbook, may secure one for $20 or two for $35 by contacting either Sue Shillingburg or Stephanie Arnett, the latter at 735-3225.

The Aurora Elementary Spring Book Fair will be held the week of April 14. Persons may contact either the school or Sue Shillingburg to find the times and dates. This is an opportunity to get books by buying one, and getting the second free.

Dairy Outlook

By Ken Bailey, Penn State

This week marks a turning point in the dairy price support program. For the first time in many years, surplus butter, nonfat dry milk and cheese–all three dairy products–are moving into Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) storage. For the week ending March 28, the CCC purchased 1,134,611 pounds of butter, 2,734,876 pounds of cheese, and 10,635,864 pounds of nonfat dry milk.

The good news is that this movement of surplus inventory into the CCC will help support Class III and IV milk prices. The bad news is that this inventory in government storage will over hang the market, extending the period of low milk prices.

THE BIBLE AS VIEWED, from the pew.

Looking back in history is often boring when one is a student; however, if one seeks knowledge and wisdom, one often looks back to see what happens given a specific set of circumstances. We can look back to the time of Jesus and study the Bible as a history book. Once this precious Book is studied and the realization of purpose for life is discerned, then we can get a better perspective of the reasons for the happenings of life. To read only part of the Bible is limiting one to only a part of the picture. Begin in Genesis and see how the earth and everything in it was created. Study the reason for the rainbow (Genesis 9:13) and God's covenant. Read the history of the miracles of Jesus which begin in Matthew. Continue to study why Jesus came to earth and how you can come into His Kingdom when your life ends here on earth. He provides an absolute Way. (See John 14:6) where Jesus is speaking to His disciples and says, "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life. No one comes to the Father but through Me." Won't you consider the short time you are here on earth - your purpose for being here and the fact that Jesus has gone ahead and prepared a place for you (John 14:2). Decide today to accept Him as your LORD and Savior. Find the true purpose and meaning of life. Questions or comments? email Hisway@iceweb.net

Farming On The Mountaintop

The outlook still looks uncertain. It appears that March will be the low point for Class III prices for the year. One must identify the bottom before prices will improve. The Chicago Mercantile Exchange futures markets are expecting milk prices to improve thereafter. Still, there are many uncertainties including: 1) what impact will the Iraqi conflict have on the dairy industry, 2) how long before this conflict will be resolved, 3) will consumer confidence improve thereafter, and 4) will U.S. business activity improve. This industry needs growth in the general economy.

Fruit Production Tips

Take an inventory of pesticide sprays you anticipate using. Do you have enough? Has it been stored properly? If a material was exposed to freezing temperatures it may no longer be effective. If you have questions call the pesticide manufacturer, using the phone number listed on the label.

Dormant oil sprays are very effective at reducing populations of some tree fruit pests. April is a good time to spray fruit trees that were attacked during the growing season by aphids, mites and scale insects, like Lecanium and San Jose scale. (However, dormant oil sprays will burn open leaf and flower buds. If green tissue is showing, apply horticultural oil at the summer, 2%, rate). Spray trees thoroughly with a dormant oil spray, making sure that temperatures are expected to remain above freezing for the 24-hour period after spraying. It is only necessary to spray dormant oil one time. Never spray dormant oil within 10 days of using a sulfur-containing spray. Liquid lime sulfur is a safe and inexpensive material that can be sprayed on raspberry, blackberry, and blueberry plants prior to bud swell to prevent cane diseases. It should also be applied to peach trees when buds begin to swell but before green tissue is visible to help prevent peach leaf curl disease. Apply to plum trees at bud swell to prevent plum pockets disease. Liquid lime sulfur can also burn green tissue. If green tissue is showing, use captan instead.

Fireblight damage on apples and pears should be pruned out now. This will lessen the chance of spreading this bacterial infection in the spring. Bordeaux mix can be applied to apple and pear trees prior to bud swell to reduce the incidence of fireblight. The last two years we had excellent conditions in mid-late April for fireblight infections. Rainfall or morning dews, average temperatures around 60 degrees F. and open blooms. Be prepared to apply a preventative spray of Bordeaux mix to apple and pear trees at budswell to reduce the incidence of fireblight if fireblight has been a problem for you. Fruit plants and trees can be pruned now. Prune out the dead raspberry and blackberry canes that fruited last summer. Fall fruiting raspberries like "Heritage" can be mowed to the ground now. Prune small fruits and tree fruits when weather permits, but wait until bloom to prune peach trees. Order copies of EB 125, "Maryland Home Fruit Production Guide," and EB97, "Pruning Fruit Plants in Maryland," from my office for more specific information. Remove and dispose of all rotted or fallen fruits from trees, vines and bushes. This will help reduce the amount of disease inoculum and number of insect pests that overwinter and attack your orchard next spring.

Most fruit plants are fertilized before new spring growth emerges. Strawberries are fertilized in July after harvesting. Blueberry plants are fertilized with ammonium sulfate. New research indicates that blueberries should be fertilized twice in the spring– ½ the total amount at bloom and ½ the total amount six weeks later. Peach trees require an annual early spring application of a balanced fertilizer. Be careful not to over-fertilize apple trees. It can lead to excessive, weak growth and promote disease and insect pest problems. If apple and pear trees are healthy, fruitful and making 12-18 inches of new shoot growth each year, they don't need to be fertilized at all.

Improving Pastures Increases Profits

Lower your feed costs with good pasture management. If you want to make a profit from your pastures, you must think of yourself as a pasture farmer, putting the same amount of effort into establishing and managing your pastures as you would into any other crop. How many farmers would grow corn, oats, or alfalfa with the same low level of soil fertility and low level of management that they use on their pastures?

Serious weed and fertility problems must be taken care of before you intensify grazing pastures for profit. Many naturally growing forages are well adapted to your pasture and will give adequate yields which can be improved with proper fertilization and good grazing management. Even though we think of Quackgrass as a weed, it can be an excellent forage with high yields and crude protein values that may exceed 20%.

FARM SERVICE ANNOUNCES SIGNUP

The Preston County Farm Service Agency announces that sign-up for the expanded Livestock Compensation Program (LCP)-II began April 1, and is scheduled to end in early June. This program is expanded to include additional counties that were approved under a secretarial disaster designation or a presidential disaster declaration for damages and losses due to any natural disaster. The act also includes catfish as an eligible commodity.

Previously under LCP, a county must have been named as a primary county under a secretarial disaster designation between January 1 and Sept. 19, 2002, only for drought. The program has been expanded to make eligible any counties that were requested as primary disaster areas under a presidential or secretarial declaration by February 20, 2003, and were subsequently approved. Preston County has been included in the list of counties with Primary Disaster Declarations in calendar year 2001 and/or 2002.

Livestock destroyed in the February 2003 snowstorm are eligible for payment under LCP-II if they meet the following criteria. The livestock must have been owned for a minimum of 90 calendar days and June 1, 2002, is within the 90-day period. Livestock are eligible for payment regardless for the reason of loss after June 1, 2002.

To be eligible for LCP-II assistance, a producer's livestock operation headquarters must be physically located in a county with a qualifying disaster designation. Eligible livestock are cattle, sheep, goats, buffalo, and catfish. Contiguous counties are not eligible for LCP-II. Payments will be based on losses per head or number of eligible livestock and catfish.

To enroll in Livestock Compensation Program-II or to obtain further information, persons may visit the Farm Service Agency located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza or telephone 304-329-1923. Applications may also be obtained by fax at 304-329-3056. To file by fax, producers must have a valid Form FSA-237 on file with FSA.

The Farm Service Agency has developed a Web site that provides producers with details on new and existing disaster assistance. The Web site may be accessed at either www.usda.gov or http://disaster.fsa.usdagov.
